Kizzy Tops Lancaster Show For Welk-Shade

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — With quality deep in the classes, Judge Lloyd Pease called the Lancaster County Holstein show a tremendous group of cows for a county show.

Winning grand champion honors was Welk-Shade Sterling Kizzy, the very dairy junior three year-old that was the first place for Mark and Kristina Welk, Quarryville.

Homebred for several generations, the champion was milking over 100 lbs. with second calf after finishing a two-year lactation with over 20,000m. She was also best udder in class.

Welk-Shade was also named premier breeder and had eight first place wins.

The reserve grand champion was Woodbine-ND BS Farm shown by New-Direction Holsteins, Elizabethtown, and bred by Alan McCauley and George Knight. The reserve champion with great dairyness and the best udder in class was first place in the senior three year-old class.

New Direction Holsteins were also named premier exhibitor and had nine first place wins.

Both the junior champion and the reserve junior champion were shown by New-Direction Holsteins.

Market In Best Position For Farmers To Price Commodities

WHITE HORSE (Lancaster Co.) — "Milk prices are going up but not high enough to cover costs," said Joe Paris, director of dairy field operations for the National Farmers Organization (NFO).

NFO held three meetings in the Lancaster area this week to offer a solution to gain higher milk prices.

"Now is the time for dairy farmers to unite and get into a position to put a price on their commodity," Paris said. "The market right now is in the best position farmers have had in years to get this done."

"If farmers don't set the price on commodities, it will be priced by big companies, chain stores, and large cheese buyers. The consolidation of many dairy companies has resulted in a limited number of buyers, which means even less advantage for farmers to negotiate a fair price."

"If the production of food is in the hands of a few, it isn't good for the country, the economy, or the consumer," he said.

NFO stresses the need for all dairy cooperatives and farmers to cooperate for collective bargaining.

"Coops do not need to be fighting each other. While there are many good cooperatives, most are regional and their sphere of influence in marketing can only be negotiated in the region they are in. NFO is national. We need to change prices nationally; otherwise, buyers will always find a lower-price pocket to find their supply," Paris said.

Rodger Schlottach, director of NFO, said that NFO was formed in the 1950s as a protest group to influence Washington, but when it became evident that help for farmers was not coming from Washington, the group changed tactics. During the 1960s and 1970s, NFO started moving toward becoming bargaining agents for commodities.

Schlottach emphasized that NFO owns no trucks, plants, processing or manufacturing plants.

At Papa Farm, Maze Provides Another Way To Graze

BETHEL (Berks Co.) — Even with ideal pasture growth, some aspects of animal control can be rough on producers. There are some challenges — such as keeping watering areas from turning into mudholes and picking the right kind of grasses for crowded areas and animal laneways — that must be faced.

But producers can learn to avoid the pitfalls by listening to the experience of veteran grazers, including Brian Mohn, who also makes use of a special "grazing maze."

Mohn spoke to about 30 producers and agri-industry representatives at the Penn State-sponsored Berks County Grazing Walk Tuesday evening.

Mohn, with wife Karen and children Beverly, Carolyn, and Judy, manages the 350-acre (240 tillable) Gilles Richard Papa Farm near Bethel. Papa Farm is home to about 119 head of commercial Angus, 45 hogs per year, and WEST FRIENDSHIP, Md. — The Central Maryland District Championship Holstein Show was held last week at the Howard County Fairgrounds.

Delaware Valley graduate Scott Cooper officiated the show. Cooper is involved in the family operation, Appealing Holsteins, Delta, Pa. The associate judge for the evening was Maryland University senior Marie Speaks. Speaks is an ag business major and a management intern with Southern States Cooperative.

Eighty-eight head of outstanding Holsteins were presented to judges Cooper and Speaks. Cooper thanked the Central Maryland breeders for their good show manners and praised them for the tremendous quality of the show.

pion of the open show. Being praised as a tremendous cow, the winning 5-year-old had a superior udder, showing great height and width of rear udder. Kandy is owned by Butch Harrison and Mike lager.

The second prize 5-year-old, Ehrhardt Astro Jet Jody-Et, was given the nod for reserve senior and reserve grand champion of the open show. Judge Cooper admired her open dairy frame. Jody was exhibited by Kevin Ehrhardt of Baldwin, Md.

Two 4-H exhibitors walked away with the junior champion

Midwest weather. However, substantial overnight sales of corn, limited declines. Wheat 9 to 16 cents lower. Corn 1 to 4 cents lower. Sorghum 6 to 13 cents lower. Soybeans 9 to 14 cents lower. Wheat lost additional ground, today, as harvest progress showing good yields and crop conditions. Good overnight export sales limited losses, however, expectations for demand to drop off over the next several weeks is a concern to traders. Corn bids slipped lower as cooler temperatures and beneficial rains drove prices downward. Early planted corn, during the dry spell before the rains started in May, larger than usual seedings in April this year, is already made and big. Late planted corn, especially in the Eastern Corn Belt needs one more rain and a cool spell for pollination. Very good export demand overnight, offered some support to corn bids. Early soybeans are also pretty well assured of a bumper crop. Late planted beans, here again in the Eastern Corn Belt, and larger than usual bean/wheat acreages need to worry about August drought and an early frost. Feeder Cattle

OKLAHOMA CITY, OK

JULY 24, 1996

Compared to last week: Feeder steers and heifers over 700 lbs weak to 3.00 lower. Calves and yearlings under 700 lbs steady. Demand moderate. The seasonal movement of summer contract feeders to feedlots is placing the usual limits on demand. In addition feeding cattle on 5.00 corn has become a major reality as current close-outs reflect a full turn at top corn prices. Quality of supply plain to average. Flesh conditions remain medium on feeders; medium to fleshy on calves. Average to full weigh-ups are an improvement for buyers compared to last week's full conditions. Slaughter cows .50-1.50 higher. Slaughter bulls steady. Packer demand good and improved over last weeks sluggish market. Most action coming from buyers out of the North where cows are not as plentiful. JULY 29-AUGUST 4, 1996

FULL THUNDER MOON, JULY 30.

AN UPLIFTING MAN

August 3 marks the birthday of the inventor of the elevator, Elisha Graves Otis, who was born in 1811 and raised in Halifax, Vermont. His invention of the first passenger elevator stemmed from a device he fashioned to make the hoisting of machinery safer. In 1853 he demonstrated his freight elevator at the famous Crystal Palace exhibition in Hyde Park, London. Public confidence was increased, and by 1861 he established a manufacturing company for steam-driven elevators. His idea held great weight with the architects, because it allowed them to design the skyscraper.

He who aims at the Moon may hit the top of a tree; he who aims at the top of a tree is unlikely to get off the ground.

TIP OF THE WEEK

VEGETABLE JULIENNE

5 regular carrots, julienned
1/2 pound snow peas, trimmed
1 orange bell pepper, julienned
1 yellow bell pepper, julienned
6 tablespoons red wine vinegar
2 teaspoons Dijon mustard
1 teaspoon honey
2 teaspoons chopped fresh dill

In large pan of boiling water, blanch carrots for 1 minute. Add snow peas and blanch another half a minute or less. Drain and rinse under cold water. Drain well. Add peppers. In another bowl, whisk together the vinegar, mustard, honey, and dill. Add this to the vegetables, mixing well. Season with salt and pepper.
Makes 4 servings.

Easy To Complain

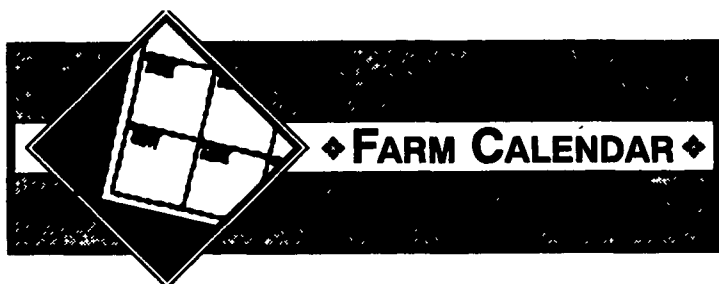

Have you ever noticed how easy it is to complain? And, how hard it is to be objective, upbeat and constructive. Cattle producers, it would seem, can find a lot to complain about today. High grain prices, low fed and feeder cattle prices, negative margins, Canadian imports of fed cattle, Mexican imports of feeder cattle, consolidation in the packing sector, dry weather, wet weather, cold weather, hot weather, fertilizer cost, fuel cost, how much things have changed, why things have not changed, change in general, Democrats, Republicans, BSE, Oprah, low interest rates, high interest rates, tight credit, no credit, the purebred industry, the crossbred industry, the show ring, unethical practices, the past, the present, the future, breed associations, cattle producer associations, associations in general, the cost of dues, bull prices, cull cow prices, cattle buyers, cattle sellers, cattle dealers, the checkoff, beef demand, pork and poultry competition, cholesterol, saturated fat, trimmable fat, intramuscular fat, fat in general, vegetarians, animal rightists, the public sector, the private sector, the government sector, universities and finally, the price of tea in China.

I would be the first to argue the merits of a little "venting" now and then. Unfortunately, with some folks, this is where it ends. They just like being contrary! I must admit that it gets a little old to listen to and you come to anticipate the words each time these individuals begin to pontificate. Never a word of encouragement, a positive take on a situation or any attempt to offer solutions. It is just too easy to complain.

As we move through these difficult times in the cattle industry or through any uncomfortable change, it would seem prudent to focus on the things we can influence at the expense of things out of our control. For instance, as cow/calf producers we could focus on profitability not cost. We can look for ways to add value to our products and gain a competitive edge. We can build strategic alliances and partnerships, not burn bridges. We can articulate our needs for the tools to be competitive and profitable and search them out. We can work cooperatively with universities and allied industries to ensure timely and efficient access to pertinent research, education and information. Or, we can just complain.

Things are sure to get better. They always have. (I think it has something to do with a "cycle!") We can wait and complain or we can act and react. This is the real challenge.

Now Is The Time

By John Schwartz

Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Consider Alternative Feeds

Corn grain is in short supply and expensive. This situation is not likely to change over the next year.

Because of this, many farmers planted more corn this spring and are anxiously waiting this year's barley and wheat crop.

Glenn Shirk, extension dairy agent, reminds us that barley and wheat are high energy feeds that may replace some of the corn in the ration. Their energy is very soluble, digested very quickly, and causes a rapid increase in acid production in the rumen.

Because of this, barley and wheat should not be slug fed. In other words, they should be fed in small quantities and at frequent intervals so rumen acidosis is not created.

It is also important cows be fed enough soluble protein at the same time. This will allow the cows to more effectively utilize the energy released by the rapid degradation of soluble carbohydrates in the rumen.

To improve the digestibility of small grains, they should be finely ground or rolled. This can create another problem of reduced palatability. However, this problem may be minimized by feeding some coarser feeds or a TMR mix.

When making ration changes, you should consult your nutritionist for advice.

To Deworm Calves

According to Chester Hughes, extension livestock agent, spring born calves which are to be weaned in the fall will, in most cases, respond by being 20 to 40 pounds heavier at weaning if they are given a deworming treatment in July or August or 60 to 90 days prior to weaning.

In most instances, cows do not need to be dewormed, only the calves. Deworming calves will show the greatest response in herds which have first calf heifers and other young cattle grazing with mature cows.

Young cows shed significant numbers of worm eggs while old cows shed very few since they have built up an immunity to internal parasites.

The choice of deworming materials is relatively immaterial. Use the product which suits you best.

To Stay Cool

Dr. Robert Thee, extension housing agent, reminds us there are ways beside using air conditioning to stay cool this summer in our houses. Moving air, no matter how hot, feels cooler.

One of our options in a hot house is to get air circulating with an electric fan. Although floor, table or ceiling fans will help move air, they will not cool the room unless they are bringing in cooler air from somewhere else.

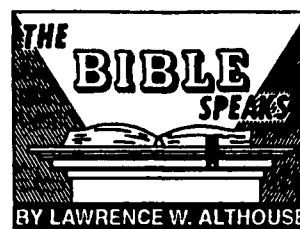

At night, place a window fan in an open window with the fan blowing interior air to the outdoors. On the opposite side of the house, open another window in the room you want to cool.

While forcing the hot indoor air outside, the window fan will actually pull cool night air into the far room. On occasion, an exhaust fan, like those in the kitchen or bathroom, can be used for cooling.

When used to remove humidity in the heat of the day, they will bring hot outside air in to the house. But at night, running the exhaust fan can remove some of the hot air.

Open windows on opposite sides of a room will provide good cross ventilation if you do not have a fan. Keeping draperies or blinds closed during the day will also help keep out the heat from the sun.

NO PLACE TO HIDE

Background Scripture:

I Peter 5:6-11

Devotional Reading:

Psalms 121:1-8

Do you remember when you first learned to play "hide and seek?" I remember that I assumed that if my face were hidden, then I was hidden — and I've since observed a lot of children who share the same misconception.

One time I hid behind some suits hanging in a closet. My head was well hidden, but my torso, legs and feet were not hidden at all. I was found out in no time. How strange to think we are hidden, when in reality we are not.

Actually, that's a lesson we need to carry into our adult lives. No matter how hard or cleverly we may try to hide from God, something always gives us away. The problem is not that we don't hide cleverly enough, but that hiding from God is not possible and never has been. I hope God has a sense of humor. How ridiculous we must look, thinking we are well hidden and yet so obvious.

NEVER OUT OF SIGHT

This is what the Psalmist found: "O Lord, thou hast searched me and known me" (139:1). Despite our assumptions, God knows us fully and completely. Although we may carefully select the words we use in praying, he knows what is behind those words — and what isn't. Although we do not usually share with him our worst thought and feelings, he knows them just the same. "Thou discernest my thoughts from afar. Thou searchest out my path . . . and art acquainted with all my ways. Even before a work is on my tongue, lo, O Lord, thou knowest it altogether" (139:2-4).

"Whither shall I go from thy Spirit?" he asks, "Or whither shall I flee from thy presence?" If I ascend to heaven, thou art there! If I make my bed in Sheol, thou art there" (139:7,8). This last statement must have shocked some of his contemporaries, for the early Israelites believed that in Sheol, the shadowy, dark place of the dead, there is separation from God. In Psalm 6:5, we read: "For in death there is no remembrance of thee; in Sheol who can give thee praise?" But the Psalmist of Psalm 139 is saying that even in Sheol, God is there!

NEVER OUT OF HAND

But, just as we are never hidden from God's sight, so we are never hidden from his power. "If I take the wings of morning and dwell in the utter most parts of the sea, even there thy hand shall lead me, and thy right hand shall hold me" (139:9,10). And that's the encouraging part of this discovery. It is frightening to think that we can never hide anything — including ourselves — from God, but it is also comforting to know that we can never be beyond his help. Nor can we ever be so lost in the darkness that he cannot see us. "If I say, 'Let only darkness cover me, and the light about me be light,' even the darkness is not dark to thee, the night is bright as the day; for darkness is as light to thee" (139:11,12).

The Psalmist realizes how futile it is to try to hide from God. The Lord not only knows him now, but He knew him before he existed: "Thy eyes beheld my unformed substance; in thy book were written, every one of them, the days that were formed for me, when as yet there was none of them" (139:16). And he will always know him. "When I awake, I am still with thee" (139:18). Whether he meant "awake" from sleep or "awake" from his delusion of being hidden, the result is the same: "I am still with thee."

At last the Psalmist comes to that realization that awaits us all: since we cannot hide anything or ourselves from God, then let us be as open to him as we can: "Search me, O God, and know my heart! Try me and know my thoughts! And see if there be any wicked way in me, and lead me in the way everlasting!" (139:23,24). No longer is God the One from whom we cannot hide, but the One whom we invite into our lives at every level.

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Maryland Department of Agriculture (MDA) Secretary Lewis R. Riley recently announced that eligible farmers should be receiving their conservation grant payments much sooner under the newly streamlined Maryland Agricultural Water Quality Cost-Share (MACS) Program. The improved turnaround is the result of a move by the State Soil Conservation Committee to eliminate duplication in the MACS program by shifting bond authority for eligible conservation practices from the Maryland Department of the Environment (MDE) to MDA.

"What this means is that Maryland farmers will be getting their grant allocations quicker. We estimate that we'll be able to reduce the turnaround time for payments from five weeks to three," said Riley.

Maryland Ag Department Speeds Up Conservation Grant Payments

In the past, bond fund applications and allocations were processed through (MDE). Beginning July 1, 1996, all unspent bond balances originally handled by MDE will be transferred to MDA.

"What we essentially wanted to do was cut down on government red tape in an effort to make the program more farmer friendly," explained Riley.

MDA estimates that the changes will also speed up the initial grant approval process. Questions concerning the status of a grant application claim for payment will also be answered in a more timely manner.

Established in 1983, the Maryland Agricultural Water Quality Cost-Share program is a key feature in Maryland's efforts to protect water quality in the Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries.

Through the program, farmers are provided with a up to 87.5 percent of the cost to install eligible best management practices to prevent soil erosion and control nutrient runoff from farm fields and livestock operations. Grassed waterways, animal waste management systems and stream protection measures are among more than 25 best management practices (BMPs) currently eligible for MACS funding.

Since 1984, more than 7,000 BMPs have been installed under the program with approximately $38 million in public funds matched by $4.5 million from individual farmers.

Farmers interested in applying for cost-share assistance through the MACS Program should call their local soil conservation district.

Owners: License Your Dogs

HARRISBURG
(Dauphin Co.) — Agriculture Secretary Charles C. Brosius encouraged dog owners to adhere to the law by licensing their pets. The agriculture department is responsible for administering the state's Dog Law.

"A dog license allows enforcement officers to positively identify a stray dog, providing both ownership and vaccination information," said Brosius.
"Those owners who choose not to obey the law could be responsible for fines up to $300 plus court costs."

Brosius reminded owners that after a 48-hour waiting period, an unlicensed dog may be adopted by a new owner or event euthanized if needed.

The cost of a dog license is $3 for a spayed or neutered dog and $5 for a regular license.
Proceeds from the sale of licenses are used to enforce dog laws and investigate animal bite incidents, including quarantining animals if necessary. Funds are also used for programs to educate children on how to be responsible pet owners and reimburse livestock owners whose animals have been injured by dogs.

Owners should contact their county treasurer's office for more information or to purchase a license.

Foliar Fertilization Works!

Give Your Plants the Spark They Need!

A foliar spray of Alpine liquid plant food concentrate causes a cycle of growth, which helps plants to grow larger, and mature earlier, but most important, provides bigger and better yields.

Here's how it works:

1st:

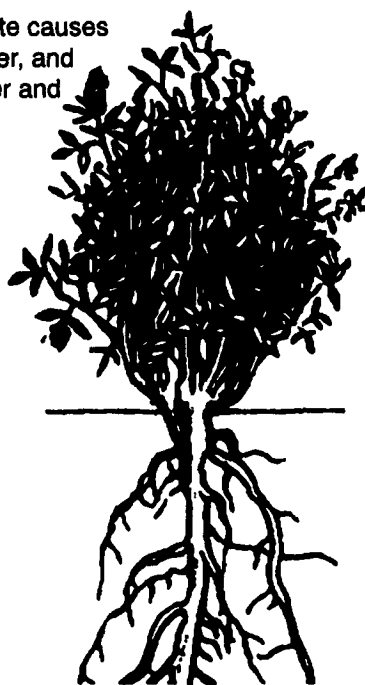

Our plant food is applied later in the afternoon or evening when absorption is greatest.

2nd:

The product is absorbed by all parts of the plant and begins moving through the system. As much as 95% of the fertilizer applied to the plant is absorbed, so there's optimum utilization.

3rd:

Fertilizer moves throughout the plant, carrying nutrients up and out to the leaves and down to the roots.

Nutrients reach to the most distant roots, helping to stimulate additional root growth. These new roots are able to uptake even more nutrients that are already present in the soil.

5th:

The greatest concentration of fertilizer goes where it's needed most: to the young growing portions of the plant, such as new leaves and buds.

6th:

(Labor Saving Tip)
Mix the plant foot with your insecticide or herbicide when spraying your alfalfa and soybeans.

Market In Best Position

Coops that take milk and turn it into a product to sell want to buy raw materials (milk) at the lowest price so the plant can make a profit. This hurts the producer.

"We are a bargaining agent. Commodities are marketed by NFO," Paris said of the organization's commitment to see that farmers receive all profits from the sale of commodities.

"There must be equal strength between buyer and seller. Dairy farmers do not have equality against big companies such as Kraft and chain stores," Paris said.

NFO is structured nationwide to negotiate contracts that are beneficial to all farmers.

"Farmers do affect the marketplace when they band together for their common good. That's the real strength of the national farmers organization," Paris said.

NFO sends milk checks three times a month instead of the customary twice a month pay check.

"This benefits the dairy farmer. It improves your cash flow. Industry uses our money too long. By receiving your money faster you can take advantage of interest savings and cash discounts instead of a cooperative or business benefiting," Paris said.

In the future, Paris would like to see milk payments sent out four times a month and eventually payment made when milk is picked up at the farm.

Although he conceded that benefit would probably be a long time in coming, Paris said that it is only fair because farmers need to pay for their supplies in advance.

Paris talked about the Fair Act '96, and how it is expected to affect farmers.

"Dairy farmers are lied to year end and year out. It's pure myth that America's dairy farmers have produced a surplus of milk in the past 20 years that has led to low milk prices," Paris said.

According to Paris, statistics show that consumers use more milk than dairy farmers produce. From 1970-1992, the nation imported 54 billion pounds of milk to make up the difference.

NFO speakers said that buyers often react to organized movements such as NFO. "They tell bad stories about us that aren't true to scare off members," Paris said. But the good side of this scare tactic is

"It's pure myth that America's dairy farmers have produced a surplus of milk in the past 20 years that has led to low milk prices," said Joe Paris, director of dairy field operations for NFO.

Speakers James Buebow, regional director; Rodger Schlottach, director of NFO; and Joe Paris, director of dairy field operations, at the three NFO informational meetings held in the Lancaster explain the need for farmers to unite for higher milk prices.

No pain. More grain. With Baytan.

Reduce the pain of early season powdery mildew and other diseases, and put more grain in the bin. Plant seed treated with Baytan for powdery mildew fungicide.

No other seed treatment can match the performance of Baytan against early season powdery mildew. Baytan is also effective against a broad spectrum of seedborne, soilborne and foliar diseases - including stripe rust and stripe rust.

By protecting against disease attack, Baytan promotes a healthier root system and more vigorous plants. You'll see thicker stands and increased tillering. And best of all, better yields; after a decade of yield trials, Baytan has outperformed untreated seed by an average of 5 bushels an acre.

This year don't let your wheat suffer from the pain and stress of early season powdery mildew. Your seed is worth more for seed treated with Baytan.

Planting Clinic Draws Large Crowd

LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) - More than 800 people attended the two-day planting clinic, equipment demonstrations, and field plot evaluations at Binkley & Hurst Bros., Inc., this week. The event was staged to help farmers see what new technology and equipment is available.

"We long ago stopped telling people what to do," Don Hoover said. "Our presentations come from a broad scope of experience, and we throw all the options out and let farmers find what works for them."

Two out-of-state farmers were among the presenters at the "sit down" seminars in the shop. Ray Dawson farms 5,500 acres in Farmwell, Michigan, and Joe Whitney is a farmer from St. Marys, Ohio, and also operates a distributing business of farm implements.

Rawson spoke of making the transition in tillage to new technologies as being motivated by profit. Sensing systems and computers now give farmers the ability to tell the fertility of the soil anywhere in the world. As you manipulate the soil air, the soil water, and the soil residue, you can reduce soil fertility costs and with the time factor, grow more crops in less time and with less input.

Whitney took a common sense

look at how farmers plant corn and soybeans. The whole issue of planting is to make sure you have even germination. If your seeds don't reach the depth of the moisture level, you have delayed emergence. Planter leveling, even seed beds, even seed spacing, seed disk tensioning, and good blade contact in minimum tillage situations, were subjects covered.

Many other area agribusiness also had booths and representatives at the clinic. The commodity promotion groups served breakfast and lunch. A special ladies' tour was arranged to local shops and outlet stores.

No-Till Vegetables Trap Soil Moisture, Stem Weeds, Keep Harvest Clean

ANDY ANDREWS

Lancaster Farming Staff
HOLTWOOD (Lancaster Co.)

—One prominent vegetable grower believes that no-till vegetable transplanting technology has proven extremely beneficial in conserving soil moisture, suppressing weeds, stemming disease pressure, and keeping the harvest area (and thus the harvest) clean.

For growers, this technique can translate into higher dollar returns for nearly any type of transplantable vegetable, including tomatoes, broccoli, cabbage, pumpkins,

This was the message that more than 100 growers took home Wednesday afternoon at the No-Till Transplanted Vegetable Field Day at Steve and Cheri Groff's farm near Holtwood.

One of the big advantages to the grower is being able to choose when they can plant and when they can harvest, according to Dr. Ronald D. Morse, horticultural department at Virginia Tech, who spoke at the field day.

As a result of no-tilling into a mulch, growers can "get in the field two to three days sooner, which can amount to big returns in profit," said Morse, who helped honors for the open and 4-H shows. Dustin Derr's straight-lined, open-ribbed, winter calf; Derrwyn Encore Ladel, made a handy junior champion. She showed more depth and openness of rib than her competitors. Judge Cooper then followed with Erin Burall's well balanced spring yearling, Burlin C Gingersnap for reserve junior champion.

Steve Groff, top center, hosted a field day at his farm to look at no-till broccoli transplanting and other test plots Wednesday afternoon.

Bob Anderson, Lancaster agronomy agent, explained the use of the device he is holding, a chlorophyll meter, to determine plant nitrogen use at the Groff farm.

The 4-H senior and reserve senior champions were two well balanced individuals. Kevin Ehrhardt's winning five-year-old, Ehrhardt Astro Jet Jody-Et, was named senior and grand champion on her tremendous dairy frame. The winning senior two-year-old, C Blondin Astro Preference, exhibited by Amy Iager, was selected for reserve senior and reserve grand champion because of her tremendous height and width of rear udder.

Judge Speaks had the honor of judging the 4-H fitting and showing contest preceding the show. Four age groups were judged. Speaks praised the great group of 4-H'ers for doing a "simply fabulous job!" After the dust had settled, Jeff Sutton of Carroll County was named champion fitting and showing, followed by another Carroll Countian, David Miller, for reserve.

This year's show was hosted by the Baltimore County Holstein Club. Beautiful, handmade ceramic sugar bowls, creamers, and cookie jars were presented to the champions. Several reigning dairy princesses were on hand to do the honors of presenting the ribbons and prizes. Included in this group of royalty was: 1995 MD Dairy Princess Christina Harper; Car-

Ag Showcase Set For Cecil County Fair

FAIR HILL, Md. — Everyone is invited to attend the 16th annual Ag Showcase Day to be held on Tuesday July 30, 1996 at 10 a.m. at the Fair Hill Natural Resource Management Area. As part of the Cecil County Fair, Ag Showcase Day features working demonstrations of the latest agricultural equipment and technology. Stop by any of our participating equipment dealers or the Cooperative Extension Service for complementary passes to Ag Showcase Day. Come early for morning refreshments and donuts and plan to stay all day for demonstrations and the Farm Bureau Woman's lunch available at noon.

This year's educational program will focus on Farm Safety, a very important but often overlooked topic. Agriculture, with 26 deaths per 100,000 workers is consistently near the top in work related fatalities and five times the average of all industries combined. Mr. Charles Wood of the Maryland Fire and Rescue Institute will discuss how to recognize and avoid many of the potential farm related hazards. Mr. Frank Muller, Chief of Cecil County's Emergency Management Services will follow up with a discussion of the resources available in Cecil County should a farm related accident occur. Union Hospital will also be present to screen for skin cancer, a common work related health problem associated with agriculture.

This year's equipment demonstrations will include:

- The latest hay making equipment including all new disk mowers and round balers in action.

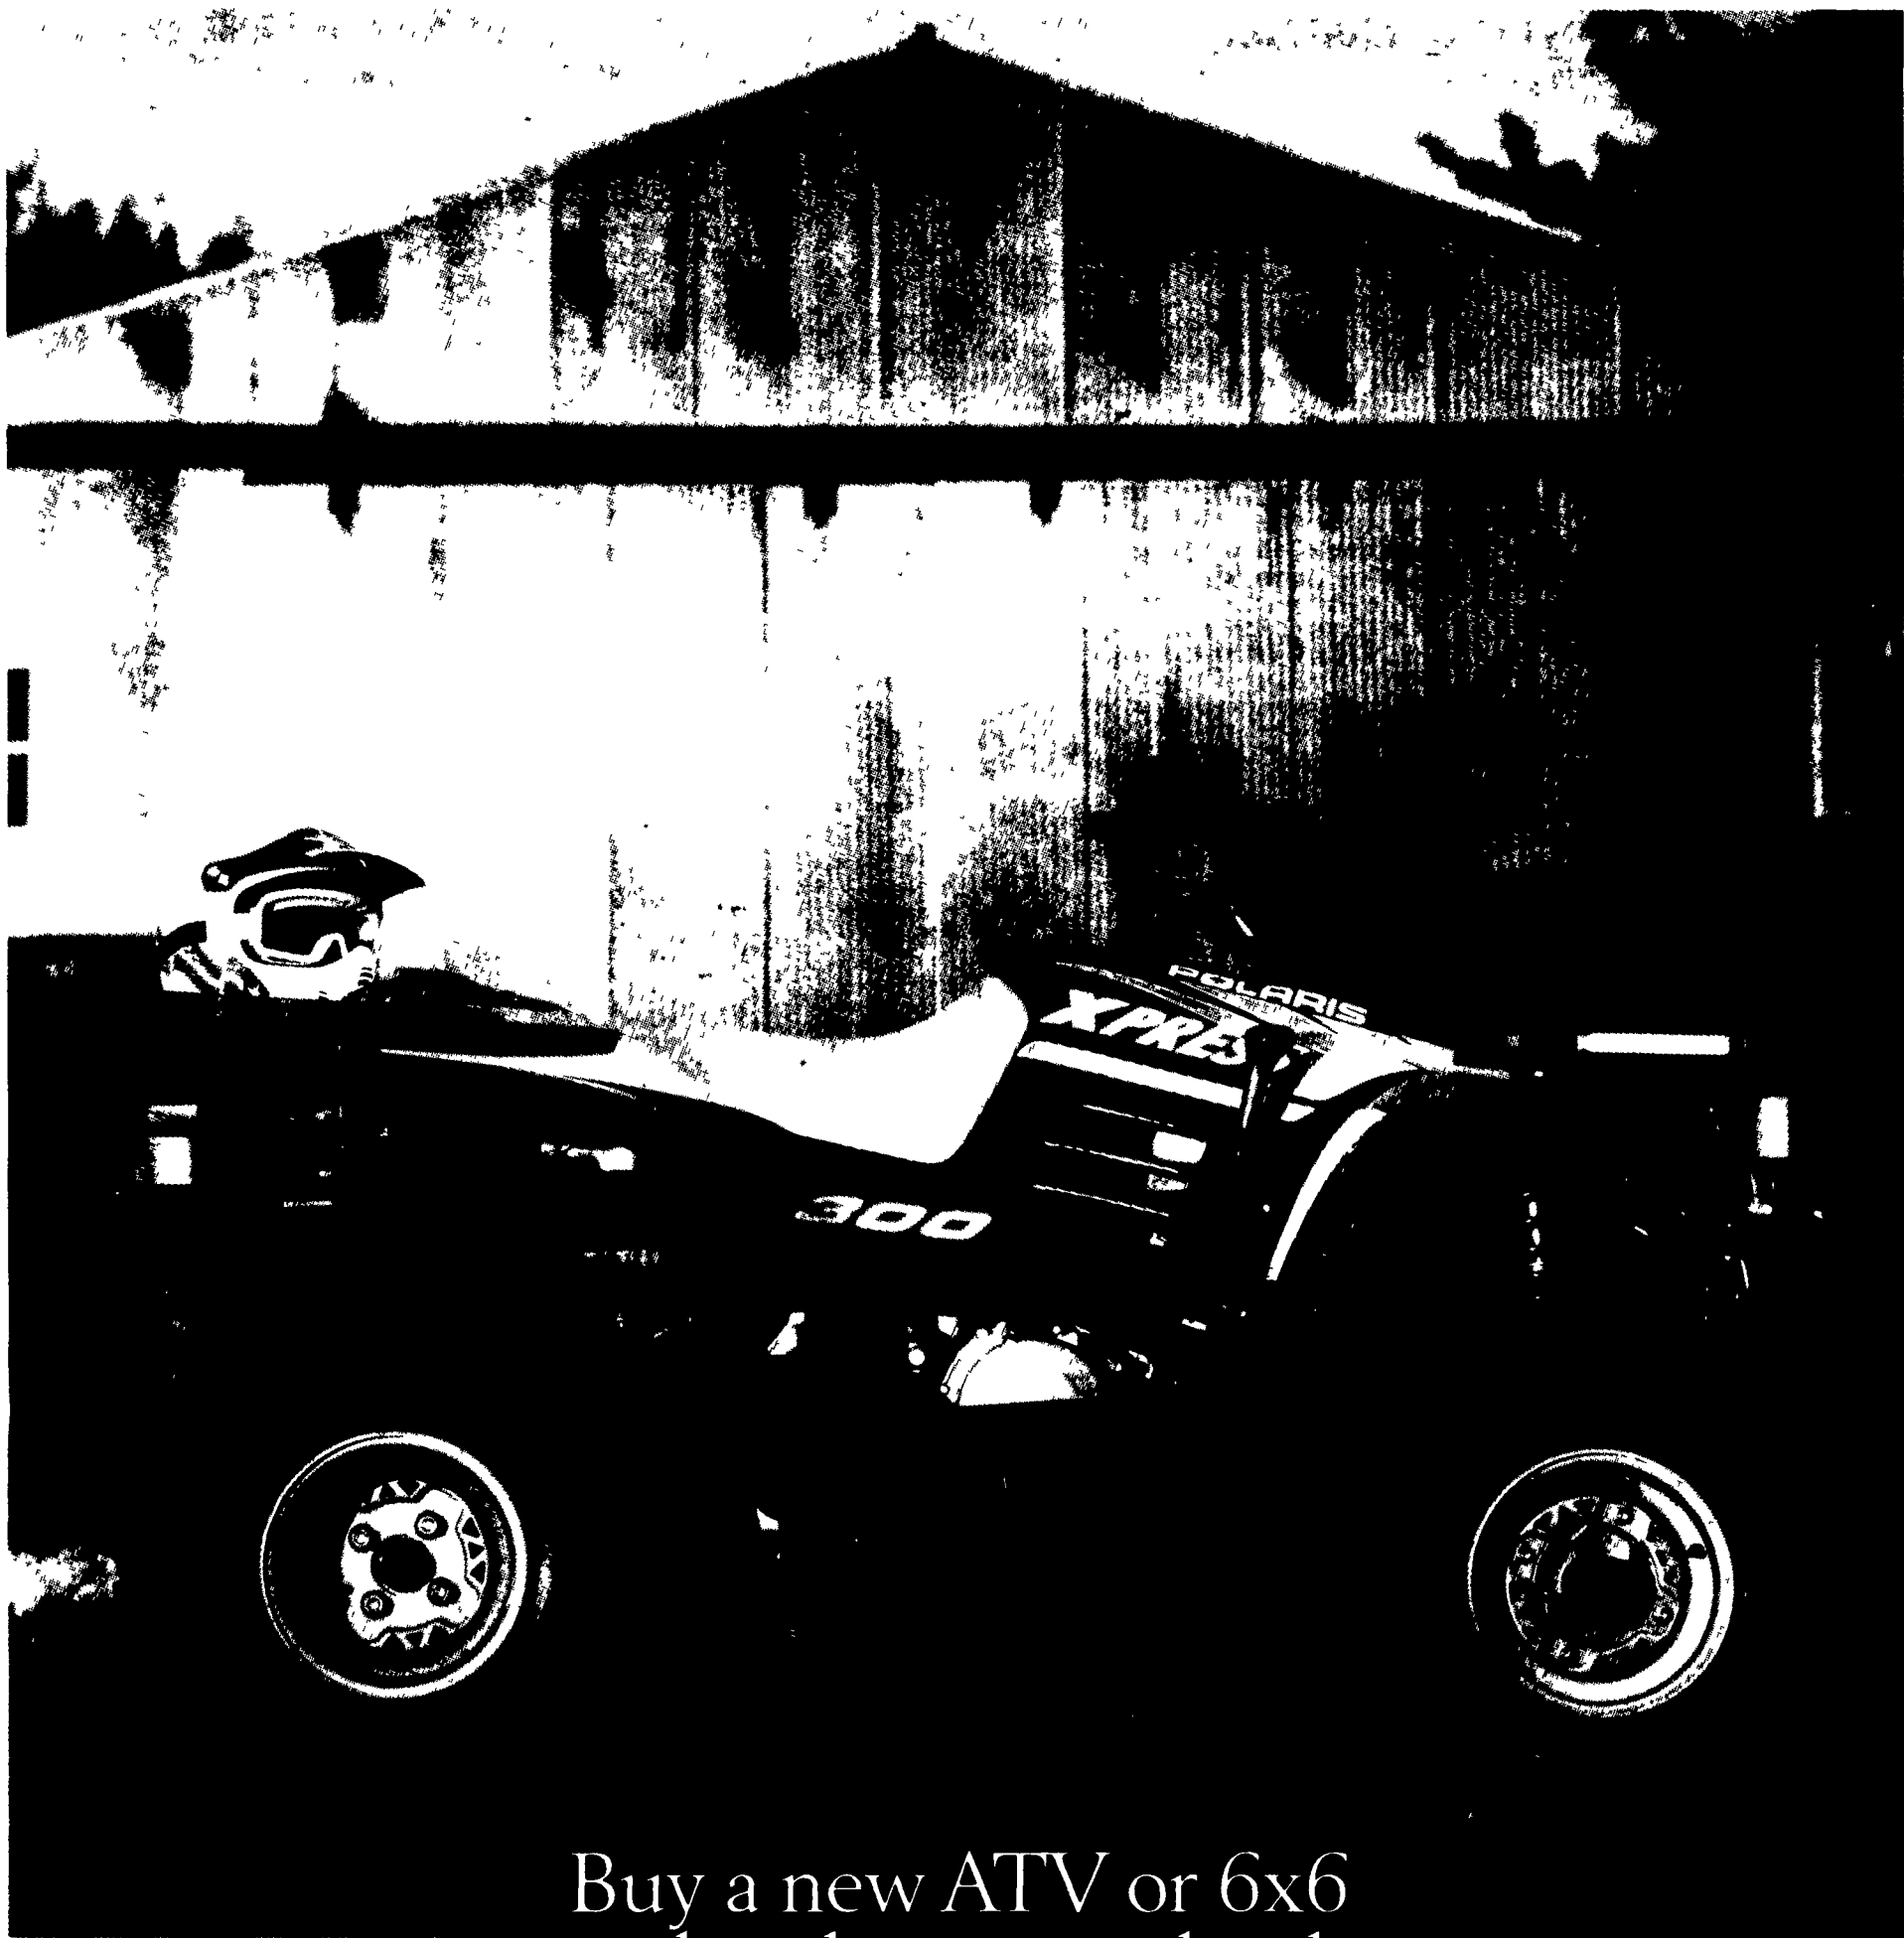

- A tractor comparison course where qualified drivers can test drive new tractor models from Case-IH, Ford/New Holland, and John Deere.

- Tractor/loader and skid loader demonstrations to help you find the machine that is right for your farm.

- No-till drills tackling Fair Hill's rocky soils.

- An all day display of antique tractor and equipment by the areas many antique equipment enthusiasts.

Ag Showcase Day is made possible through the efforts of the Cecil County Fair Board, the University of Maryland Cooperative Extension Service, the Department of Natural Resources, the Natural Resources Conservation Service, and most importantly the many equipment dealers and ag service providers. Participating dealers include: Ag Industrial Equipment Co., Biggs, Inc., W.N. Cooper and Sons, Ben Haines Equipment Co., Hooper Equipment Company, and Mid-Atlantic Agri-Systems. Supporting sponsors include: Agway, Central Maryland Farm Credit-Elkton, Hoffman Seeds-Scheeler's Service Center, and Southern States-Rising Sun.

heim, "was sicker than a dog," Denise said. The animal looked ready to die.

"All she would eat was hay," said Denise. "She had a twisted stomach, and we weren't planning on keeping her. We certainly didn't count on this."

"This" of course was the grand championship of the Holstein show Wednesday afternoon during the Lancaster County 4-H Dairy show competition at the Solanco Fairgrounds.

"We crossed our fingers and we hoped and prayed," said Denise, a Hempfield High School freshman and daughter of Darryl and Ruby Bollinger of Manheim.

"We figured that fixing her twisted stomach would be the cheaper way to go, and we figured we'd get rid of the animal," said Ruby Bollinger.

Ruby said that the Holstein, only a year ago, started eating regularly and soon, remarkably, regained its health. The Holstein placed in the top 10 in her class at the last Farm Show.

Ruby said that Denise will show Zena (C Wadden Counselor Zena) at the Elizabethtown Fair next month. The 5-Year-Old, bred by Wadden Farms (S: Carnation Counselor, D: Wadden Temptation Zenith), "will go where I go,"

World Dairy Expo Names Judges

MADISON, Wis. — This year's World Dairy Expo judges have been named. They are:

• Central National Ayrshire Show: Ron Mosser. Mosser is a field representative for Superior Agri-Services and resides in Geneva, Ind. A member of several All-American Selection Committees, Mosser is also president of the Indiana Jersey Cattle Association and a past World Dairy Expo official for the Central National Jersey Show.

His lifelong involvement with Pleasant Ridge Farm has led to several showing successes including selection as premier breeder three times at World Dairy Expo and two times at the Royal Winter Fair. Pleasant Ridge, which is home to 150 head of young stock, is also very familiar with shows on the national level. Mosser's Jersey have had several class winners and champions through the years, along with a three-time premier sire at World Dairy Expo.

• Central National Brown Swiss Show: Brian Garrison. Garrison is a sire analyst and manager at ABS Global, Inc.'s Brown Swiss programs. A member of the Holstein Association of America's Type Committee, Garrison has judged many shows in the United States, including associate judge of the 1994 International Holstein Show at World Dairy Expo, associate judge of the 1994 All-American Jersey Show, judge of 1994 Mid East Spring National, 1995 Eastern National Brown Swiss Show, 1995 Mid East Fall National Holstein Shows and the 1995 All American Jr. Jersey show.

Garrison's involvement with the industry has led him to dairy operations in England, France, Germany, Italy, Australia, New Zealand, Czech Republic, Austria, and Switzerland. He remains an active participant in the Garbo Swiss herd.

• Central National Guernsey Show: Fowler Branstetter. An international judge and area marketing manager for Protiva, a unit of Monsanto, Fowler Branstetter is an active dairy producer. More than 100 registered Guernseys and Holsteins are part of the herd in Edmonton, Ky., which has been operating since 1955. Branstetter has bred and developed 17 All-American nominees, including the 1989 unanimous All-American and the unanimous All-Canadian, Guernsey Aged Cow, (now scored EX-96).

Branstetter's judging assignments have included the Royal Winter Fair in Canada and the Royal-Melbourn Show in Australia. In the United States, he has also judged three national breed shows, and state and regional shows in 18 states, along with being an official Hoard's Dairyman contest judge.

• Central National Jersey Show and International Holstein Show: Callum McKinven. After a herd dispersal in 1990, McKinven is engaged with buying show cattle through his company, Amlard Holsteins in Melbourne, Quebec, Canada. He is experienced in the showing and in 1987, he received the junior championship honors at World Dairy Expo and junior champion honors at the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto, Canada, in 1989. His herd has received more than 20 nominations in All-American and All-Canadian competitions.

McKinven's experience as a judge has taken him to Brazil, Argentina, and Ireland. He judged the Western National Show in 1994 and has judged all dairy breeds. He was also the associate Holstein judge at last year's World Dairy Expo.

• International Holstein Show - Associate Judge: Robert Morrell. Morrell is from western Pennsylvania. He and wife Candy, and their four children, own and operate Morrell Farms. The herd includes 200 head of registered Holsteins and 400 acres. The current B.A.A. is 110.2, with 30EX and 59VG. The rolling herd average is 24,500M, 920F, 825P. Morrells were the breeders of the 1994 All-American 5-year-old.

In the past Mr. Morrell has owned and shown several nominated animals in both the United States and Canada. He has been involved in fitting, showing, and judging cattle since the early 1970s.

• International Milking Shorthorn Show: George Barlass. An active dairy judge and strong supporter of the dairy industry, George Barlass is familiar with judging at World Dairy Expo. In past years, he has served as the Ayrshire, Brown Swiss, Guernsey and Milking Shorthorn official. Barlass has also judged in 24 states and eight foreign countries. Major shows judged include All-American Jr. Show; Eastern National Show; Western National Jersey Show; International at Chicago; National Cattle Congress; Pennsylvania All-American; Pan-American Exposition; Royal Winter Fair in Canada; National Jersey Show in England and on the Isle of Jersey; National Jersey Show in Brazil; Royal Easter Show in Australia; Pacific National Exposition; and the World Jersey Conference Shows in New Zealand, England and Costa Rica.

Barlass is also the former owner of GIL-BAR Jersey Farm, which won premier breeder 82 times and premier exhibitor 63 times at major shows throughout the Midwest. GIL-BAR, under Barlass management has bred or developed 108 Excellent cows, 19 All-Americans and 29 Reserves. Barlass has also bred the only Jersey to be named grand champion at World Dairy Expo four times and the only Jersey to be named supreme champion of World Dairy Expo.

• Grand International Red & White Show: David Brown. Brown is owner and manager of Cher-Own Holsteins, located in Paris, Ontario, Canada. The herd has been first place in Ontario production and second in all of Canada in recent years. Cher-Own is also known throughout the world for several great champions, All-American and All-Canadian awards, including the two-time supreme champion of World Dairy Expo, Merkley Starbuck

Whitney. The farm totals 310 acres and was home to 180 head. In early July of this year, a young cow dispersal of 140 lots featured everything under six years of age including the calves.

By the age of 36, Brown had won his first premier breeder banner at World Dairy Expo and received the second the following year. Brown has been an active exporter, with embryos and livestock finding homes in England, Italy, Japan, Australia, Brazil, Mexico, Germany, and the United States. Numerous judging opportunities have included national shows in Canada, United States, and Brazil.

$1.4 Million Released For Farmers' Market Nutrition Program

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — On behalf of Gov. Tom Ridge, Agriculture Secretary Charles C. Brosius this week announced that more than $1.4 million is to be distributed to Pennsylvanians enrolled in the Farmers' Market Nutrition Program (FMNP) during the months of July and August.

"This innovative program provides nutritionally-at-risk mothers and children with coupons to buy fresh fruits and vegetables from more than 280 farmers' markets across the commonwealth," said Brosius. "It is a wonderful opportunity to promote better health and increase support for Pennsylvania's farmers' markets."

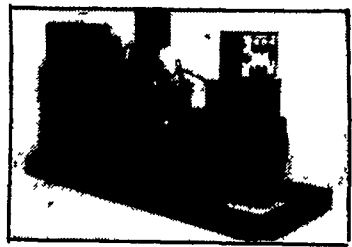

As a pilot program in 1988, FMNP served only two counties in Pennsylvania. This year it is expected to serve more than 100,000 participants in all 67 counties and will provide additional sales for the over 400 participating vendors.

"Federal dietary guidelines recommend that one should eat at least five servings a day of fruit and vegetables," Brosius said. "Programs like these help to ensure participants eat a balanced diet, putting them on the path to a healthier lifestyle."

Expectant mothers, nursing mothers, and children ages three to five, enrolled in the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants and Children (WIC) are encouraged to apply.

Eligible individuals should contact their local WIC office or call 1-800-WIC-WINS for more information.

"Concrete Walls Is Our Only Business"

For the past six years, Mohn has maintained the Papa Farm. He cares for about 60 acres of pasture for the Angus commercial herd.

Two challenges that he met head-on were learning to maintain a clean and dry watering area and picking exactly the right kind of grass for the lanes.

Mohn spoke about his recent purchase of several concrete pre-fab swine floor slats from a local supplier to use as floor for pasture watering tanks. Because of the shaley, easily erodible ground at the crowded watering location, it was difficult to manage what amounted to a "mudhole."

So Mohn purchased two 1,500-pound concrete slabs (the material was classified as seconds by the supplier) for $30 a piece.

"I think it's going to do what I want it to do," said Mohn, in keeping the area clean and accessible to cattle.

Mohn indicated the importance of giving cattle a proper amount of crowding areas in the watering areas. "You may have to split the herd if necessary," he said.

Also, Mohn knew there was a problem with wear on the cattle 16-foot wide laneways. So he planted a Kentucky 31 tall fescue, mostly unpalatable to cattle.

"The grass is used in conservation waterways. It is unpalatable to the animals and is 'raspy' to their tongues, so they don't accept it," said Mena Hautau, Berks County agronomy agent who spoke at the walk. "It's used where areas get a lot of traffic to hold the ground in place."

With all the farm work, Mohn still tries to keep abreast of the Angus herd lines to keep the farm business viable. "Following a registered line is a full-time job," he admitted. "I don't have time to follow the bloodlines as close as I should."

Regardless, within the commercial herd are some purebred Angus heifers, several calves, one registered Angus bull, and six registered Angus cows.

In the past, Mohn, who has a degree in agronomy, purchased a "paddock mix" for the grazing farm. The mix contained mostly bluegrass/timothy seed and produced a fairly good stand — trouble is, it wouldn't provide the volume or tonnage to satisfy the cattle's fed requirements, according to Mohn.

"Stay away from paddock mixes," he told the producers. Instead, choose a grazing mix of clover, alfalfa, and fescue grasses. The cattle will choose which grasses they want to eat at a given time in their diet. Even orchardgrass "is still a good bread and butter grass" for pastures, he said.

This year, Mohn planted some "grazing maze" — corn for grazing — on four acres previously in hay.

The variety from Baldrige Hybrids in Nebraska was seeded in one two-acre parcel at 40,000 per acre, doubled back on 36-inch rows to form 18-inch rows. The other parcel was seeded at conventional 36-inch rows.

At the tour, producers watched cattle eat away at once was 5-foot tall corn, just before the tasseling stage, in a half-acre paddock. The cattle had taken most of the leaves off about two-thirds of the plants in the field in a two-hour grazing period. Mohn expected to take the cattle to the next paddock on a 36-hour rotation.

Mohn allows the cattle access to grass at the same time as the maze.

The grazing maze paddock was secure with a 5-strand polywire hooked to a 110-volt charger that was kicking out about 7,200 volts. "The cows have respect for that," said Mohn, who was more impressed with the polywire over the tape.

Mohn said he expects to disc the acres that are now in grazing maze with small grains in the fall.

The perimeter of the farm, bordering neighbor farms, is protected with a multiple wire high-tensile fence. "It's important for good neighbor relations," said Mohn.

To help himself with gate closure and opening, Mohn got rid of the chains and now uses gate latches (which cost about $18 apiece).

He also finds time to raise about 40-50 hogs per year for a quite successful freezer market. Also, the farm maintains some sheep and a successful (though small) chicken layer operation.

In addition, his wife, Karen, manages a successful dried flower and herb business, which is "doing well for us," said Brian.

"There are several things you can do to subsidize your beef income, if you want to stay in the business," said Mohn.

About 30 producers and agri-industry representatives visited the Papa Farm in Bethel Tuesday evening for a grazing tour, which included a grazing maze.

Tour members walk up the 16-foot lanes between pastures.

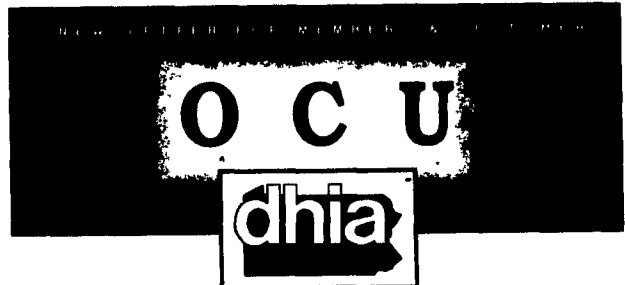

About four acres of maze are used for grazing at the Papa Farm. The beef cattle enjoy the leaves and will eat some of the stalk.

Brian Mohn uses a five-strand polywire for the grazing maze paddocks.

Using two 1,500-pound hog slats, the watering area is kept clean and clear of mud.

Call 1-800-DHIA for information. Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association, DHIA Service Center, Orchard Road, University Park, PA 16802

MICHAEL O'CONNOR
Penn State Extension
Dairy Reproduction
UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — In order to maintain a profitable calving interval with a good conception rate or to improve reproductive performance, the herd manager must be aware of the herd's profile of reproductive status, how the situation compares to the optimum and where the strengths and weaknesses exist. The Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association (Pa.DHIA) Reproductive Management Report and the Herd Summary II Report provide reproductive data that is critical to monitoring reproductive performance.

These reports were revised several years ago to incorporate reproductive information and statistics as recommended by the American Association of Bovine Practitioners and the dairy core parameters subcommittee on reproductive records.

This system is complete and provides relevant information.

To effectively evaluate a reproductive program, both cows currently in the herd, and cull cows should be included.

The Herd Summary II Report summarizes reproductive data for first, second, third, or even greater lactation groups, as well as those cows culled during the previous 12 months. A summary of the entire herd is also provided.

In addition, the Reproductive Management Report provides information on individual cows and a summary of reproductive groups — pregnant cows, cows bred but not yet confirmed pregnant, cows open more than 60 days, but not serviced, and the breeding herd averages. Thus the performance of groups can be evaluated.

No single reproductive index adequately describes the reproductive performance of the herd.

For example, calving interval is not the absolute measurement of reproductive performance. A herd may have an acceptable calving interval with a large number of services per conception or an excessive reproductive culling rate, neither of which are profitable.

Calving interval is influenced by several components such as interval to first service, heat detection rate and conception rate. The information to calculate these is available on the DHIA report.

For example, conception rate is the inverse of services per conception (1 divided by services per conception).

By analyzing each of these components one can determine the weak link contributing to a less than desirable calving interval.

A common mistake in reviewing records is to focus on averages and fail to look at the distribution of cows around that average.

The DHIA summary provides the distribution of cows by various categories of days open (<60, 60-89, 90-119, 120-149 and > 149); number of cows with one, two, three, or four or more services; and the distribution of intervals between breedings.

There are several other important reproductive indices listed on the DHIA reports which will provide clues to potential problem areas.

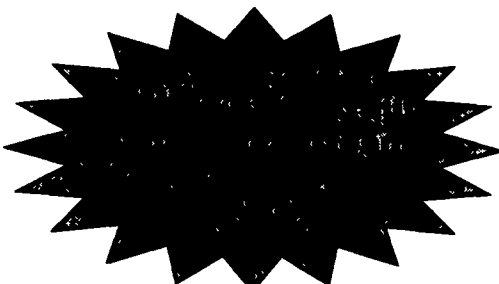

When all the data is critically examined, the management team should be able to determine the strong and weak points of the system.

Certain parameters such as first service, conception rate, overall conception rate, interval to first service, pregnancy rate and percent cows pregnant by 120 days could be posted monthly so that the staff could routinely monitor the situation.

Accurate records are critical to the management team when attempting to diagnose problems in reproductive management and build efficiency into the dairy operation.

Riley Elected President Of Southern Ag Association

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Lewis R. Riley was elected president of the Southern Association of State Departments of Agriculture (SASDA) at their recent annual meeting in Virginia. As a result, Maryland will host the 1997 SASDA Meeting, now scheduled for June 7-11, 1997, in Annapolis. SASDA represents the secretaries, directors and/or commissioners of agriculture in 15 Southern states plus Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

"It is certainly an honor for me to be asked by my colleagues to head SASDA for the coming year. We all have a common interest in seeing our agriculture industries compete successfully in the global marketplace which means prosperity at home and a solid agriculture industry as we move toward the next century. Of course, I am particularly looking forward to showing my colleagues the rich diversity of Maryland agriculture when we host the meetings next June," said Riley.

The Historic Inns of Annapolis will be the headquarters for the annual meeting that will include discussions of agricultural, marketing and environmental issues as well as a tour of Maryland agricultural operations. SASDA last held their meetings in Maryland in 1986.

Dairy Fitting Contest Learning Experience

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) - The Lancaster County 4-H dairy fitting contest was held for the second year on the night preceding the annual 4-H dairy show. Event organizer Larry Kennel hopes the event will become a tradition. Kennel said youths are not taught how to fit their animals, and then when they get older and are in stiffer competition, professional fitters take over the work. But if young people were given the opportunity to learn over the course of their involvement in 4-H, they could become as good in fitting their own show animals as the professionals.

Thus the 4-H contest has become a reason to learn. And learning may be more important than winning, but winners were still selected. First a showmanship contest was held to narrow the field down to four contestants in each of the two divisions, senior and junior. These contestants then had one hour to clip and primp their heifers into fit presentations for Tom McCauley, local Holstein breeder and showman from Elizabethtown.

In the junior division, Jeremy Meck, 14, was named the winner. Last year Jeremy came in third. He is the son of Ronald and Joyce Meck, Denver, and is in the eighth grade at Cocalico Middle School.

Marsha Balmer, 17, daughter of Clete and Jean Balmer, Manheim, won the senior division. Marsha is a junior at Manheim Central High School.

Both winners received a new cow clippers from Monsanto, who sponsored the event and was represented by Don Gard.

Other winners also had choices of prizes in order of their placing. In the junior division, second, Lindsey Howard, and third, Timothy Donough, both of Willow Street.

Senior division, 2nd, Zackary Meck, Denver; 3rd, Joe Best, Holtwood; and 4th, Elizabeth Smith, Denver.

The Lancaster 4-H dairy show was held the next day, and the Lancaster County Holstein open show was held Thursday.

4-H/FFA Swine, Sheep Show July 30

ARENDTSTVILLE (Adams Co.) — Adams County 4-H and FFA members are busy getting ready for the 13th annual swine and sheep show and sale, scheduled Tuesday, July 30 at the South Mountain Fairgrounds.

More than 80 hogs and 35 lambs will be shown in market classes with a champion and reserve selected for each species. In addition, the 4-H and FFA members will compete in senior, intermediate, and junior fitter/showman classes for each species. A top individual will be named in each fitter/showman class. The swine show starts at 8 a.m. on July 30 with the sheep show at 11 a.m.

All hogs and lambs at the show will be sold Tuesday evening, July 30, at competitive bid auction. This is an ideal opportunity for anyone to purchase quality pork or lamb for the freezer. Interested buyers bid the price per pound they desire for an animal they select, and the animal will auctioned to the highest bidder. Leaders and members will try to arrange transportation to a local butcher. After the animal is sold, the buyer may give specific instructions to the butcher for processing and preparation. The sheep sale begins at 7 p.m. and swine sale begins at 7:45 p.m.

Patrons unable to attend the sale may give a bid to a high school vo-ag instructor or Terri Packard at the Adams County Extension Office, (717) 334-6271 or 624-4525.

West Virginia Girl Has Champion At Somerset Show

GAY BROWNLEE

Somerset Co. Correspondent
MEYERSDALE (Somerset Co.) — Melinda Thomas, 16, of Bruceton Mills, W.Va. could see beforehand that C Shore-View HI Pansy, her senior 3-year old cow, was blessed with a lot of good dairy character. But ... could she be a champion?

After all, the Somerset District Holstein Show was to be Pansy's summer debut. And the competition would be tight with other fine cows also being shown.

Still, Pansy had an undeniably good udder, lots of open rib and was tall. "She was skinny. Like she was putting her whole body into making milk," observed Melinda, who's a whiz at girls softball and tackles any field position assigned to her.

So Pansy's "grand champion" selection by judge Chris Hill, Mt. Airy, Md., was exciting news for the daughter of Lowell and Phyllis Thomas who is showing for the eighth year.

"I really enjoy showing. I guess you could call it my little hobby," she says, mentioning, as well, her enjoyment of horseback riding and pencil drawing.

Unlike her mother, Melinda prefers farm work to house work, be it barn or field, and will do whatever she's asked to do. "She likes the house," Melinda says of her mom, "and I like the barn."

The Thomas dairy averages some 150 head of milk cows

although recently, the number has risen to 175, according to Lowell, who sells to Fikes Dairy in Uniontown.

Hanover-Hill Inspiration is Pansy's sire. Her dam is Crasdale Roland Patricia. Shore-View Holsteins was the breeder.

Delvin Mast, Grantsville, Md. was the owner-breeder of Scenic-Vista Linc Candy, the reserve grand champion. The senior three-year old's sire is Hannoverhill Lincoln and her dam is Scenic-Vista Mandingo Candy.

She was also the best animal bred and owned.

There were two Guernsey breed animals at the Somerset County Junior Holstein Show. At right is Justin Kaufman with the grand champion and Eric Murray with the reserve grand champion.

GAY BROWNLEE

Somerset Co. Correspondent
MEYERSDALE (Somerset Co.) — It was a close call between the grand champions of the Jersey and Holstein breeds, but type judge Steve Shaw of Williamsburg was won over by the 4-year-old Jersey, Roses Hermitage Missy, owned by 13-year-old Wendy Jo Rose of Hollspopple, when he named the supreme champion at the Somerset County Junior Dairy Show recently.

"There's a tremendous pair of udders on these cows," Shaw told the crowd, "but the 4-year-old ... I just love the front end," he said, as the shorter brownish cow and the big black and white one stood side by side. He shared the reasoning behind his decision.

"The bloom and freshness of the Jersey qualifies her as the supreme champion," he stated.

Rebob Duncan Hermitage-ET and Roses Beau Megan are Missy's sire and dam. The breeder is Shallow Run Farm in New Florence.

Wendy, the daughter of Joel and June Rose, has a sister Jessica and a brother, Brian.

Joshua Lynn VanTassel's 3-year-old Jersey, named Tasha's Dunker Tara, was the Jersey reserve grand champion.

The Friedens area young man is the 14-year-old son of Ernest and Kimborly VanTassel.

Although her senior 2-year-old grand champion Holstein — Milbro Highlight Carmel — almost, but not quite, took "supreme," Julie Miller still had a banner day. That's because her senior 3-year-old — Gor-Wood-D Warden Faraday — was the Holstein breed reserve grand champion.

The 14-year-old daughter of Mark and Martha Miller of Boswell had more ribbons than she had hands to handle them.

But it was worth it to hear the judge say about her grand champion: "I love this Holstein. You won't beat the frame on that 2-year-old."

Adam Lee Coleman of Berlin, with his senior champion Brown Swiss named Four D Heidi Erica, was the proud owner of the Brown Swiss grand champion.

The 14-year-old son of Phillip and Lee Ann Coleman of Berlin took first last year at states in the Brown Swiss breed, and Coleman wouldn't mind sensing deja vu with his 4-year-old, in 1996.

Nathan Tressler, 17, of Somerset had the Brown Swiss reserve grand champion with a senior 3-year-old named IE Tresslers Molly.

His parents are Jack and Sue Tressler.

The Guernsey breed was represented by two animals. Shaw said, "Even though our Guernseys are lacking in number, they are not lacking in quality."

So he appointed the winter calf of Justin Carl Kaufman, 10, one of Allen and Gloria Kaufman's three children, as the grand champion. Her name is Prides Veve.

The family is from Friedens.

Eric D. Murray's spring yearling named Filmors Ednas Elsie was the Guernsey reserve grand champion.

Murray, 15, is the son of Tim and Janet Murray of Salisbury.

The junior dairy show's early date was a new thing for members of the various 4-H clubs and FFA chapters in the county.

Usually held during the week of the Somerset County Fair in mid-

Julie Miller stands between her grand champion and reserve grand champion Holstein cows at the Somerset County Junior Holstein Show, held on July 16.

August, the date was moved up so kids could quality their animals for the combined FFA and 4-H regional dairy show set for August 2 in Martinsburg, Blair County.

Of the three breeds, 31 of the 82 Holsteins, 17 of the 33 Jerseys, and 24 of the Brown Swiss became qualified.

Mary Ann Keith from Everett, Bedford County judged showmanship.

Larry Lohr was the ringmaster.

The event was sponsored by the Daily American.

Following is a partial list of winners:

HOLSTEIN

Spring Calf: 1. Anthony Sharp; 2. Matt Mosholder; 3. Justin Rohrbaugh.
Winter Calf: 1. Katie McWilliams; 2. Matt Mosholder; 3. Cory N. Stern.

The Mast operation, with some 190 milk cows, 35 to 40 dry cows, and 200 young stock, keeps an entire family on its toes. Between doing chores in their own and a barn they rent, which houses 56 head of milking cows, they don't need to ask where the time goes. It's obvious.

Delvin and his wife Sharon, their sons Dale and Wayne plus daughters-in-law, Darlene and Marla, have very little time to squander.

Of itself, the Mast farm is comprised of some 268 acres with the tillable part limited to 150. Another 300 acres, that they rent, however, are used for tillable purposes.

Jeff Bender, a hired man, does the morning milking at 4:30 a.m.

Cove-Run Farm, belonging to the Oren and Fanny Bender family of Accident, Garrett County, Maryland, with some 11 owned and bred animals, waltzed away with the purple banners proclaiming Cove-Run as the show's premier breeder and exhibitor.

Gor-Wood-D Flip Calypso, a junior two-year old owned by Ben Miller, Boswell, was the junior grand champion in the senior show.

His sister, Julie Miller, also from Boswell had the junior reserve grand champion in Milbro Highlight Carmel, a senior two-year old.

Dan Ream, Markleton, had the best animal bred and owned with Pineybrook Skybuck Jag, born on March 10, 1993 and shown in the dry-cow four years and under class.

Ream was also the junior premier breeder and exhibitor.

Committee members were Mark Ream, Dave Stahl, John Fox, Joyce Ringler and Mark Sipe.

Bob Brown was the announcer and Carol Brown was responsible for the catalog.

Learn To Improve Calf, Heifer, Dairy Profitability

ITHACA, N.Y. — Did you know that changing the average age at first calving from 30 months to 24 months can save a 100-cow dairy farm more than $25,000 a year?

Do you consider the impact of various calf and heifer housing options on labor requirements?

Are contract raising, pasturing, or greenhouse barns being considered for your replacement program?

The newly available publication, "Calves, Heifers, and Dairy Profitability," NRAES-74, has detailed information on these topics and much more.

"Calves, Heifers, and Dairy Profitability" is the 378-page proceedings from a national conference where 29 experts from across the country provided their knowledge and experience about planning and operating profitable and efficient replacement programs.

The proceedings focus on the latest information about raising high-producing replacement heifers at a minimum cost. Its 35 papers are divided into nine sections: heifer growth and development, calf and heifer housing, labor, contract raising, pasture management, calf nutrition, heifer nutrition, reproduction, and calf and heifer health.

Many important topics concerning heifer raising are covered, including the economics of heifer raising programs, optimum growth rates for heifers, greenhouse barns, building and remodeling housing facilities, organizing business personnel, dairy herd replacement options, fencing and watering systems, colostrum and colostrum management, nutrient requirements and programs, systems approach to reproduction, and health programs.

Leadership for the conference was provided by The Pennsylvania State University. The conference was sponsored by the Northeast Regional Agricultural Engineering Service (NRAES).

"Calves, Heifers, and Dairy Productivity," NRAES-74, is available for $30 from NRAES, Cooperative Extension, 152 Riley-Robb Hall, Ithaca, N.Y., 14853-5701. Postage and handling are included for U.S. orders only; please call for exact postage and handling costs for foreign orders. Orders outside the U.S. must be prepaid in U.S. funds. No-Till Vegetables Trap Soil Moisture, Stem Weeds, Keep Harvest Clean

Morse spoke about the no-till transplanting equipment that he helped develop and refine for the past five years. The device, which can adapt to any finger or carousel-type transplanter, is called the Sub-surface Tiller-Transplanter, or SST-T for short.

Morse, who wore a baseball cap with the inscription "Say Yes To No-Till," said that the no-till approach to transplanting vegetables began with a producer who wanted to grow cabbage in a county south of Blacksburg, Va., on a slope that was prone to severe erosion. Researchers started a hand-transplanting trial with a cover mulch, which worked fine, but a commercial, high-volume applicator was needed. This led to the development and refinement of SST-T for commercial use.

Steve Groff has about nine acres of no-till vegetables this year. They include one acre of broccoli and eight acres of tomatoes (three acres fresh market and five acres commercial). The tomatoes are grown using a hairy vetch cover, pioneered by Dr. Abdul-Baki, who developed the cropping system at the USDA-ARS Beltsville Agricultural Research Center.

Before using the transplanter system on broccoli, Groff uses a rolling stalk chopper to flatten and crimp the mulch cover (Groff uses a combination German millet and forage soybean mixture).

The two-component system, according to Morse, uses a subsurface tiller which works like a deep-tiller to loosen the ground underneath the mulch. Then a transplanter, finger or carousel type, can be used to insert the plug plants. Two shoes then roll over top of the soil, packing it around the plug.

While some of the millet/soybean cover may recover after rolling and crimping, the weeds are kept at a level that they don't affect potential yield. On the Groff farm, a demonstration made use of the stalk chopper and the transplanter. The broccoli was planted in rows 18 inches apart with 18 inches between plants.

The advantage to using broccoli with this method is the faster canopy, allowing the natural mulch to break down and retain moisture while stemming weed pressure.

The SST-T has been used successfully with 16 different crops, including most species of cabbage, in addition to broccoli, cauliflower, tomatoes, potatoes, cucumber, watermelons, and pumpkins. All vegetable crops seem to work well with this no-till approach, according to Morse.

Morse worked on a successful no-till trial using potatoes.

The only drawbacks to using the SST-T and no-till material are that there are some concerns, because of the potential for moisture retention, about slugs (not experienced at the Groff farm) and the fact that mulches cool the soil. As a result, according to Morse, no-till works well with late-planted vegetables.

The SST-T has been modified over the years so that it is a one-pass machine. In one pass over the field, the tiller breaks up the cover, deep tills, transplants, fertilizes, and even lays a drip irrigation line. This helps keep soil compaction down.

Also, using no-till reduces the amount of weed seed that can germinate in the soil. This produces what Morse refers to as a "stale seedbed," ideal for growing any type of vegetable crop.

"Pumpkins are a particularly good crop for no-till systems," said Morse.

Morse said that Virginia farmers have expressed interest in the technology mostly because it allows them to work the fields and harvest when they choose. He has seen good results, too — less early blight with tomatoes (soil does not splash onto the leaves) and less late blight with tomatoes and potatoes.

"We encourage people to give it a try, even a little bit, say a half-acre or so," said Morse. "Work with county agents and growers such as Steve Groff."

Groff recently purchased the rolling stalk chopper for use on all the vegetable acres.

"The beauty of the machine is that it is fast and easy to use," said Groff. The transplanter was rented from the Keystone Soil and Water Conservation Society for $10 per acre.

To rent the machine, for producers in Lancaster, contact the county conservation district at 299-5361; for York producers, contact the district at 755-2966; and for other counties, contact Ron Phelps at the Pocono RC&D at (717) 586-1019.

Also at the field day, trials included the advantages of narrow row corn, no-till soybeans, no-till tomatoes, early tomatoes, processing tomatoes, and no-till pumpkins.

Chester 4-H Beef Club Holds Show

GLENMOORE (Chester Co.) — Chester County 4-H Beef Club members recently held their first steer and heifer show of the season at the Devereux barns in Glenmoore.

The show this year featured the largest Angus breeding division ever. In the March heifer class, local winners included 1) Kasey McAllister 2) Eliza Walton 3) Bennett Walton. In the April heifer class local winners included 1) Eliza Walton. The September heifer class local winners included 1) Bennett Walton. Grand Champion Angus heifer went to Kasey McAllister Reserve grand champion Angus heifer went to Eliza Walton.

Judge for the day was Brian Beam of Elverson. In judging the market steers some of the requirements he's looking for is how much muscling they have, the size of the steer's frame, and how lean in fat they are since most Americans are eating a diet that's lower in fat.

In the market steer division class winners included Class 1 1) Jonathan Howe 2) Sara Howe. Class 2 1) Sara Howe 2) Jonathan Marsch 3) Ed Boback. Class 3 1) Nathan Howe 2) Julia Howe 3) John Lewis. Class 4 1) Phillip McAllister 2) Jamel Chatman.

Class 5 1) Nathan Howe 2) Bennett Walton. Class 6 1) Kasey McAllister 2) Kasey McAllister 3) Adam Byrne. Class 7 1) Becky Byrne. Grand champion steer went to Kasey McAllister and reserve grand champion steer went to Nathan Howe.

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — On July 9, the Ephrata Area Young Farmers held an event at Harold Martin's Farm. The speaker for this event was Derek Pritts, a state conservation officer, who did a presentation on Ginseng, which is traditionally known as an Asian herb.

American ginseng is one of this country's best kept secrets, according to Mr. Pritts, who has more than 30 years experience growing and hunting ginseng.

The seeds of ginseng are as large as a sweet corn seed and should be planted between August 1 and 30, in a shaded area, for best results. (A recommendation for planting would be in a forestry area, although artificial shade is acceptable.) The best time to dig for the ginseng root is when the plant is full of berries.

Mr. Pritts informed us that 95 percent of ginseng that is grown in the U.S. will be shipped to Asia to be used as a medical herb. Asians value this plant so much that they are willing to pay top dollar.

For farmers who might be interested in knowing what kind of profit this herb generates ... a pound of ginseng can bring an estimated value of $550 per pound ($35 per oz.). If you would be interested in purchasing a copy of Derek Pritts' book, you may contact him at (717) 653-8187, or write to him at PO Box 182, Mount Joy, PA 17552.

Our next Ephrata Area Young Farmers event is to be held on Tuesday, August 20, at Fred Weaver's Farm (22 Camp Rodgers Road, Ephrata). Mr. Bob Anderson, from the Penn State Extension Office will be presenting a program on "Farm Safety and Emergency Aid." As always, all Ephrata Area Young Farmer events are open to and free to the public.

because all dairy receipts are put into a reserve account.

"It's the only system designed like that," Paris said.

"NFO offers a bright future for independent producers who use the NFO as the catalyst to take advantage of volume marketing and collective bargaining," said James Buehow, regional director, who told about signing up three new long-term contracts in the past months for buyers.

that buyers have also offered higher premiums to entice farmers to remain with them. This is good according to Paris because farmers can negotiate for a better contract. NFO membership fee is $75 annually.

Paris said that NFO members are protected with disaster insurance, and trust protect check. NFO bylaws assures that even if NFO would go bankrupt, farmers would still receive payment for the milk.

Richard Enck, the senior member of our staff, has been a part of Penn Jersey for nearly 25 years and we're proud of that! We thought his birthday was a good occasion to recognize him. Dick has sold countless Harvestore® structures to many farmers, and his love of agriculture, commitment to his customers, honesty and integrity are well-known in Lancaster and Chester counties. Dick's attitude, work habits and ambition are an inspiration to the rest of us.

We won't tell you how old he is, but he first voted in FDR's election!

The Vision System Receiver features a differential GPS receiver designed by Rockwell for American soldiers.

THE VISION SYSTEM™

The vision system mapping and analysis software will let you or your dealer analyze all the information collected by your system and all the information brought in from outside sources (soil type, weather, variety, etc.).

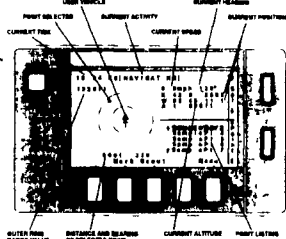

Example: "Show me areas in field 24 where yield is between 100 bu/a and 150 bu/a and organic matter is less than 3% and potassium level is less than 100 lbs/a and phosphorus level is less than 60 lbs/a and pH is less than 6.0". You can then write a prescription to apply a material or set a seed rate whenever your equipment is in this defined area of field 24.

The vision system will let you:

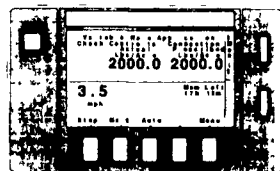

In the combine

Log your ag leader yield monitor data and tie it to real time global position information to create yield maps that will surprise you.

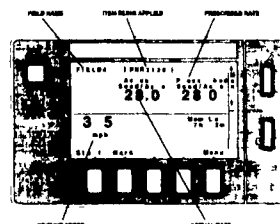

On the four wheeler

Navigate to exact points in your fields to take soil samples where you have identified unexplained changes in yield.

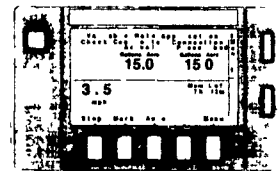

In the spreader truck

Apply lime, or dry or liquid fertilizer at different rates as you move across your field to improve efficiency and reach yield goals.

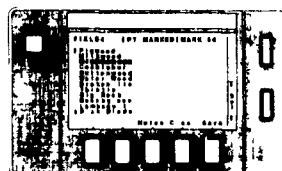

In the tractor

Plant seed at variable rates as you move down the row to areas with different yield potential.

In the sprayer

Apply herbicides and pesticides at variable rates to put them where you need them at environmentally and economically sound rates.

On any vehicle

Mark and map any weeds, insects, stump holes, broketiles, wet spots, or anything else at any time during any operation.

On the four wheeler

Map your farm with field boundaries, houses, roads, ditches, creeks and compute appropriate acres and distances.

Like father, like son is a repeat of history in the Funk family. Both Curtis and his son, Jay, were 30 years old when they signed papers to take over the family farm, a bicentennial farm in Manor Township. Curtis and his wife Betty no longer live on the farm but continue to help out as needed. Jay, Pam and their two daughters milk 50 cows and crop farm 100 acres.

Son Takes Over Bicentennial Farm

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.)

— As the only son growing up a family farm that has been in the family for more than 200 years, it seemed natural that Jay Funk would follow in his family's footsteps.

"But we didn't want him to take over the farm just because other people expected him to do so. We knew you don't plan children's lives. It doesn't work if their heart isn't in it," Jay's mother Betty said. "In fact, we tried to discourage it. We encouraged him to go to school or to try a different type of work."

Instead, Jay insisted from tod-lerhood to his present 30 years of age that he wanted to farm.

And his parents are quite proud he chose that route.

"Few sons want to stay in farming nowadays, with the long hours and low pay," the elder Funks said of their insistence that Jay realize the drawbacks of farming in the '90s.

The Funks are delighted that their son realizes the benefits of farming cannot be weighted by mere economics.

"The farm is a great place to raise a family," Jay said.

Recently, Jay, his wife Pam, and Jay's parents, Betty and Curtis, spread out the historical documents about the farm. From the light in their eyes and the lilt in their voices, it was evident that the younger Funks share the enthusiasm of their parents for the rich heritage of farming.

The framed sheepskin deed shows the farm was surveyed in 1741 and deeded in 1758. Research shows that Thomas and Richard Penn deeded 237 acres and 23 perches to Martin Funk for 119 pounds, 12 shillings, and 6 pence and a half penny for every acre quadrate payable the first day of March of every years.

Additional facts uncovered arouse the Funks' curiosity for details, but little is known about some documents uncovered that show that over the years two women, who were evicted from the farm, a tobacco packing business was established, a transfer of the property for $1 to Richard Martin and back again to Christian H. Funk on the same day, and receipts that show an older lady's dependence on ladanum, an opium drug used in the late 1800s.

A transfer in tracts of land appeared numerous times throughout the 200 years, but the 100 acres on which the Funks lived followed the sequence of being transferred from Martin Funk to his son Martin Jr. to Amos, to Christian who transferred to his son Christian, to Curtis, and now to Jay.

The Funks have copies of wills and deeds that show heirs who purchased the property or others that signed off their claims so that it was free from other family members to retain it.

When several sons were born within the family, it was not always clear how it was decided who should be given the opportunity to buy the farm, but Martin Funk's will stated that 100 acres was to be sold to whichever one of his three sons were willing to give the highest price.

Although Jay is the only son in his family, he has two sisters who farm with their husbands. The siblings include Lois married to James Harnish, Janet married to Mark Charles, Joanne, and Janie married to Leon Horst.

The elder Funks said that they cautioned their son to make sure he chose the right wife if he had intentions of farming as a career.

"The right wife can make or break a farm," Betty said.

Jay said that his parents' advice had little influence on him while he was dating, but he is full of praise for his wife's help on the farm.

"She's by my side. It makes a difference," he said.

Pam was raised on a tobacco farm, but she quickly made the transition to dairy farm life and now milks and feeds cows whenever needed.

During the 200 years, the farm has changed as each generation adapted it to his or her era.

"Dad did a lot to make the farm modern. He probably made the most changes," Jay said of the seven generations who owned the farm.

The barn, believed to be built in 1758, had to have the bay built out to pass for milk inspections in later years. Curtis erected six buildings, which includes a free stall barn, a heifer pen, a bunk feeder, and three silos.

Before Curtis took over the farm, he did try off-the-farm jobs for several years, but was happy to purchase the farm from his parents in 1961. He dropped tobacco raising in 1965 and added more cows to compensate for the loss of tobacco income.

Jay said that he began accumulating his own herd when he was a ninth grade student at Manor FFA, where he won a chain animal. In 1990, Jay purchased the remaining cows and equipment. He also rented the farm that year.

One of the log houses on the farm has been converted into a two-family dwelling. Jay and Pam lived in one of those for six years. Two years ago they moved to the other house on the farm, which they have enjoyed fixing up.

Jay has his own dreams for the farm. He'd like to make things more modern, increase the herd, and add additional land.

The family tries to take off about every sixth weekend.

"But it's hard to find someone responsible who can just take over," Jay said. Although his dad often fills in as a backup person, both families like to spend time together at their cabin in Lycoming County.

In addition to helping on the farm, Pam enjoys decorating the farm house. She collects Longaberger baskets, does cross stitch, enjoys talking with friends, "and I love my baby ladies," she said of the couple's two daughters.

The elder Funks said that they had no qualms about passing the farm onto their son.

"It was time to change horses," Curtis said. "It hasn't been hard because we always feel welcome to come back to the farm."

Curtis is employed part time on a poultry farm in York County, but he often fills in for his son when Jay goes hunting or during the busy season.

Betty works part time at a nearby retirement home, volunteers at a reuse shop, and keeps a large garden on the farm.

Both are active in church activities and in a senior citizens group. As grandparents, they thoroughly enjoy keeping their grandchildren. The couple has also gone on numerous trips to various places.

Betty researched the farm's history and said that the courthouse was very helpful in assisting her in the research.

Betty said, "We consider ourselves lucky and are thankful to God that He allowed us to be stewards."

Jay Funk and his wife Pam are the seventh generation to take over the family farm in Manor Township. The couple with their two daughters, Katalyn, 5, and Lyndsay, 3, are enjoying redecorating the log house that is believed to have been built before 1741.

Betty and Curtis Funk are surrounded by their children and grandchildren, who include daughter Janie, wife of Leon Horst with children Darien, Renee, and Brian; daughter Janice married to Mark Charles and children Melissa, Kristen, and Duane; daughter Lois married to Jim Harnish with children Sonja and Andy; daughter JoAnne; and son Jay married to Pam with daughters Katalyn and Lynsay.

KAREN BUTLER

Maryland Correspondent

JEFFERSON, Md. — "First we must teach the people about agriculture. They know what farmers are, but do they know what we do? If I could tell them about my experiences growing up on a farm, they'd learn to appreciate the farmer and agriculture," said an enthusiastic Melissa Willard when asked how she would promote agriculture.

And it looks like she will have plenty of opportunity to do just that; judges selected Melissa as Frederick County Farm Queen during this year's annual contest before the evening was over.

Strong attendance and a field of seven outstanding contestants highlighted the 65th Farm Queen contest, held at the Community Center in Jefferson. The pageant is sponsored by Frederick County Farm Bureau and the Farm Bureau Women's Committee. The Young Farmers also give a cash donation to each contestant.

Emily O'Hara, the 16-year-old daughter of Edward and Kay O'Hara of Frederick, was named first runner-up. Second runner-up was Diane Ogg, also 16, and the daughter of Donald Jr. and Brenda Ogg of Frederick.

Other contestants included Dana Bollinger of Thurmont, Brianne Myers of Frederick, Amy Ramsburg of Walkersville, and Jennifer Uebel of Jefferson. Each entrant in the contest received a lovely commemorative bucket celebrating the Frederick County Farm Bureau's 75th anniversary, and a T-shirt from the Farm Queen contest committee.

This year for the first time, each contestant will have an opportunity to represent the county at one or more special events, explained Master of Ceremonies David Eigenbrode. This is a change in the way the program is run; in past years only the winner or her alternates could fulfill the Queen's duties. Now seven articulate, energetic spokespersons for agriculture will be circulating around the county at different events.

"I hope to do well as a representative for Frederick County Farm Bureau!" exclaimed an excited Melissa, the 18-year-old daughter of Dennis and Peggy Willard, after being honored. She said she was surprised by her win. In fact, she already had a commitment to attend the state president's conference for FFA in Washington, D.C., during an upcoming Farm Queen promotion, so most likely a runner-up will attend the promotion in her place.

Representing Maryland as the State FFA Secretary is just one activity among many for this busy Foxville teen. She is currently a Youth Council representative for the Rocky Ridge Progressives 4-H club, and served as president for the club in the past. Melissa recently went to Kansas City, Missouri as a member of the Maryland Livestock Judging Team. The team won at the state level in 1995. She is also involved with the Shorthorn Association. For the past two years, she has been a Shorthorn ambassador at the state level.

Melissa has a reputation for showing excellent steers at the County fair. Last year she took home ribbons for the champion Crossbred, which was a home-bred, champion Shorthorn, and reserve champion Limousin heifer, which was also bred on the farm. She also raises and exhibits cross-bred hogs.

She finds time for concert and jazz band, where she is the low brass sectional leader, plays piano, and is involved in marching band. In addition, she is active in her church.

And, she fits all this in around her farm chores. Her family, consisting of her parents Dennis and Peggy, Melissa, and her brother, Dennis, operates a 400-acre beef and grain farm outside of Smithsburg. The Willards have a cow/calf operation of about 140 head, mostly Limousin. Approximately one-third of the herd are registered, according to Melissa's father.

At home, the Catoclin High School graduate is responsible for feeding, watering, exercising, and cleaning the pens of her show animals. She teds and rakes hay, and hauls and unloads wagons. She also has to keep up with domestic chores.

With Melissa applying her boundless enthusiasm and seemingly unending energy to the role of Farm Queen as she applies it to her other commitments, Frederick County should be well represented during the upcoming year.

Proud parents Peggy and Dennis Willard with their children Melissa and Dennis.

On Being a Farm Wife (and other hazards)

Joyce Bupp

You love 'em ... feed 'em ... provide a home ... give your affection ... and your time ... then they pick up and just leave, with barely a goodbye.

No, no, not the kids. The geese. With each successive year of nestlings, our Canada goose families seem to become more tame. Admittedly, I have some concern about that, since harm to them is most likely to come from that of the human-sourced sort.

Still, when you walk to the pond to see the newly-hatched babies, and the parents come proudly paddling in your direction to show off their offspring, it's tough to ignore them and turn away. Thus, once again, we had feathered moochers eager to gobble up our offerings.

For the first time ever, two families shared the pond area, one with four goslings and one pair with two infants. Terribly territorial, our prior goose parents had always chased off any other pretenders to their area.

These two families at least tolerated one another, although the dominant pair inevitably chased off the other family if they came too close when we were feeding them.

So, the Farmer would feed one family from one corner of the pier and I'd feed the other from the other corner. If you tried to feed them yourself, you had to alternate tossing feed in two directions — and that usually still didn't work — thus creating regular minor squabbles.

In a mere two months, the downy goslings that hatched out the first week of May had grown to adult size and feathering. We marveled again at how they change — literally — from day to day. First, tiny feathers begin to poke out and cover their down, then succeeding larger ones, as wing and tail growth took place. As their dull-beige-colored, peach-fuzzy coats grew sleeker, the adult coloring also came in.

And, while the goslings still had their infant voices when they were nearly full-grown, a sort of peeping-chirping combination, their necks turned a glossy black, they developed the classic white mask on their faces and long, shiny tail feathers covered the pristine white patch on their rumps.

All in a mere eight weeks. To grow so quickly, they spent most of each day poking around for tasty tidbits in the pond floor and among the water plants, grazing for tender grass shoots around the pond, or pulling up the tender shoots of oats and alfalfa planted this spring in the field next to the pond.

During those almost-rare times when they weren't eating, the geese lounged on the grass along the edge of the pond, sliding off into the safety of the water at any hint of danger. Apparent returnees from previous years who remembered the "system," the parent couples promptly led their babies into the water when we'd show up at the pond in late evening.

A simple "C'mon guys" brought them out of the cover of the weeds and tall grass on the distant side of the pond. But they would only respond to my voice. If anyone was at the pond when I wasn't, the geese kept their distance.

The dominant female was always the most tame of them all, and would eat from my hand, gently removing the food. And though I tried to not feed any of the babies that way, a few of the more aggressive ones quickly caught on. They were far less dainty eaters than their mothers and prescribed to that cliché about "biting the hand that feeds you."

Geese can inflict pain. Trust me. I finally kept my fingers out of the "kids" reach due to the pinch factor.

When we last saw our goose families, they were stretching and testing those long flight feathers, gearing up for that first burst of freedom into the air. And while we were away for a few days, the geese took wing and disappeared. The pond seems empty and lonely. G'bye guys. And good luck.

Peachy Fruits

Luscious peaches are in season. Did you know that one medium fresh peach has only 50 calories, no fat, and yet provides 210 milligrams of potassium, 3.3 grams dietary fiber, and 12 grams carbohydrates?

But watch those peach pits. The pits contain cyanogenic glucosides. When the chemical is soaked and softened in water, a toxic poison called hydrogen cyanide is released.

Cyanogenic glucosides are also found in the pits of almonds, lemons, limes, apples, pears, cherries, apricots, and prunes. The main concern is not with canning a few stone fruits with whole pits intact, but rather with the use of crushed pits that in recent years were sold as nutrition supplements.

Also included this week are some more blueberry recipes. These were past the deadline for last week's edition. Since the peach recipes are a bit sparse this week, there is room to print the blueberry recipes. Please try to make sure recipes are mailed in time to reach us by the deadline, because many times, late recipes are not printed.

The sun is brighter, the days are longer. As a result, nature is producing plump, sweet fruit that begs attention, not only for its beauty but for its nutritional value.

Here is a wonderful recipe from USA Rice Council. This delectable dessert uses nutritious, whole-grain brown rice.

Did you know that brown rice is non-allergenic and almost completely utilized by the body? Its healthful bran layer, which gives the rice a nut-like flavor, requires longer cooking time than white rice. Combined with peaches, cinnamon, nutmeg, and nuts, this delicious dessert will satisfy every age.

PEACH CRISP

2 cups cooked rice

1½ cups fresh peach chunks

¾ cup firmly packed brown sugar, divided

¾ cup whole wheat or all-purpose flour

½ teaspoon ground cinnamon

½ teaspoon ground nutmeg

¼ cup butter

¼ cup walnuts, chopped

Whipped cream or ice cream (optional)

Combine rice, peaches, and ½ cup sugar in buttered shallow 1½ -quart baking dish. Mix flour, remaining ½ cup sugar, cinnamon, and nutmeg in medium bowl; cut in butter until mixture is crumbly. Sprinkle flour mixture over rice. Sprinkle walnuts over flour mixture. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes. Serve warm with whipped cream or ice cream, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

Taking Time by Rebecca Escott

Checkbook Check-Up Time

When's the last time you gave your checkbook a check-up? Family finances need to occasionally be examined to see how healthy they are. Are you on track with your spending and saving practices? Are you truly working toward the priorities that you speak about?

Recently, I scanned my checkbook and began to add up monthly bills. When paid daily or monthly, expenses for your newspaper, computer on-line fee or cable TV seem small, but when added up over an extended period of time, consumers realize the amount of money devoted to items that may or may not be used.

I know from experience that other incidentals add up too. How much do you think you spend on greeting cards or "lunches out" over a year's time? How many times do you rent a video when a quick review of the TV channel listing would have given you a "free" movie that would have been just as good? Often families swear that they can't scrounge together $200 or $300 to do something important. Well a quick review of your expenses may reveal that there is a solution to your problem. By eliminating one regular expense and saving the money, you may be able to save that previously illusive amount of cash.

I like to use two principles of money management when I give my checkbook a check-up. First, I like to ask, "Is there something important to me and my family that I am not able to afford because I have spent money on this?"

Secondly, I ask does this purchase provide a good return on the investment? If I know I am only going to use a product one time, then I hesitate to spend a significant amount of money on it. However, if the purchase will be used many times, the cost per use drops and it becomes a wiser purchase.

My husband and I often talk about family finances in light of these two ideas. I remember wondering if we really should have spent several hundred dollars on mountain bikes. But each time we hop on the bikes whether it's in our own town, on the boardwalk, or at a state park, I know that we have enjoyed them well beyond the price spent. I also know that having the bikes has proved to be a money-free diversion. Instead of going to a movie or renting bikes, or spending money in other ways, we enjoy an already-paid-for item.

We use the same principle with our newspaper. When we are going to be away, we cancel the paper and have our account credited. Why pay for a service or item that you are not using? This may be a small amount of money, but the dollars can add up. Each family will have its own set of expenses and priorities. But all of us can evaluate our choices based on those two quick questions — "Can we not afford something important because we've spent our money on this instead?" and "How often will I be able to use this item? Is it truly worth the expense?"

I encourage you to take time this week, to review the expenses listed in your checkbook register. What do they say about your family's finances and the priorities you hold? Are you pleased? Do you find that the money you spend is really directed toward the projects/programs/needs that you consider most important? If not, begin today to make one change. Select one item from the check register that should be reduced or removed all together. Talk with other family members about the total cost per year spent on that item and how that money might be used in another, more important way. Then act on that discussion. It takes time, but you will feel more in control of your finances as a result of this simple check up.

Pennsylvania Food Products Promote Olympics

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania food products will be featured as part of a U.S. product promotion in more than 2,000 supermarkets in Germany during the Olympic Games in Atlanta.

Rewe, the second largest grocery store chain in Germany, is sponsoring the promotion with products supplied by S.B. Global, a Pennsylvania-based food exporter.

"This promotion of Pennsylvania food products in Germany is an example of the Ridge Administration's successful efforts to expand markets for all Pennsylvania products," said Agriculture

Secretary Charles C. Brosius. "Through companies like S.B. Global, quality Pennsylvania products are becoming known throughout the world."

Karl B. Brown, president of S.B. Global, attributes the agreement with Rewe directly to his participation in trade shows coordinated by the agriculture department.

Since taking office last year, Gov. Tom Ridge has worked to improve Pennsylvania's export performance as part of an overall strategy to retain and create jobs. To increase Pennsylvania's export power, Ridge earlier this year outlined a comprehensive action plan which includes a coordinated effort between the Agriculture Department and the Department of Community and Economic Development to promote the overseas marketing of food and industrial products, as well as service industries.

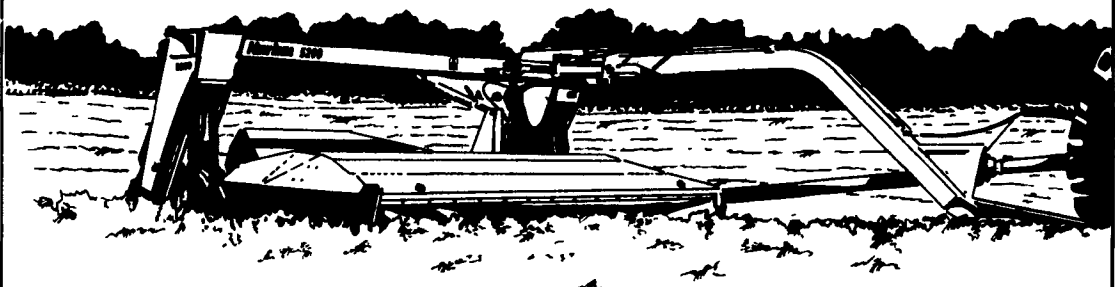

Hershey Foods International provided five of the products for the promotion, and Herr's of Nottingham provided three.

The Montgomery County company, founded in 1991, is a leading exporter of high-quality packaged food products. In 1995, it was recognized by Gov. Ridge with his Export Excellence Award. The company offers a wide variety of "branded" products, and has developed food products specifically for the export market. S.B. Global has representatives in London, Paris and Jakarta.

Brown noted that the promotion with Rewe will feature traditional supermarket displays, augmented by newspaper advertising and flyers. Among the 15 products featured in the "Olympic" salute, Hershey Foods and Herr's of Nottingham are the largest suppliers.

Many of the products were channeled through administration facilities in Harrisburg and Mechanicsburg.

ANSWER — After a reader requested a recipe for scones, we were inundated with recipes. Some of these were already printed but here are some more recipes. Scones, a specialty of Scotland, seem to be gaining in popularity in the states. Nola Brion of Liberty, Tioga County, writes that the name scone originally came from a parish in Perthshire, Scotland, which was the site of the historic abbey and palace where the kings of Scotland were crowned on the Stone of Destiny or Scone, which is now under the Coronation Throne in Westminster Abbey. A Quarryville reader wrote that scone is the contraction of the Scottish word schoonbrot, which means fine bread.

Oat Scones

1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
1 cup old-fashioned rolled oats
1/2 tablespoon salt
1/2 tablespoon baking soda
1 tablespoon sugar
1/2 cup shortening or oil
1/2 cup milk
Mix together dry ingredients. Add milk and oil, then mix with fork to soft dough. Roll out on floured surface to one-half-inch thickness. Cut in triangles, put on a greased cookie sheet, bake in preheated oven for 12-15 minutes or until browned. Makes 8-12 scones. (Golden raisins or sultanas can be added to the recipe).

Nola Brion
Liberty

Dropped Scones

4 cups self-rising flour
2 tablespoons corn syrup
1/2 teaspoon salt
3 heaping tablespoons sugar
2 eggs, beaten
1 cup milk or buttermilk
Put flour, sugar, salt, and warmed syrup into a mixing bowl, add the eggs and enough milk to make a dropping consistency like thick cream. Heat up the griddle and grease it. Drop the batter by tablespoons into pancake-like rounds, seeing that they do not touch. Turn over when little bubbles appear on top and the bottoms are golden brown and cooked on the other side. Cool on a clean dish towel or napkin and serve warm or at room temperature with butter and honey or jam. They will keep in a tin and can be reheated in a warm oven. Add 8 teaspoons baking powder if using plain flour.

Scones

Sift together in a large bowl:
1 1/2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
2 1/2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
1 tablespoon sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
Cut into these ingredients until the size of small peas, using a pastry blender or 2 knives:
1/2 cup cold butter
Beat in a separate bowl:
2 eggs
Reserve 2 tablespoons of the mixture. Add to the remainder and beat in:
1/2 cup cream
Make a well in the dry ingredients. Pour the liquid into it. Combine with a few swift strokes. Handle the dough as little as possible. Place it on a lightly floured board. Pat until 1/4 -inches thick. Cut with a knife into diamond shapes or biscuit sticks. Brush with reserved egg and sprinkle with salt or sugar. Bake about 15 minutes at 450 degrees. About 12 scones.
These are richer than ordinary biscuits because of the addition of cream and eggs. Fine with a light luncheon. Contributor writes: This is the best scone recipe I've found. Tastes as good as anything I've ever tasted in England or Canada. My friends and the people in my herb classes all rave about it.
Cold butter and cream are imperative! I shape it in a circle and cut it before I bake it, then it breaks apart easily afterward. Great warm or cold.

Sesame Orange Scones

1/2 cup sesame seeds
3 tablespoons grated orange rind
3 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
3 tablespoons light brown sugar
1 tablespoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup vegetable shortening
1 cup orange juice
3 tablespoons granulated sugar
Heat oven to 425 degrees. Grease baking sheet. Set aside 1 tablespoon sesame seeds and 1 tablespoon orange rind. In large bowl, combine flour, remaining sesame seeds and orange rind, the brown sugar, baking powder, and salt. With pastry blender or 2 knives, cut in shortening until mixture resembles coarse crumbs.
Reserve 1 tablespoon orange juice. Add remaining orange juice to dry ingredients and mix lightly with fork until mixture clings together and forms a soft dough.
Turn dough onto lightly floured surface and knead gently 5 or 6 times. Divide dough in half. With lightly floured rolling pin, roll one half of dough into a 7-inch round. Cut into 4 wedges. Repeat with remaining half of dough.
Place scones, 1-inch apart, on greased baking sheet. Pierce tops with tines of fork. In small saucepan, heat reserved orange juice and the granulated sugar to boiling; stir in reserved orange rind and brush over tops of scones. Sprinkle with reserved sesame seeds.
Bake scones 15 to 18 minutes or until golden brown. Brush again with orange glaze. Serve warm.

First Fairs

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

Fairs have dated as far back as 500 years before the time of Christ! The prophet Ezekiel mentioned fairs in the biblical book of Ezekiel, which was written in the sixth century. The early church celebrated religious holidays and seasons by actively sponsoring fairs. Then, during the mid-1500s, fairs lost their religious affiliation when churches stopped participating in and promoting fairs. From then on, fairs became events for exhibiting commercial displays and enjoying entertainment. In 1641, New York City (then called New Amsterdam) held the first annual fair in the American colonies. Agricultural fairs that displayed local farm products became commonplace throughout the colonies by the mid-1700's. In 1840, New Jersey and New York held the first state fairs.

Big Business

There're so many fun things to do at the fair! After seeing all of the exhibits, you can visit commercial displays of all types — garden tractors, field tractors, machinery and other equipment. Carnival rides cover the midway! You can ride and play games with your friends! Most fairs have nightly entertainment. Larger fairs schedule activities in front of the grandstands — harness racing, car racing, and rodeos. Even though volunteers plan most fairs, businesses look at fairs as a good place to reach customers. With more than 3,200 fairs held annually in the United States and Canada, fairs bring in more than $1.7 billion dollars for the areas in which they are held. It all adds up to big business!

Exhibiting Fun

Every year, millions of folks flock to their local fair to see their area's best projects and products. Whether it's crop samples, home canned fruits or vegetables, home-grown garden produce, sewing, woodworking or animal projects, everyone wants their best put on display. Earning prize money and ribbons certainly are an incentive, but pride in learning and a job well done just might be the best reward. If there is something special you like about your fair, something done that no one else does, something unique to your area or some unique exhibits you've seen, let us know! Just send us a letter telling us about your favorite part of your local fair. Write to: Lou Ann Good, Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. Make sure you include your name, address, and name of the fair.

EGGPLANT

Did you ever wonder why it's called eggplant?

Apparently, the first European eggplants were white (not the common purple you see growing in most gardens today). With the color and shape, the vegetable resembled an egg — thus "eggplant."

Years ago, eggplants were used more for decorative purposes than for food. Some people thought eating it caused madness as well as leprosy, cancer, and bad breath.

The French and Italians became enlightened to the vegetable, which is commonly found in their cuisine. A good eggplant should not be seedy. Some people believe they can tell the seed content and "sex" of an eggplant by checking the size and shape of the scar at the blossom end.

According to the theory, a "male" eggplant has fewer seeds than the "female." Actually, this method is a myth — an eggplant is self-pollinating; that is, it has both male and female characteristics and can reproduce on its own. A better way to judge the seediness is by size. Small- and medium-sized eggplants have fewer seeds than large, overmature ones, which are practically guaranteed to be seedy.

My favorite eggplant dish is fried eggplant. Similar to nearly all vegetables, eggplants contain virtually no fat — until you fry them. In an Australian study, an eggplant absorbed more fat than any other vegetable when fried! The research showed it absorbed 83 grams of fat in just 70 seconds — four times as much as an equal portion of potatoes — adding more than 700 calories.

Eggplant will absorb less fat if it is battered or breaded (dipped in egg then coated with bread). Let battered or breaded eggplant dry for 30 minutes in the refrigerator before frying. Many recipes call for salting eggplant before cooking. This changes the texture of the eggplant — making it more dense and eliminating the natural bitter taste.

Rinsing the eggplant thoroughly after salting will remove most of the salt; however, salting, even with rinsing, is not recommended if you are on a salt-restricted diet.

Ratatouille is a colorful Provençal blend of un-peeled eggplant, bell pepper, tomato, summer squash, onion, and garlic. Cut the vegetables into large cubes or chunks; saute them in a little olive oil until they begin to express their juices; cover and simmer until tender. Season with Provençal herbs such as oregano, basil, and thyme. Serve ratatouille warm, at room temperature or cold. It can be used as a side dish, entree, or appetizer. It can also be used as an omelet filling, pasta sauce, or pureed to make a soup.

Are Amish Friendship Bread And Similar Sourdough Products Safe To Eat?

DONNA SCOTT
Cornell University
ITHACA, N.Y. —

Recently, magazine articles have revived interest in sourdough-type starters used to make various kinds of breads and cake-like breads. People are encouraged to pass portions of the starters and bread-making instructions along to friends. One such product is called "Amish Friendship Bread," although it may or may not originate from the Amish community.

Several extension educators in New York State and in other states have questioned the safety of the Amish Friendship Bread starter because the instructions call for leaving the product, which contains milk, out at room temperature for ten days before it is used to make the bread. One article gives directions for freezing the starter and for its regeneration and reuse and also states that "refrigerating the starter will slow it down."

After discussing the safety of such a product with two fermentation experts here at Cornell University and two of Christina Stark's and my colleagues at Oregon State and Washington State Universities, I have concluded that there is little risk of contracting foodborne illness from properly prepared and handled starters, whether or not they contain milk. Properly prepared starters are safe because they became acidic due to the fermentation action of lactic acid-forming bacteria present in the mixture. These bacteria and the acid environment formed inhibit the growth of other bacteria, but do allow yeast, if added, to grow and help leaven bread products.

But there are some however's of which bakers should be aware:

- If one prepares a sourdough starter "from scratch," one does not always get a first-class starter because the fermentation microorganisms naturally present in the ingredients may not be the ideal ones for producing a good starter, or some other necessary condition may not have been met. It probably takes experience with the art of sourdough to recognize a really good starter. Most bread cookbooks (Eg., Time/Life's "The Good Cook: Breads" or Linda C. Franklin's "Good Home Cooking: Breads and Biscuits") have sections on sourdough.

- Discard starter which smell bad, turn reddish or orange in color, or grow mold. Good starters are bubbly and have a sour smell; the Amish Friendship Bread starter should smell sweet and tangy.

- If you start the sourdough "from scratch" with pasteurized milk, it will probably not produce lactic acid and from a good starter because the pasteurization process kills the lactobacillus organisms in the raw milk that would initiate the fermentation. Eventually you just get a foul-smelling, spoiled mixture. People are able to keep already-started starters going with additions of pasteurized milk because the organisms are already there from the original starter culture (which may have been started from raw milk, a possible source of pathogenic bacteria).

- For a good starter, Dave Brown and Keith Steinkraus at Cornell suggests that one begin with cultured buttermilk or yogurt with active bacterial cultures. For starters that call for water, flour, and sugar (and perhaps yeast), the use of whole wheat or rye flour may give a better inoculum of lactic acid-forming bacteria than white, all-purpose flour. Val Hillers at Washington State University recommends discarding the milk-containing Amish Friendship starter altogether and using a starter that calls for water (or use the advice from Cornell, above). Be sure to wash carefully pieces of vegetable such as potato or onion that may be added to an initial starter.

- Recognize that a starter that may have originally been started with raw milk may be a source of pathogenic bacteria, such as E. coli 0157:H7. Never taste such a raw starter. The baking process (to doneness, of course), would destroy harmful bacteria that might be present.

- Follow the usual recommendations for personal and kitchen cleanliness while preparing starters.

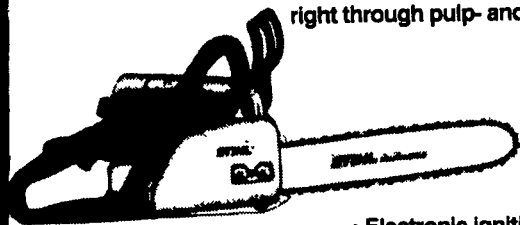

- One can refrigerate or freeze starters and we recommend storing starters in the refrigerator after the fermentation has progressed satisfactorily (follow the recipe for this). Sure, it "slows them down," but one can get them going again by warming them to room temperature a day or two ahead of use in baking.

Melissa Melskey rides Saturn Bay in preparation for the upcoming Eastern Arabian Horse Show, which will raise money for the Four Diamonds Fund for Children with cancer at the Hershey Medical Center. The show will feature more than 600 horses from 23 states and two Canadian provinces competing in more than 200 classes for more than $20,000 in prize money.

Horse Show Benefits Kids With Cancer

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff
QUENTIN (Lebanon Co.) — Fifteen-year-old Melissa Meiskey is going to do what she loves best — ride Saturn Bay, her purebred Arabian horse in the upcoming Eastern Arabian Horse Show.

Held at the Quentin Riding Club, south of Lebanon on August 2-4, it is one of the largest horse shows in Pennsylvania. Not only is it a spectacular horse show, but it benefits the Four Diamonds Fund for Children with cancer at the Hershey Medical Center.

The show will feature more than 600 horses from 23 states and two Canadian provinces competing in more than 200 classes for more than $20,000 in prize money. Melissa prefers Arabian horses because of their beauty, intelligence, and versatility.

The daughter of Neil and Julie Meiskey of Lititz, Melissa has been riding horse since she was two years old. For the past seven years, Melissa has been a member of the Boots and Saddles 4-H Club and is now secretary and a teen leader of it.

Those attending the show, which does not charge admission, can watch Melissa and others compete in classes such as Western, English, Hunter, Dressage, Reining, Mounted Native Costume, Driving, Side Saddle, Halter, and Jumping.

The show begins at 8 a.m. each day and ends at 10 p.m. Each day offers a wide variety of classes and a country fair with more than 60 exhibits and displays with artists, crafts, clothes, food, fun, and surprises.

In addition, an art auction and tack trunk raffle with more than $6,000 in merchandise and gift certificates will benefit the Four Diamonds Fund.

Saturday For The Kids includes a fun competition class for all children under eight years of age, who may participate in the free stick horse class to be held at 6:30 p.m.

Proceeds from the chicken barbecue held Thursday, Aug. 1 from 4 p.m. to 8 p.m. will also go toward the Four Diamonds Fund. Tickets at $5 a piece can be purchased from the H&H Tack Shop in Annville and The Office of Development at the Milton S. Hershey Medical Center or by calling (717) 949-3102.

The primary purpose of the fund is to provide relief from extraordinary financial burdens for the families of children with cancer who are treated the Milton S. Hershey Medical Center and for research.

The Four Diamonds Fund is taken from the title of an essay, 14-year-old Christopher R. Millard wrote before he died of cancer in 1972. Millard's essay deals with the struggles fought with the weapons of courage, wisdom, honesty, and strength.

A booklet containing Millard's copyrighted essay reproduced in his original hand writing is available to those who make contributions to the fund.

If you are unable to attend the show, but would like to make a contribution to the fund and receive Millard's essay, contributions are payable to the Milton S. Hershey Medical Center for the The Four Diamonds Fund, Office of University Development, The Milton S. Hershey Medical Center, Hershey, PA 17033.

Admission and parking at the horse show are free. For more information, call (717) 949-3102. After July 31, call (717) 273-1276.

Milk Promotions With Minor Leagues

PITTSBURGH (Allegheny Co.) — The Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program Board asked baseball fans in Erie and Williamsport, Pa. if they "got milk?" during two recent ballpark promotions.

Coordinated by the American Dairy Association & Dairy Council Mid East on behalf of the PDPP Board, the events took place June 24 with the Erie Seawolves and July 9 with the Williamsport Cubs. Emphasizing the "got milk?" message, advertising packages with the local ball clubs were secured as a way to extend messages locally.

Fans at both promotions were greeted by local dairy princesses who distributed "got milk?" promotional items and reminded the crowd to drink milk. Both teams designated the special games as "Dairy Day" at the ballpark.

The Erie event featured a "Biggest Dip" pre-game ice cream cone building contest between local radio personalities. As part of

Dairy Royalty Go For The Gold

CLARION (Clarion Co.) — The 1996 version of the Dairy Princess Training Seminar set out to accomplish two goals — learning and promoting. Both were accomplished as 31 new county Dairy Princesses, 19 Alternates, and 30 Adults spent 3½ busy days at Lycoming College in Williamsport in July.

The "learning" was accomplished with the aid of 20 industry spokespersons, dairy princess coordinators, and workshop leaders, assisted by the reigning Pennsylvania Dairy Royalty: Rhonda Kieklak, Heather Oberholtzer, and Yvonne Peterman. The theme of the conference "Go for the Gold-Dairy Promotion and Beyond," was enthusiastically presented by former Pa. Alternate Princess, Tammy Balthaser Weaver. In her keynote address, Tammy challenged all present to "work hard, and make the most" of this opportunity to serve the dairy industry and develop one's own potential. "Anything is possible" with the right attitude she told the young women in attendance.

"Promoting" of our dairy industry was achieved when the entire seminar contingent of nearly 100 arrived at the Williamsport Ballpark, attired in black "Got Milk" T-shirts with white accessories. All 100 participated in the distribution of "Got Milk" magnetes, pencils, and thermal cups bearing the "Got Milk" logo. Shortly before game time, all Princesses and Alternates led by our State royalty, were ushered onto the field bearing "Got Milk" balloons. Rhonda Kieklak delivered the first pitch and the game was on.

The entire promotion was planned and engineered by Holly Gerke of the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program and American Dairy Association and Dairy Council Mideast. The evening was complete when the Williamsport Cubs delivered a win to their enthusiastic fans.

The Dairy Princess Training Seminar is conducted annually by Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Service, Inc. to train and equip each new "class" of dairy royalty for the year ahead. All the young women, their mothers, and committee persons return to their counties for a busy year of dairy promotion in schools, grocery stores, and malls and at meetings of farmers and non-farmers. They'll write articles for the press and be interviewed by reporters. Many will be observed at local fairs and celebrations.

In September, the County Princesses will compete for the title of Pennsylvania Dairy Princess or Alternate. This year's 40th Anniversary Pageant will be held at the Sheraton Inn, Harrisburg, on Saturday evening, September 21. All interested persons are urged to attend and support their local candidate.

The Pennsylvania Dairy Princess program is supported by Pennsylvania's dairy farmers through American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association, American Dairy Association & Dairy Council Mideast, the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program and Allied Milk Producers in addition to contributions from independent dairies, co-operatives and individuals.

Milk Promotions

the promotion package, the first 5,000 fans were treated to a refrigerator schedule magnet imprinted with the "got milk?" message as a reminder to drink milk throughout the season. "Got milk?" field signs along first and third base lines will also reach over 200,000 fans throughout the season. The Erie Seawolves, an affiliate of the Pittsburgh Pirates, started their club in 1995 and established the New York/Penn minor league attendance record their first year.

Along with ADADC Mid East working with the Erie-area media to promote the big event, the Seawolves promoted Dairy Day in advance to fans via their public address and message board system in the ballpark, during game broadcasts and in local newspaper advertising. The game sponsorship was also noted in Seawolves fans newsletters and pocket schedules.

In Williamsport, all county dairy princesses and alternate princesses from throughout Pennsylvania paraded onto the field at game-time bearing "got milk?"

balloons to salute the dairy industry. State Dairy Princess Rhonda Kieklak threw the first pitch to start the game and the on-field announcer reminded fans that July is National Ice Cream Month.

As part of the advertising package in Williamsport, a "got milk?" billboard was placed in center field and will remind 63,000 fans throughout the season to drink milk. The package also provided the first 1,000 fans entering the stadium to receive a "got milk?" thermo-mug, presented by a local dairy princess, as an on-going reminder to enjoy milk.

The Williamsport Cubs, an affiliate of the Chicago Cubs, promoted Dairy Day through local radio, newspaper and cable TV. The special night was co-sponsored by HOT-FM, the most popular radio station in the Williamsport area, who gave the event excellent promotion. Advanced publicity also included on-air interviews with state dairy royalty. As part of the entire package, ADADC Mid East also provided 10 "lucky number" prize packages to winning fans consisting of "got milk?" mugs, aprons and T-shirts.

We live along the Conestoga River and I have always counted my blessings as I was able to raise six boys and girls without having any fall into the deep water. Nowadays young people take swimming lessons but in the '50s our children had to learn simply from their parents instructions. My parents did not bother to teach us — so we learned on our own.

Centre County Princess

LaTrisha Wasson

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — After four years as a dairy maid, LaTrisha Wasson wears the Centre County Dairy Princess crown. Crowned recently at a ceremony held at Logan Grange, the 16-year-old said, "It is my hope over the next year to contact as many young children as possible. The future of the dairy farmers will be determined by the future generations."

LaTrisha will be assisted in promotional duties by dairy maids, Emily Cloninger and Laura Mussler, and by dairy Misses Nicole Peterson, Amanda Gates, Ashlee Klinger, Rebecca Cloninger, and Lil' Miss Elizabeth Cloninger.

LaTrisha is active in Mt. Nittany 4-H Dairy Club, State College FFA, 4-H and FFA dairy judging teams, and Junior Holstein Association. At State College High School, LaTrisha is a majoriette on the marching band and competition squads and a varsity wrestling manager.

To schedule LaTrisha for appearances, contact her booking chairperson at (814) 237-2339.

One of my children was an explorer. He learned to walk at ten months. From then on he was off to explore the world. One day he took a yardstick and went to the barn and hit the resting cows until they all stood up. Down the row he went until he was discovered.

My husband's nephew was also too inquisitive and so he had to wear a harness which was snapped on a washline. Some children take constant watching to prevent harm.

One morning as we picked strawberries on the hill behind our house, my daughter-in-law rushed up to us and said, "I can't find Gregie." Those words were like a bolt of lightning. Everyone dropped their boxes and ran to join the hunt.

We piled into a car and a truck to go to the farm and offer assistance. When I happened to look at our house, I saw what I could not believe. There, over half a mile from home, was our two-and-a-half year-old grandson knocking on our front door. He had walked in barefeet and pajamas to visit us.

We counted our blessings that day!

Fun, Learning Come Together At Annual Farm City Day

CAROLYN N. MOYER
Tioga Co. Correspondent
SABINSVILLE (Tioga Co.) —

The view from the Plummer Family home is incredible. Seated 2,300 feet above sea level, it seems as if you can see forever across the rolling Pennsylvania mountains.

Just as incredible is the Plummer's vision for the future, evidenced by their decision to host Tioga County's sixth annual Farm City Day.

Bill and Connie Plummer, along with their six children — Paul, 13, Timmy, 9, John, 7, Alicia, 5, Joey, 3, and Luke, 1 — own and operate Woodcock Farm, a 750-acre crop and timber operation.

Sherri Elder, director of the Tioga County Farm Service Agencies, originally approached Bill about hosting the event.

"She asked him if he would be interested, and he said yes, before even asking me!" said Connie, with a laugh. "We were very happy with the event. There was a lot of cooperation to pull it off. The committee that does it really does all the work. I even learned a lot on the tours about all the agencies that we have to work with."

The day combined educational tours and displays with fun games and up-close exposure to many different species of farm animals ranging from rabbits to cows and quab to sheep.

"The kids loved it," said Connie. They did all the tours with friends."

The land where the Plummer family lives was originally purchased by Bill's great great grandfather in 1865. Throughout the years, tracts of land were added and various enterprises pursued.

At one time the farm was a dairy farm. After the sale of the dairy cattle in the late 1940s, small grains were grown and softwood trees were planted. Beef cattle and sheep grazed in the pasture. There was even a coal mine on the property.

Currently the farm's acreage is divided into tracts of hardwood timber, softwood timber, and cropland. The Plummer family pays close attention to all aspects of the operation, carefully managing the contour strips, protecting the farm's numerous ponds and applying sound forestry principals.

Corn, oats, and alfalfa are grown on the farm and the family also raises a herd of 50 beef animals in a cow/calf operation.

Nearly 900 visitors to the farm on July 13 were able to catch a glimpse of life on a farm as they took wagon tours and walking tours of the various operations. They were also invited to visit various exhibits set up by area farm businesses and cooperatives.

The first wagon tour headed further up the mountain making stops at one of the Plummer's farm ponds, a field of corn and a forested area.

At the pond, viewers could hear tips on managing a healthy pond. Volunteer firefighters from the area also demonstrated the use of a dry hydrant. The hydrant, which consists of a large pipe inserted through the bank of the pond below the frost line, allows fire trucks to access the pond's water quickly in the event of a fire.

Next on the tour was a stop at a corn field. During this stop, tour-goers had the chance to view alternating strips of corn and oats, and learn a little bit about managing the weeds and other pests.

Since woodlot areas are a big part of the Plummer's farm, the tour also focused on an area that has been clearcut. When asked what they thought of clearcuts by Tioga County Planner and independent timber manager Kerry Gyekis, most from the group reported that they thought of them as very bad.

However, Gyekis noted that in this case, disease and dieback had so damaged the existing timber that the only feasible management solution was to clearcut. One advantage to this was that they were able to make the cuts in such a way to ensure the growth of favorable species. Among the newly grown species are cherry, maple and birch trees, ready to make a new forest.

In another forestry demonstration, forester Mike Hale explained the difference between an uneven aged stand where the timber ranges in age from the very old to the new saplings on the ground and an even-aged stand in which all the timber is basically the same age. He also warned tour takers about foresters who want to cut the timber based solely on diameter.

"Beware if someone tells you that they will come in and cut the big trees, so that the little ones will grow," Hale said. Quite often what happens is that the little tree is just as old as the big tree. It's just that it did not grow as fast.

"Opening up the forest now probably won't help the smaller trees that are old grow, because they've already had their big growth phase."

Other wagons took groups down the mountain to tour more fields and a maple sugar camp.

The first stop on the tour brought a lesson in conservation farming. Information included how ongoing practices by the Plummers help protect the soil and improve water quality. Riders on this wagon also had the opportunity to learn about the different types of tillage methods used by the family on the farm, including no-till, minimum till, and conventional tillage.

Tour-goers also received a lesson in how the agricultural community works with other industries. The Plummer family uses an organic byproduct from the Westfield tannery to improve soil pH.

Also along the route to the maple camp, visitors could witness a neighbor doing a haymaking demonstration with his horses.

At the end of the road was a maple sugar camp, owned by the Patterson family. As members of the family explained the process of collecting sap and boiling it down to syrup, they also indicated the various uses for the sweet treat including the making of maple cream, cotton candy, maple jelly, and maple sugar.

The Pattersons also operate a third-generation dairy farm where they milk 68 cows and raise 73 replacements.

Earle Robbins, chairman of the event, noted that the committee tried to add something different to the program this year. This is the first year the event was not hosted on a dairy farm. They also added different events to the slate of activities while maintaining the objective of educating the public about farming.

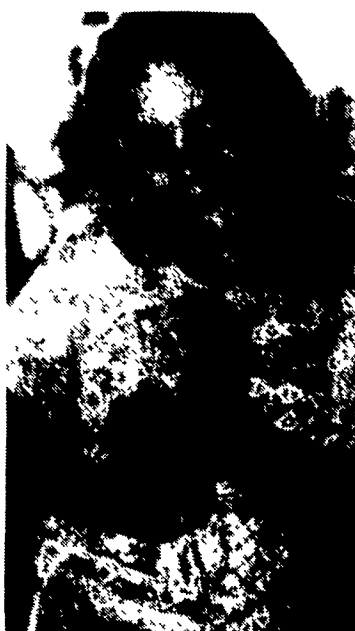

He noted that many people were involved in making the event happen, and he couldn't have done it without their help. He also thanked the many businesses and organizations who supported the event in any way.

Visitors from all over flocked to Farm City Day. Here Mariah Miles, of Butler holds a rabbit at the children's barn.

Visitors had the opportunity to register for free ice cream at the annual event. Here volunteers Kathy Monks and Susan Welch help the guests fill out their forms.

GETTING THE BEST BUY ON TOPSOIL

Any "Great and Small" gardener who is in the market for topsoil would take issue with the saying "cheap as dirt." Dirt, or soil as horticulturists prefer to say, can be quite expensive and sometimes difficult to find.

Topsoil is usually sold by the cubic yard or by the ton. If the soil is sold by the ton then there is slightly less than a cubic yard of soil in a ton of clay loam (2,295 lbs.). Approximately 12 cubic yards are needed to cover 1,000 square feet with 4 inches of top soil.

All soils are not equal. A good topsoil should be a sandy silt or clay loam with good structure. Avoid soils that are full of large clods and rocks. The soil should also be slightly acidic with a pH of 6.0-6.8. Look also for soils with at least three percent organic matter.

If you're buying a large quantity of topsoil start by using a Penn State soil test. It will indicate pH and nutrient levels in the soil. It will recommend quantities of lime and fertilizer needed for the plants you will be growing. Cost of the soil kits are $6 and are available at the Extension Office.

QUESTION — Jack Gaul, Pipersville, would like to know where to get information on a Standard Monarch garden tractor.

QUESTION — Milton Haines, Tabernacle, N.J., would like to know where to find transmission gears for a Midland garden tractor model #MR30, Serial #1017.

QUESTION — Mae Stancill, 2344 Pennington Rd., Bel Air, Md. 21015-1204, wants a source for plain white and printed feed bags in which animal feed was sold. She also wants a source for the tissue iron on embroidery patterns of yesteryear. Also, does anyone have an old cookbook from Rumford or Clabber Girl baking powder company that they would like to get rid of? She will pay postage.

QUESTION — J.R. Peppler, Glen Mills, would like to find a source for ram horns. He wants to make shepherd's crooks from them as they do in England. The horn is softened and bent into the top end.

QUESTION — C.Stage, Lawrenceville, has a hoosier cabinet that is painted in the original green with small black flowers on top, two roll-style doors, and a flour mill. The bottom half has been painted over to a lighter green. It has the manufacturing tag #013. She would like an estimate of the value as it is or stripped down. The wood is not oak, but a lighter wood.

Both can receive books requested if they write to House of White Birches, 306 E. Parr Rd., Berne, IN 46711. Darlene writes that she does many crafts and orders many books through that address.

ANSWER — Leo Rodgers, Tamaqua, wanted an operator's manual for a New Holland stack wagon model #1012 and for a Massey Ferguson Model #120 baler. Thanks to Braden Cammauf, who works for New Holland. He writes that the address to receive replacement operator's and service manuals for all past and current New Holland products is New Holland North America, Inc. 20770 Westwood Drive, Strongsville, Ohio 44136 and the toll-free phone number is 1-800-635-4913. If Leo wants to order by phone, the specific operator's manual number for a 1012 bale wagon is 42100224.

TOMATO CRACKING

Tomato cracking or yellow shoulders is common on tomatoes ripening in 85° or higher temperatures. Yellow blotches around the stem scar is caused by all carotene being produced in the fruit.

Some varieties are resistant to cracking. Both high temperature and a fluctuation of moisture can cause cracking. Try to maintain moisture in the soil for good tomato growth by using a mulch or by watering more frequently.

POISON BERRY

A very good crop of berry-like fruit is growing on bush honeysuckle. This honeysuckle is growing along many of our roads and edges of fields. The fruit is brightly colored — either red or orange, with some shades between. Often we are asked, is the fruit edible? The answer is definitely not.

Honeysuckle fruit is always born in pairs in the axil of the leaf. The fruit stalk is very short and the fruit is set close to the stem. They have a soft texture and are quite "juicy" when crushed. The outer stem is translucent.

Foliage on the honeysuckle opposite leaves on the stem. Most of the common types will have leaves that range from 1 to 2 inches in length and/or diameter. The leaves may also be slightly velvety on some types as well.

The fruit is not edible and can cause some distress if eaten. The greatest concern in most instances is from small children picking and eating the fruit. The fruit has no real value except for birds who do eat and spread the seed to new areas and fields.

There have been questions about the value of the fruit for jamaes and jellies — it should not be used for this purpose.

Overall the plants do make attractive ornamental materials and work well in a more natural type of landscape development. They make ideal background and border plants where little or no maintenance is planned or desired. If honeysuckle is allowed to persist, it will grow into an attractive small tree in time.

Any questions regarding the above article can be addressed to Tom Becker, Penn State Cooperative Extension at (717) 840-8408.

Other notes: In some recipes the starter itself leavens the bread. In other recipes, such as the Amish Friendship Bread, added chemical leaveners (baking powder and soda) or yeast leaven the product. Good starters add characteristic flavor and texture to bread products. With recipes such as the Amish Friendship Bread there are enough other ingredients added that inexperienced bakers may not know whether they have the intended flavor and other effects of a proper starter. Again, practice and experience, along with good recipes, will aid in making successful sourdough products.

herds we've sold in several years!! Nice type with good udders, on a young herd of cows. Remember, these records were made on hay, grain and pasture NO ALFALFA and NO BST!!! This is a working herd, on pasture 7 or 8 months of the year. With milk hitting $15 and $2 for fall production, don't miss this opportunity to purchase top replacements - ready to work! Please note this is a relatively new, clean line of equipment that has been kept under cover. Don't miss this sale!!!

The Heart And Soul Of GLEANER

Our Monitoring System Lets You Concentrate On The Job At Hand.

You won't need to second-guess how well your combine's performing. Because in every GLEANER rotary combine, there's a state-of-the-art monitoring system that constantly watches key functions like the rear-feed conveyor and discharge impeller/chopper. When attention is needed, you'll be alerted either visually or audibly. Just another way GLEANER combines are engineered for better returns

Tattletale III

Monitors the speeds and signals when a function has slowed down or stopped.

This warning system monitors the engine and other important features and warns both by an audible alarm and warning light. It even tells you when the grain tank is full.

• Engine Overload Alarm

Alerts you with an audible alarm when the engine rpm has dropped 100 rpm below rated speed. And tells you when the combine efficiency has dropped.

• Bin Level Monitor

Lets you know when the bin is full or near full. Sensors in the grain tank can be set to your specifications.

C

Oil pressure, Oil/Collant Temperature and Voltage Meter

These gauges are in addition to the same functions monitored on Tattletale V but with separate sending units to give you added reliability and performance.

Cummins® Diesel Engine.

With this engine you get to choose the kind of horsepower you want. Just take your pick from the 185 to 330 hp engine. No matter which size you go with, you can be assured of getting the most power for your money.

Drive/Propulsion System.

A large, high-torque split hydrostatic drive unit coupled with a four-speed transmission

Hydraulic System.

Electro-hydraulic controls were first introduced by GLEANER in 1972 and provide ease of operation with exceptional reliability.

Touch control switches provide current to the hydraulic valve stack which activates (magnetizes) the solenoid(s) for immediate operation.

and a choice of tire and ply sizes provide a powerful Drive/Propulsion System.

Tough Enough To Take The Heat.

Our liquid-cooled engines can take on even the toughest farming conditions. The turbo-charged diesel engines offer the latest in technology, require low maintenance and provide good fuel economy. The engines are rear mounted for balance and weight distribution.

Direct fuel injection, coupled with high swirl intake ports in the head, provide thorough mixing of fuel and air with turbocharging and aftercooling as an integral part of the original engine design.

Easy Access. A large fold-down ladder leads to the enclosed engine compartment that is large enough to walk around in. There's even an overhead light for added convenience.

Tractive Effort/(Pull) In Lbs.

Hydrostatic Transmission.

All models come standard with the Sauer Sundstrand Series 90 Pump and Motor hydrostatic drive system. It matches the 4-speed gear transmission with the high horsepower engine to provide smooth power transfer to the drive/propulsion system in either forward or reverse mode. The hydro control lever is a single forward/reverse lever. Movement of the handle varies the machine speed in either direction. The tractive effort output from the split hydro unit provides efficient and reliable performance.

FREDERICK, Md. — If you love a county fair, then you won't want to miss the 134th Great Frederick Fair, Sept. 13-21.

An array of activities have been scheduled for this year's event, from harness racing to concert performances.

The nine-day fair opens to the public at 5 p.m. Friday, Sept. 13, with the carnival and midway. The 4-H King and Queen Contest will be held at 7:30 p.m. in front of the grandstand. From Saturday to Saturday, the fair will be open from 9 a.m.-11 p.m.

"The Great Frederick Fair has something for just about everyone," said fair board president Robert Frank. "From livestock shows to grandstand shows, the Great Frederick Fair is the place to come."

Billed as one of the oldest county fairs in the U.S., The Great Frederick Fair has long been a tradition in Frederick County. The fair offers top-notch livestock shows featuring beef and dairy cattle, sheep, dairy goats, and pigs. Harness racing is featured daily at 1 p.m. from Tuesday, Sept. 17-Friday, Sept. 20.

"This is one of the few fairs that still has harness racing," Frank said. "The Great Frederick Fair takes pride in having this event at our fair because it is such a tradition."

Also known for its "Machinery Row," the display will feature more than $3 million worth of farm and lawn and garden equipment. The display is provided by the Central Maryland Machinery

Dealers Association.

Numerous activities and demonstrations will be featured throughout the week in the Household, Farm and Garden, and 4-H Buildings, as well as at the City Streets, Country Roads agriculture education exhibit.

Grandstand entertainment will feature six musical concerts including George Jones, Sept. 14; Anne Murray, Sept. 15; Sawyer Brown, Sept. 18; Loretta Lynn, Sept. 19; Tracy Lawrence, Sept. 20; and Ricky VanShelton, Sept. 21. The Heart of Maryland Tractor and Truck Pull will be held Sept. 16, followed by the Demolition Derby Sept. 17.

"We have a great entertainment lineup from top to bottom," said James E. McClellan, entertainment committee chairman. "We added an extra concert with the Sunday evening performance. Ticket sales for all of the events are going very well." Tickets are available by phone order by calling 302-663-5895 or 663-6319.

Also, the Southern States Cooperative's horse hitch team will appear at the fair Sept. 13-18. The six-team hitch of Percheron horses makes an impressive sight as they pull a restored wagon promoting the agriculture cooperative.

And what's the county fair without the exhibits provided by county residents? Fair catalogs listing the various categories in livestock, 4-H, farm and garden, arts and crafts, and household departments are available by calling the fair office at (301) 663-5895 or by visiting a library in Frederick County.

Exhibit entries will be accepted in the Household, Farm and Garden and 4-H Buildings from 5-8 p.m. Friday, Sept. 13 and from 8 a.m.-3 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 14. Judging of these entries will be held Sunday, Sept. 15, with the buildings opening to the public at 9 a.m. Monday, Sept. 16. Consult the premium catalog for entry times for livestock and 4-H entries.

For a schedule of events, contact the fair office at (301) 663-5895 or 663-6319.

Admission to the fair is $2 per person Sept. 14-15 and $3 per person Sept. 16-21. Children under 10 years old are free. Parking on the grounds is $3 per car.

Livestock Auction Aug. 10

At Wayne County Fair

The 19th annual Wayne County Junior Livestock Auction will be Saturday, Aug. 10 at noon at the Wayne County Fairgrounds.

All successful buyers will be treated to a beef barbecue immediately following the sale.

The sale will serve as the culminating experience for more than 150 young people who have been raising livestock project animals in the 4-H program. Members who are raising beef steers have had their animals on a grain feeding program since last October, while the sheep and hog members placed animals on finishing rations early this spring.

It is expected that 40 steers, 200 hogs, and 80 lambs will be offered for sale. All will be of market weight with the steers weighing about 1,000 pounds liveweight, the hogs from 210 to 270 pounds or more, and the lambs from at least 80 pounds to more than 150 pounds.

Animals will be weighed Friday morning, the day prior to the sale, for the purpose of determining sale weight.

The sale will be conducted as an auction, with the animals being sold to the highest bidder. Anyone who does not feel comfortable bidding in an auction can make arrangements to have a 4-H leader do the bidding and act as the buyer. Such persons should contact the Wayne County Cooperative Extension Office to make the necessary arrangements and to secure information on prevailing market prices.

It is possible for two or more to share an animal(s). Because animals are sold whole, previous arrangements must be made with other buyers. The extension office will try to match you up with another buyer if you have difficulty finding one.

Buyers will receive duplicate ribbons based on judging conducted earlier in the week. Special banners will be presented to the buyers of the three grand champion and three reserve grand champion animals.

Arrangements for transporting and processing should be done before the sale. Call the extension office if you need help finding a processor.

The sale steering committee consists of Clyde Eltz, Ellis Dix, John Marshall, Robert Terrel, Robert Muller and Jim White. Dan Naylor, John Regan, and Wayne Weaver will be the auctioneers.

REMEMBER

The Summer and Fall of 1995???? The extreme heat, the early dry-down of the corn crop, and then the rapid rise in corn prices? And those corn prices are having a dramatic effect on your profits in 1996.

"THE NEED FOR QUALITY
IS GREATER TODAY THAN
HISTORY!"

How can we help to make sure that you get a quality corn storage unit constructed before the expected rush in August and September?

Give us a call to discuss early discounts, financing, and unloader options.

Before spending a lot of money to dry, store, handle, and transport your corn crop, you will do well to consider the many advantages of a poured concrete silo to store and protect your valuable corn.

Also, by storing hi-moisture shelled corn (about 25% moisture), you save field

RURAL-BUILDER

No matter what type of building you're looking for shop, retail store, community building or storage facility - we build durable Butler® rural steel buildings with attractive architectural appeal.

Butler shop buildings are built to give you years of high-use value, low maintenance and maximum comfort. Solid, practical design and rugged steel construction make Butler buildings durable and functional for years to come.

Outside: Your Choice

The appearance of your new building is a critical factor. You just tell us what you'd like and we can build it!

Our structural systems are designed to give you complete freedom in planing the size and shape of your building.

Products that Perform from the Building Systems Industry Leader

You can count on Butler to provide the best materials available.

For example, our standard exterior coating for painted panels is Butler-Cote® 500 FP finishing system, a full strength, 70% Kynar 500® & Hylar 5000® coating. Our coating will resist chalking and fading better than industry standard coatings.

Our fasteners represent another area where Butler offers more for your money. The Scrubolt™ fastener by Butler, available on the Butlerib wall and roof systems and the Shadowrib® wall system, is larger and more resistant to the pull-out forces of wind than industry standard fasteners.

Mother Nature Meets Her Match

Lets face it—Mother Nature can be pretty hard on that beautiful new deck you just installed. But at you install a BROCK DECK System you can keep your deck looking new and outlast Mother Nature.

Available in tan, white, and grey, BROCK DECK cuts just like wood so the design possibilities are endless. But unlike wood, BROCK DECK planks and railings are made of environmentally friendly Hi Polymer PVC. They last years longer than wood and never need stain, paint or sealant.

Get the deck that you can smile about even when Mother Nature is at her worst—BROCK DECK Systems.

House Introduces Legislation To Lift Prohibition On Interstate Shipment Of Meat, Poultry

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Legislation to waive the archaic laws which prohibit the interstate shipment of state-inspected meat and poultry products was introduced in the U.S. House of Representatives by Texas Congressman William "Mac" Thornberry (R). Passage of the legislation would help create new jobs and eliminate the unfair market restrictions that have forced hundreds of small processors out of business.

"I think the report proposal to reform the nation's meat inspection system is a wise one," Thornberry said. "But it's also incomplete. The industry is currently governed by two 25-year old laws. Both of these laws contain a provision which prohibits state-inspected beef from being sold in other states unless it's subject to inspection from the federal government."

Thornberry said that foreign countries have a competitive advantage over states in getting their beef sold in America. "What this means is that Texas beef cannot be sold in Oklahoma unless it's inspected by someone from Washington — but beef from Mexico, Canada, or another country can," he said.

"This is both unjust and unfair," Thornberry said. "If beef from Mexico is safe to eat in Lawton (Oklahoma) without federal poultry inspection, you can bet your bottom dollar the beef from Texas will be safe to eat there as well."

The unfair restriction affects approximately 3,000 slaughtering and processing facilities in 26 states that offer state meat and poultry inspection programs. The Federal Meat Inspection Act of 1967 and the Poultry Products Inspection Act of 1968, which established state meat and poultry inspection, require inspection programs administered by the states to be "at least equal to" the inspection standards of the USDA's Food Safety Inspection Service (FSIS).

The bill, H.R. 3750, does not automatically lift the ban for all certified state meat and poultry inspections. The bill would require each state to petition the Secretary of Agriculture for the change. The measure would also allow federal inspectors to randomly inspect state-inspected plants in addition to the state inspections.

"The National Association of State Departments of Agriculture (NASDA) strongly supports the Thornberry bill," said Texas Commissioner of Agriculture Rick Perry. "In the last three years, approximately 400 small- and mid-size meat and poultry processors have gone out of business, many because they are unfairly prohibited from interstate commerce. Without passage of this bill this year, many more small packers and processors are going to be forced out of business because of the legislated economic disadvantage they face."

In testimony before the House Agriculture Subcommittee on Livestock, Dairy, and Poultry on June 26, Perry said that Texas has 364 state-inspected plants that "would benefit from interstate shipment." He said the Texas-inspected plants would increase their employees by approximately 30 percent and add an additional $450 million in gross sales if the plants were allowed to ship in interstate commerce.

Senators Larry Pressler (R-SD) and Orrin G. Hatch (R-UT) have introduced companion legislation, S. 1862, in the United States Senate.

NASDA is the non-profit association of public officials representing the commissioners, secretaries, and directors of agriculture in the 50 states and four territories.

Alderfer Begins Team Approach

HATFIELD (Montgomery Co.) — The Alderfer Auction Company has begun a team approach to its catalogued auction. Beginning with the September catalogued auction held at the Alderfer Auction Center, the duties surrounding the appraisal and evaluation of art, antiques, and accessories will be done by this evaluation team. The team is made up of several of Alderfer's most knowledgeable employees, along with outside specialty consultants. Each bring their own unique qualifications, substantial experience, and most importantly, knowledge of art, antiques, and collections to the table.

"It's funny how sometimes in the middle of an organizational change, you may not immediately see a solution that is right under your nose. We've always known that many of our staff members possessed the knowledge and skill to accurately appraise the merchandise we auction. I'm glad we finally have the opportunity to let these valuable employees show their stuff," said Sandy Alderfer.

Bush Hog Introduces Rugged Contractor Equipment

Bush Hog's new contractor line is built tough for the real world. Bush Hog pulverizers feature two rows of scarifiers that loosen and rake the soil to remove debris such as sticks, roots, and large rocks.

SELMA, Ala. — Landscapers, contractors, home builders, and construction firms can utilize the rugged dependability of Bush Hog® equipment to meet the demands of constant use, different operators, frequent movement from job site to job site, outside storage, and difficult working conditions.

Bush Hog's new contractor line is built tough for the real world. Every product is similar in its rugged design and construction and its capability to stand up to rugged conditions. Available from farm, commercial and landscape equipment dealers, the new Bush Hog contractor line features a full selection of pulverizers, pluggers, rollover box blades, and box blades.

Bush Hog pulverizers feature two rows of scarifiers that loosen and rake the soil to remove debris such as sticks, roots, and large rocks. The "H" beam pulls as much dirt as an average 6-inch blade to level and clean simultaneously. Clods are broken as they pass through the scarifiers and under the "H" beam. Dirt passing under the roller is pressed down firmly by 150-pound compression springs on each side of the roller arms while spikes attached to the roller continue to break up clods and create a perforated surface for collecting seeds, fertilizer and water. Bush Hog single or double roller pulverizers are available in 48-, 60-, 66-, 72-, 84- and 96-inch widths. They use 3/8-inch thick, Category 1 welded masts and heat-treated scarifiers placed 4 1/4 inches apart.

Bush Hog box blades perform dozens of functions — including scarifier, scrap, backblade and backfill — on landscape and job sites. They come in 48-, 60-, 65-, 72- and 84-inch sizes. Masts are welded to the shank supports. The moldboard is 1/4-inch steel with 3/8-inch sideplates.

Baler Features New Pickup Width

Claas of America has added a new model to its Quadrant 1200 large, rectangular baler line, which includes the roto cut cutting system to provide efficient crop pickup and a clean cut. It produces 48-inch x 27-inch and up to 98-inch bales. The roto cut system cuts the material while baling, allowing the bale to break up for easy feeding and bedding.

COLUMBUS, Ind. — Claas of America has added a new model of the Quadrant 1200 large, rectangular baler which includes the roto cut cutting system to provide efficient crop pickup and a clean cut.

In addition to producing 48-inch x 27-inch and up to 98-inch bales, it features a new five-bar 83-inch wide pickup and helix cutting rotor with 25 cutting stars with four double tines per star.

The Claas® roto cut system cuts the material while baling, allowing the bale to break up for easy feeding and bedding. The serrated, spring-loaded knives are hydraulically engaged from the cab seat for convenience.

The high-output Quadrant 1200 forms large, highly compressed hay, straw and silage bales with excellent stacking and transport qualities. Six high-performance knotters driven by a universal drive shaft and gears provide secure tying of the bale. The Quadrant 1200 holds 24 balls of twine. After removal of the twine, bales divide easily into smaller, convenient portions for feeding or bedding.

Surge Introduces New Milking, Automation Package

Surge® One Touch™ is an integrated stanchion automation package, combining the primary milking functions with key cow-side management information.

NAPIERVILLE, Ill. — The new Surge® One Touch™ is an integrated stanchion automation package, combining the primary milking functions with key cow-side management information.

The One Touch is a hand-held device that combines the milk line and pulsation system connections into a single unit, eliminating the clumsiness associated with other stanchion automation devices. It's easy to operate and reduces the labor and stress involved during milking. It's compact and lightweight, yet built with the rugged durability needed for stanchion barn operations.

The One Touch is available in three models. The first model, the basic platform, incorporates milk line and pulsation system connections into a single unit.

Further automation can be added with the new Timekeeper II™ management module. This module signals the producer when the cow is finished milking and displays the time it takes to milk, on a cow-by-cow basis. This feature allows a producer to significantly reduce the total milking time of the herd by earlier indication of when individual cows are milked out. Faster, consistent milking leads to a healthier herd. The end-of-milking indicator is adjustable to fit the management needs of your dairy.

Vitamin E In Gel

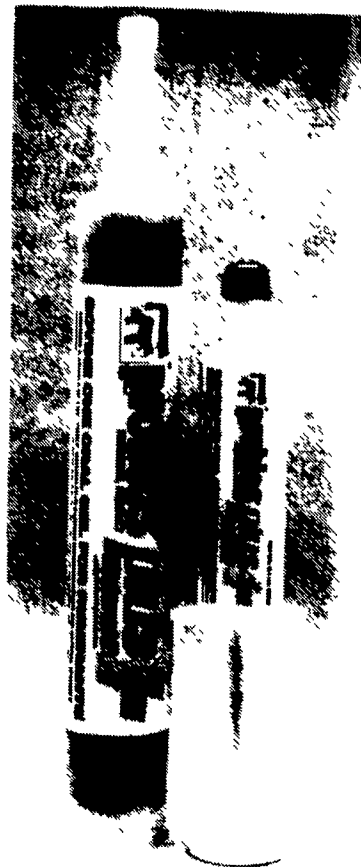

DES MOINES, Iowa — A new Probios® brand microbial oral gel product containing the first high-level natural vitamin E supplement has been introduced by Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc.

Research studies have substantiated the rapid absorption of this natural vitamin E formulation in newborn calves. When increasing levels of vitamin E were given to day-old dairy heifers, significantly higher absorption rates were measured within 24 hours and maintained for up to seven days.

Dairy field trials on fresh cows were also conducted. The results confirmed that cows given Probios Plus Natural E Bovine One showed improved milk yields through the lactation period due to increased early feed intake. These results were evident after fresh cows were given only a single, 30 gram dose.

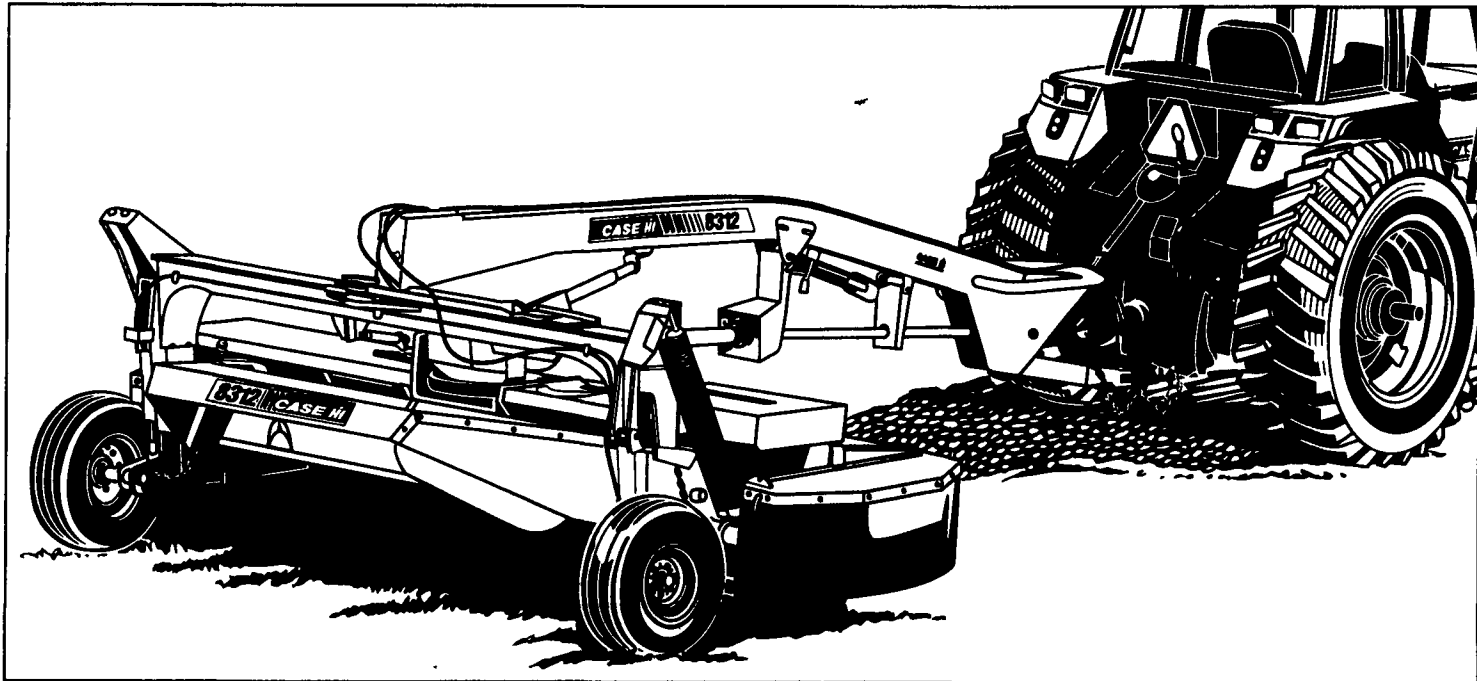

The Probios Plus Natural E product will be packaged in both 60 gram and 300 gram tubes and is available from current Probios product distributors.

The fourth World Beef Expo will be held October 10-12, 1996, in Madison, Wisconsin. For questions about the web site or to receive more information contact the World Beef Expo office at (608) 224-0292.

Eugene and Dan Eckroth continue a history of serving Case IH customers in three locations that started in 1947 when their grandfather started the business at New Ringgold. The brothers grew the business since they took over in 1983 to the point where they now have two additional locations, a store in Bloomsburg, and a brand new facility situated on five acres at Orefield.

"We feel strongly that we want to treat people like we want to be treated," Dan said. "We take time to listen to their needs and help them where we can. No high pressure, just the help they want."

The dealerships ship parts and do on-farm service work where needed in their areas. They are a full-line dealer that includes: combines, tractors, skid loaders, and tillage and planting equipment. They believe their new 17,500 square foot building to house service, parts, sales and warehouse departments and a show room, proves commitment to the future of the farm community.

Past customers are appreciated and the Eckroth brothers look forward to serving many old and new customers in the future.

NCFC Applauds Congressional Action On Food Safety

WASHINGTON, D.C. — National Council of Farmer Cooperatives (NCFC) President Wayne A. Boutwell applauded House Commerce Committee action on food safety legislation, and urged Congress to move the legislation quickly to final enactment. The committee, led by Chairman Tom Bliley (R-Va.), reported a bipartisan compromise by a 45-0 vote.

Commending Bliley, Agriculture Committee Chairman Pat Roberts (R-KS), and other congressional leaders, Boutwell said, "After years of frustration, it is extremely encouraging to see Congress taking decisive action to replace the outmoded Delaney clause and modernize the nation's pesticide and food safety laws for the benefit of producers and consumers alike."

The legislative compromise would (1) establish a unified safety standard for all food additive tolerances based on sound science, replacing the "outmoded, zero-tolerance Delaney clause; (2) provide national uniformity for pesticide tolerances; (3) implement National Academy of Science recommendations to protect infants and children; and (4) provide for limited benefits considerations to retain existing tolerances exceeding the unified standard if (a) benefits to consumers outweigh risks, and (b) loss of the pesticide would significantly disrupt domestic production of an adequate, wholesome, and economical food supply.

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — Plan an exciting and eventful outing for your entire family on Saturday, Aug. 3, at the Adams County 4-H Fair.

Adams County 4-H members and leaders will participate in the 4-H Fair, which will be held at the South Mountain Fairgrounds near Arendtsville.

More than 500 Adams County 4-H members will have more than 800 4-H projects on display. Items

The compromise package would also require that EPA, in consultation with USDA, distribute a pamphlet annually to all large retail grocers discussing the risks and benefits of pesticide use, recommending how consumers can reduce exposure to residues, and explaining actions taken by EPA to issue benefits-based tolerances. FDA is given new civil penalty authorities as a substitute for other enforcement actions, with farmers exempt.

There are several activities scheduled throughout the day. These include shooting sports demonstration at 1 p.m., ice cream

Pesticide registration reforms passed earlier by the House Agriculture Committee, including those affecting minor use pesticides, will be incorporated with the Commerce Committee package during House floor action. The Commerce and Agriculture Committee compromise packages retain key provisions of H.R. 1627 — legislation endorsed by NCFC and cosponsored by Bliley, Roberts, and more than half of the members of the House of Representatives.

The NCFC chief executive noted that a number of difficult tradeoffs were made by negotiators in reaching consensus. "If implemented as intended, we believe that, on balance, these reforms will adequately address the crop protection and food safety needs of American agriculture and consumers into the 21st century," Boutwell said.

eating contest at 1:30 p.m., calf dressing contest at 2 p.m., bale toss contest at 2:30 p.m., bicycle rodeo at 3 p.m., rocket shoot-off at 4 p.m., and Seeing-Eye Puppy demonstration at 5:30 p.m.

shows. The 4-H Horse Show will be held at Halcyon Farm, Dillsburg, July 27. The horse show will begin at 9:30 a.m.

The 4-H Fair concludes with the evening program at 6:30 p.m. in the auditorium. Those youth who have done outstanding work in 4-H this year will be recognized and presented with special rosette ribbon awards. Adams County 4-H Fashion Revue winners will be honored.

VERY FEW POULTRY DISEASES ARE TRANSMISSIBLE TO MAN

Patty Dunn, DVM
Animal Diagnostic Lab

The term "zoonosis" is defined as "an infection or infestation shared in nature by man and lower vertebrate animals."

Even though it is much more likely that we will acquire contagious diseases from our fellow humans rather than from other species, many people are very concerned about zoonotic diseases that they might "catch" due to association with the animal kingdom.

Man shares a number of infectious diseases with other mammals. One of these, rabies, is one of the deadliest viral diseases ever discovered. Most, however, are much milder conditions that should be recognized but not feared.

Fortunately, very few infectious diseases of avian species are directly transmissible to man. Most successful disease-causing organisms are highly adapted to particular biological conditions in specific hosts. As avian anatomy and physiology are in many respects quite different from those of mammals, very few avian pathogens can cross the gap and flourish in mammalian hosts to which they are not adapted. Biologically, man has even less in common with other groups such as fish, reptiles, amphibians and invertebrates, so even fewer diseases are shared between these groups.

It should be noted, however, that insects do play a very important role in "vectoring" disease organisms between warm-blooded animals. In fact, some microbes require an insect host to complete stages in their life cycle necessary to become infective to humans.

Malaria is a prime example of a serious protozoal infection dependent upon certain types of mosquitoes for propagation and transmission. In a slightly different fashion, the Lyme disease bacterium is generally introduced into humans by the deer tick. Equine encephalitis and St. Louis encephalitis are viral diseases that may be carried from birds to man by mosquitoes.

Poultry infectious diseases that can directly infect humans are chlamydiosis, Newcastle disease, erysipelas, and avian tuberculosis. Of these, chlamydiosis (also called psittacosis or parrot fever) is the most serious. It is caused by the bacteria Chlamydia Psittaci. Pet bird species (psittacines) are much more likely to be infected with the organism and pass it on to their owners and handlers than are most other avian species. These comprise the bulk of human exposure cases of chlamydiosis.

Wild bird reservoirs of C. Psittaci include sea gulls, ducks, herons, egrets and pigeons. Of domestic poultry, turkeys are the most common species known to be productively infected. Very few confirmed chicken cases have ever been cited. Minor species such as ducks, pheasants and pigeons have been reported to have disease problems related to infection with C. Psittaci.

Clinical signs in turkeys

infected by a mild strain of C. Psittaci may include loss of appetite, loose greenish droppings, and mortality rates of 1-4 percent. More virulent strains cause exacerbation of the above signs with significant weight loss and mortality rates from 10-30 percent. Egg production of breeders drops rapidly. Post-mortem lesions look similar to those of colibacillosis and include fibrin and pus coating the heart (pericarditis) and, less frequently, air sacculitis. Enlarged, congested spleens and livers may also be noted. Chlorotetracycline is used to treat diagnosed flocks.

In humans infected with chlamydiosis, flu-like symptoms occur. Signs include fever, chills, headache, weakness, and coughing associated with atypical pneumonia. Joint pain, stomach cramps, and diarrhea are reported less frequently. The incubation period is 4-15 days, and the mean duration of illness is 9-10 days. The infection may be serious enough to require hospitalization, and deaths have occurred. Tetracycline-class antibiotics are generally used in treatment of human cases.

The most common scenario for human infection from turkeys occurs at the turkey processing plant when workers handling infected turkey carcasses are exposed to aerosolized infectious particles. During the last 50 years in the U.S., several human outbreaks of chlamydiosis have been reported in turkey processing plant workers in Texas, Missouri, Nebraska, Ohio, and Minnesota. Most of the infections in these cases occurred in employees in the kill-pick and evisceration departments, but cases also occurred in other areas including further processing. Workers in infected turkey flocks have also been infected.

Newcastle Disease Virus (NDV) infects chickens, turkeys, and pigeons as well as other types of birds. In commercial poultry in the U.S., only mild strains of NDV are generally present. Cases of Newcastle disease in growing chickens and turkeys result in mild respiratory symptoms and are often followed by secondary E. Coli infections. ND in breeders or layers can cause mild egg production drops and shell quality problems. Most commercial chickens are vaccinated against ND using attenuated live virus strains which may be followed in breeders and layers by killed virus vaccines.

If people contact live ND virus, including the vaccine strains, in the tissues of the eye, conjunctivitis results. The thin covering of the white of the eyeball and the lining of the eyelids become inflamed, reddened, and irritated. The condition generally lasts for 5-10 days and resolves completely. No systemic invasion of the virus into other parts of the body occurs. No treatment other than topical eye drops or ointments to reduce inflammation, discomfort, and secondary bacterial infections is generally necessary. The infection is uncomfortable and cosmetically undesirable, but not serious. People most at risk are those handling and administering live NDV vaccines, those doing post-mortem exams on actively infected birds, and laboratory workers handling concentrated virus. Wearing gloves and lab goggles, avoiding touching hands to eyes, and washing hands after handling virus or vaccine are effective preventive measures.

Erysipelas is a disease condition of poultry caused by the bacteria, Erysipelothrix Rhusiopathiae (ER). Turkeys, pheasants, ducks, geese, and rarely chickens are affected. Most species of birds are potentially susceptible. The disease in poultry is most common in middle to late growout of market tom turkeys as well as turkey breeders. Range flocks are more often affected than housed birds. The bacteria is picked up from infected soil and enters the bird through skin scratches and wounds. Flocks that are picking and fighting excessively are more likely to become infected with erysipelas. Artificial insemination procedures used in turkey breeders can also spread the infection.

Infected birds often die quickly with unnoticed clinical signs. More chronic cases can show depression and lameness due to arthritis. Signs of general septicemia such as carcass congestion, enlarged livers and spleens, and hemorrhages on the heart and other organs are present. Reddened wounds may be present on heads or vents. Penicillin is the drug of choice for treatment, and bacterins have been used for prevention and control in at-risk flocks. Beak trimming, desnodding, and careful artificial insemination techniques should be practiced. Flocks should be moved from infected ranges.

Large numbers of ER bacteria are present in infected carcasses. People handling these carcasses and performing post-mortem exams on dead birds contract can the bacteria tissues through small scratches and cuts on unprotected hands and arms. A painful, hot swelling with a dark center called an "erysipeloid" results at the site of infection.

It usually remains localized, but in rare instances the bacteria can spread through the bloodstream to other parts of the body causing arthritis and other more serious conditions. Treatment with penicillin or other effective antibiotics should be instituted at once. Localized erysipeloid lesions should resolve completely in a few weeks with treatment. Latex/vinyl disposable gloves should always be worn when posting dead birds. If erysipelas is suspected, double sets of gloves should be worn for added protection.

Avian tuberculosis (T.B.), caused by the bacteria Mycobacterium Avium, is no longer present in commercial poultry in the U.S. Today, it is seen only sporadically in smaller, "backyard" flocks of chickens greater than two or three years of age. Older ducks, geese, game birds, pet birds and zoological species can also have avian T.B. It is very rare in turkeys. Avian T.B. causes progressive general debilitation with weight loss, decreased egg production, and death. Liver, spleen, intestine, and bone are target organs of the infection in birds. Granulomatous lesions are seen in these organs. There is no effective treatment for birds. Mammals such as swine, rabbits, and mink can succumb to progressive disease and M. Avium can cause sensitivity in cattle to the tuberculin test. Although humans are considered relatively resistant to infection by the organism, more cases of avian T.B. have been seen in recent years, particularly in immunosuppressed people (people on immunosuppressive drugs or those with acquired immunodeficiencies). Therefore, avian T.B. is considered potentially zoonotic by most medical professionals.

It should be noted, however, that most M. Avium strains isolated from people are different from the common chicken isolates. M. Avium is relatively resistant to the commonly used antituberculosis drugs, so effective treatment is difficult to achieve.

Internal parasites (intestinal worms, coccidia, etc.) of poultry are very host specific. Most won't cross over into other avian species, let alone into mammals. For example, chicken coccidial species will not infect turkeys and vice versa.

Most external parasites (lice, mites, etc.) are also specifically adapted to avian hosts and will not willingly colonize human hosts for any extended length of time. However, some lice, mites, ticks or bed bugs in infested poultry houses can board humans working in the house. They bite and irritate the skin causing temporary physical (and emotional) discomfort.

The category of foodborne zoonotic disease which includes such bacterial pathogens as Salmonella SPP, Campylobacter SPP., E. Coli, etc. is a large topic in itself and will not be addressed in any detail in this article. By definition, it is a human disease caused by ingestion of meat or other animal products (egg, milk) that is contaminated with an offending organism or microbial toxin.

Salmonella Enteritidis in poultry meat or eggs is the most commonly cited poultry food-borne human pathogen. Usually, these organisms are not causing clinical disease in the animals themselves. However, they may reside in the animal's intestinal tract or contaminate the carcass or product from a completely different source during handling, processing, transport, or final preparation. Proper food handling, storing, and preparation are the best defenses against foodborne zoonotic disease.

Some human disease conditions of a noninfectious nature can arise from man's association with poultry. Some individuals develop allergies to bird dander; feathers, bedding materials, etc., that result in typical allergic respiratory symptoms. Ammonia gases in confinement poultry houses are just as irritating to human eyes, noses, and throats as they are to the birds'.

Optimizing ventilation and using litter treatments help birds and humans alike. Wearing high quality masks or respirators help decrease people's exposure to dust, dander, and irritating gases.

Good hygienic practices should always be followed after handling any animal including birds and their secretions and excrements. Remember, however, that rarely will normal, healthy animals transmit diseases to humans. People should not fear close association with poultry as a significant human health risk.

The Case International 8312 disc mower conditioner just keeps on cutting — no matter what it encounters. Tangled undergrowth, rodent mounds and hills or heavy hay are no match for the heat-treated high-speed rotary discs at the heart of the 8312.

A center pivot tongue lets you cut a full 12-foot swath in either direction and maneuver around obstacles. Lay down a quick-drying swath or fluffy windrow and, depending on your crop conditioning rolls can be quickly adjusted for optimum drying. If continuous cutting with a center pivot machine is important to you, stop in and see the Case International 8312.

New Holland Natural Fiber Twine --

Your Natural Choice For Round Or Square Balers

- Uniform thickness-no thicks or thins
- Entirely biodegradable
- Treated for mildew resistance
- Consistent tensile/knot strength

■ A bale of New Holland natural twine always contains the exact footage shown on the label. This isn't the case with other brands. For instance, a bale of twine labeled 7,200 feet by another manufacturer may actually contain only 6,800 feet. This kind of inaccuracy could make a big difference in your production costs. And, in your profits.

NEW HOLLAND NATURAL FIBER TWINE

Feet Per Bale	Knot Strength	Gross Weight (Lbs.)	End Use Application	Sale Price
7,200*	160	40	Square Bale	$20.79 per bale
9,000*	130	40	Square Bale	$20.79 per bale
10,000*	115	40	Square Bale	$20.79 per bale
16,000*	180	40	Round Bale	$22.80 per bale

(tensile strength)

What's the importance of the terms tensile strength and knot strength?

Tensile strength refers to the amount of resistance twine provides before breaking. But it's also important to consider a twine's strength. That's because when twine is tied into a knot, its strength is reduced by almost 60%.

New Holland natural twine has enhanced knot strength because we use only specially selected high tensile strength fibers to provide you with the best possible knot strength. New Holland twine comes from Brazilian plantations where the leaves are hand selected and cut from the hardy sisal plant. We harvest only the mature leaves at the bottom of the plant because of their longer, and much stronger, fibers. This kind of careful attention continues through the entire twine-producing process. In fact, there are a series of progressive quality controls through the various production stages to ensure twine uniformity and high tensile strength.

THE ONLY THING SHAKING IS THE COMPETITION

Introducing Kubota's new Grand L-Series diesel tractors. Four compact models with 25 to 37 PTO HP. Designed to take on any job that demands power and mobility. Available in 2WD and 4WD, the Grand L-Series features Kubota's new ETVCS diesel engines that run quiet with cleaner emissions. Operator friendly with power steering, tilt wheel and enclosed muffler for greater visibility. The roomy flat operator's deck is ISO mounted to greatly reduce vibration.

The Grand L-Series has a choice of transmissions, the new fully synchronized main transmission with Synchro-Shuttle allowing shifting-on-the-go through the 4 main gears or the new GST (Glide Shift Transmission) which allows shifting-on-the-go through all 8 speeds, both run smoothly and efficiently with the new larger diameter, larger capacity clutch.

The Grand L-Series powerful hydraulic system, independent rear PTO and 3-point hitch hook up to a wide range of quick-attach implements to handle any job. Kubota's Grand L-Series gives you power, mobility and a smooth quiet ride.

QUALITY HAY

FLUFFED UP NOT ROUGHED UP

If a storm hits while you're making hay, you'll need the New Holland Model 166 windrow inverter. It helps to dry hay fast, so you can bale or chop sooner. The "166" gently lifts, fluffs and turns windrows without roughing up the hay. So, you move your windrows onto dry ground for faster drying and retain valuable leaves.

For hay that's fluffed up not roughed up, check out the "166" today.

Dairy of Distinction Supplement to Lancaster Farming, Saturday, July 27, 1996

At this Dairy of Distinction, the herd owner family does no field work. The Daniel and Brenda Rice family pose with Dawn Inspire Mangingo Sophia EX, 31,000m 910p 1100f, the first cow in their herd to receive the top classification. They now have two more classified Excellent and 25 Very Good. In

This Dairyman Has Youthful Enthusiasm With Pencil-Pushing Practicality

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

KEMPTON (Berks Co.) - When you meet these new Berks County Dairy of Distinction owners, you sense an extraordinary youthful vision for the future of dairy farming. They are enthusiastic but not emotional. They do things differently, but these differences are based on practical business reasons and decisions that fit into the family's financial capability.

Both Daniel and Brenda Rice, Kempton, came from business backgrounds. Daniel left a large management development program he had entered right out of college to start dairy farming six years ago. Brenda has a degree in business. Together with their four children, Megan 6, Emily 5, Samantha 2, and Benjamin 4 mos., Daniel and Brenda are developing their Dapper Holstein herd into a financially sound enterprise that provides a living and allows the

To get a picture of this young dairy family, you should know that the farm is owned by an investment banker in New York City who uses the farm house as a vacation home. Two men hired by the farm owner manage the crops, do the field work, and keep the grounds around the buildings in top shape. The Rices do no field work, and they own only the 80 cows and 45 replacement heifers along with a TMR mixer, a feed cart, and a bedding chopper.

"This is the only way I could have gotten into the dairy business," Daniel said. "I have no family farm to start. And I can't imagine going out and borrowing all the money needed for both the cows and the equipment to farm. The debt load is overwhelming.

"By owning only the cows and buying the feed, our investment is low and hopefully the cows will pay for themselves in five years. We have averaged 30 percent on our investment in the last six years. People say that's impossible, but if your investment is low, it doesn't take a lot to make a good return on it. We're not dealing with a million dollar investment like a lot of farms are."

The Rices started farming on a place two miles from their present location. When they wanted to enlarge their 40 cow herd three years ago, they talked the investment banker who owns this farm into letting them use the vacant dairy barn and facilities. Then they moved the original herd and bought a small herd in Canada to bring together the base for their present herd.

The results have been good for everyone. The field croppers have a year-around market for their crops and receive the advantages of having the manure from the cows to grow the crops. The Rices have an enlarged dairy facility, have no investment in field machinery, have a source of homegrown feeds, and can spend all their time caring for the cows.

All the feed is weighed as it

Pennsylvania Dairy Of Distinction Farms Named

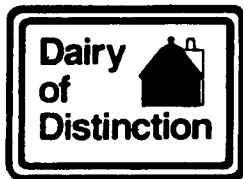

KINGSTON, PA — Pennsylvania residents will have more of an incentive to travel across the great state this summer, as thirty-five local dairy farms have just received awards for their aesthetic beauty. Sponsored by the Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program and the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council (ADADC), the Dairy of Distinction Program honors those dairy farmers who pay particular attention to the appearance of their land and buildings.

"When you drive by a dairy farm, most people don't realize that in addition to performing all of the tasks necessary to produce milk, many hours of work go into

R-WES DAIRY

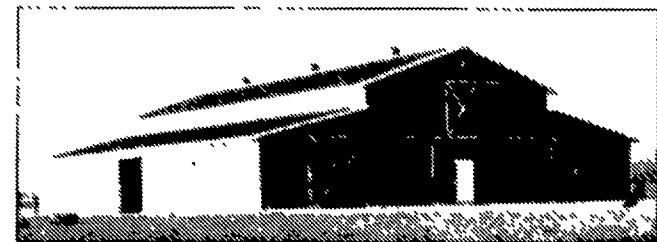

At R-WES Dairy Farm, located at Beaver Falls, Wesley and Catherine Diehl's new Dairy of Distinction has been in the family 50 years. Their 34 milk cows average 18,000 pounds of milk and are milked in a stall barn with pipeline milkers. They farm 180 acres on two farms and raise alfalfa, corn, and wheat, oats, and barley in rotation. Wesley believes quality of milk and good management practices are the necessary ingredients for a good dairy farm. Wesley and Catherine have two children, Christy, 22 and Ronald, 19, who is a student at Penn State.

SOIL COMMANDERS

NEW

The New Brillion Soil Commanders take Residue Management to the next generation of soil conservation efficiency.

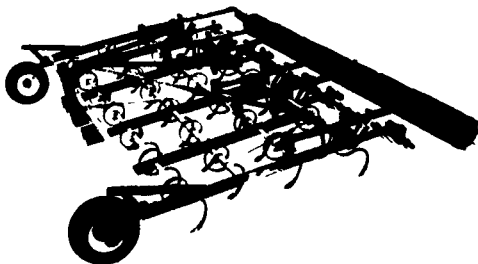

The Soil Commanders are versatile tillage tools designed to meet the needs of the mid-size farmer who uses a 150-200 H P tractor. One of the keys to the machine's versatility is that it uses interchangeable shank legs and individually mounted disk assemblies instead of a disk gang. This makes possible a machine with disk assemblies on the front and rear of the frame with chisel plow or deep-ripper shanks on 15", 24", 27" or 30" spacings

3 PT. BASKET HARROWS

Brillion has designed a 3 pt. S-Tine field cultivator with a larger, aggressively angled 12" diameter rolling basket, a 4-bar frame that allows for either 4" or 6" tooth spacing and an adjustable leveler bar in 12', 15' and 18' sizes. Gauge wheels are optional.

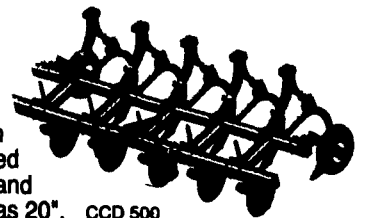

SERIES 03 PULVI-MULCHERS ML & WL

PULVI-MULCHERS Build a firm, clod-free seedbed - one that lets all the seeds germinate at one time. 12'6", 13'10", 15'2" & 18'9" rigid; 21'8" 25' and 30' flat fold.

There's lots more reasons to buy Brillion... stop in and we'll talk.

COMPACTION COMMANDERS NO-TILL RIPPER/DEEP RIPPER DESIGNED FOR YOUR CONSERVATION NEEDS 3-5-7 Shank

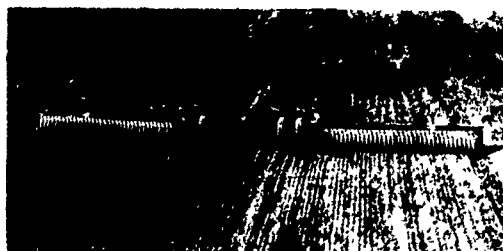

Brillion introduces their new Compaction Commander...designed to break up hardpan and compaction as deep as 20". CCD 500 The standard V-shaped alloy point and wear strip leaves residue on the surface with minimal soil disturbance. Auto-rest shanks with 20" of trip height allows for non-stop tillage. Parabolic shanks lift and fracture the soil. 39" of underframe clearance assures trouble free operation even in heavy residue.

P-SERIES TRANSPORT PULVERIZERS 10 Ft. to 18 Ft.

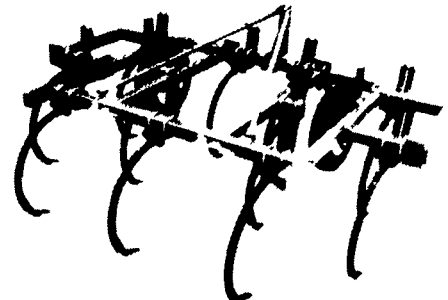

Rotary Frame Pulverizers; New PT10 Series Transport Concept. Machine weight is hydraulically rotated over the wheels for transport. This reduces draw bar hitch weight considerably and provides ample clearance for transport. Also Available As Pull Type.

X-FOLD PULVERIZERS

The X-Fold pulverizers are designed to meet the needs of today's larger acreage farmers...and Brillion offers them in two models and 11 sizes from 19' through 46'. Now available with 20" Ductile Wheels.

HFC FIELD CULTIVATORS 16½' to 31½'

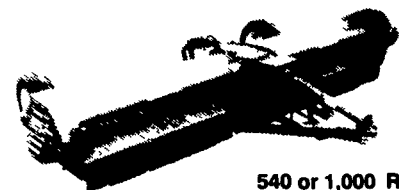

'C' Tooth -
4 Year Warranty

S-Tine -
3 Yr. Warranty

The "heart" of any field cultivator is the shank pivot point. A "bulked up" shank bracket made of cast ductile iron instead of the usual formed steel bracket, incorporated a hardened steel bushing AND a zerk grease fitting to lubricate the pivot point to reduce wear. The result is thousands of acres of extended life of the shanks.

MEETS THE CHALLENGE

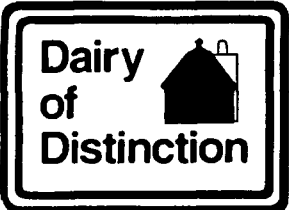

SANNER FARMS

At Sanner Farms, located near Kutztown in Berks County, the emphasis is on all-around management of both the dairy herd and the field crops so there is no weak link. Kenneth and Denise Sanner and their son Brett 12, are carrying on a 40-year tradition that started from grandfather's chicken house. Over the years the family has developed the dairy in a practical way so that today they milk 90 registered Holsteins in a double 4 milking parlor and have about that many replacements in the barns. They farm 300 acres of corn and hay to feed the cows.

DANIEL RICE

Daniel and Brenda Rice milk 80 registered Holsteins that average 24,000 lbs. of milk and have an additional 80 young replacements at their rented farm near Kempton in Berks County. Their prefix is Dapper Holsteins. They buy their feed from the farm owner and concentrate on taking care of the cows. Rice believes that in this area, you can buy feed as reasonable as raise it, and you don't have the frustration of machinery. On the other hand, the crop farmers can pay full attention to getting the forage made at peak nutritional value because they don't need to do the morning and evening chores. Daniel and Brenda have four children, Megan 6, Emily 5, Samantha 2, and Benjamin 4 mos.

STONY HOLLOW JERSEYS

At Stony Hollow Jerseys, they farm 135 acres of corn and alfalfa to feed their 70 milk cows and 65 head of young stock. Owned by Don and Jill Stonerook, Martinsburg, the farm has been in the family since 1884. Don is the 5th generation on the farm. The cows are housed in a freestall barn and milked in a parlor. Herd average is 14,700 lbs. of milk. Don is more interested in the bottom line than in an exceptionally high herd average. He says there are two ways to go at it: Increase the top line or decrease the input in the middle line. They choose to decrease the costs of inputs where possible. Don and Jill have two sons, Garrett 10, and Jason 5. Don is the current president of the Pennsylvania Jersey Cattle Association.

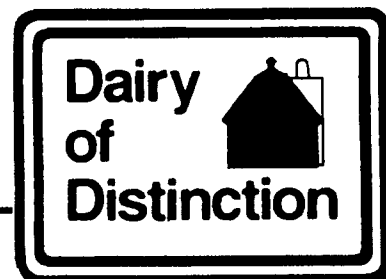

SOLLENBERGER FARMS

The Sollenberger Farm Dairy of Distinction, located at Curryville, has been in the family since 1919. Byron Sollenberger is retired from the board of directors of Atlantic Dairy, having served for 13 years. Byron's sons and families now farm the 430 acre homestead. Gerald and Jean have four children, Tom 19, Emily 17, Amanda 13, and Angela 11. Earlyn and Lanette have Tera, 6, and Westley, 4. Gene is single. They milk 160 Holsteins that average 20,000 lbs. of milk. Byron believes to be successful in the dairy business, you need to belong to a good cooperative so you have someone to work for and with you in marketing and promotion of dairy products.

Marburger Farm Dairy

The Marburger Farm Dairy of Distinction in Butler County was settled in the family in 1840, but they got the deed in 1842. The farm has 350 acres, but with rented ground they farm 700 acres. The dairy herd of Registered and grade Holsteins numbers about 260 head with production going to their own dairy processing right on the farm. In addition, Marburger Farm Dairy buys milk from 60 other neighboring farms to supply their private label distribution to stores, hospitals, schools and individual homes in a 40 mile radius of Evans City. Martin Marburger, 78, head of the family corporation said the dairy business continues to take a lot of patience, especially when you deal with all segments of the industry on one farm. The sale cattle for the National Holstein Convention Sale in Pittsburgh last year were housed at Marburger's farm.

SENECA VALLEY HOLSTEINS

At Seneca Valley Holstein Farm near Haromoy in Butler County, Dale and Paula Wack and Dale's parents Donald and Norma Wack are involved in developing a good registered Holstein herd rather than thinking in terms of great expansion. At present, they milk 47 registered Holsteins that average 24,700 pounds of milk. There are three excellent cows in the herd that averages 107 BAA. The farm was purchased by the family in 1978, and they farm 200 acres of corn and alfalfa to feed the cows. Dale says that to stay in the dairy business, you need to either expand or develop a better, smaller herd. For their land base and labor situation, the smaller herd where they can merchandise some of the offspring of good cows is better. Dale and Paula have two children, Carrie, 9, and Ashley, 4.

TANCO BALE WRAPPER

TANCO... The Wrapper That Wraps Bales Others Won't GIVES YOU HAY OF DISTINCTION

- Five (5) points of support on turntable: Four heavy duty rollers add stability and support to the perimeter of the turntable in addition to the main central shaft. This allows Tanco wrappers to safely wrap the heaviest silage bales on rough or uneven ground.
- Single solid belt on turntable: The single belt enables Tanco wrappers to effectively wrap misshapen or soggy bales providing a positive surface for bale rotation.
- Adjustable extendible axle: On trailed models the extendible axle provides a wide, stable wheel base when loading bales. Eliminates the need for counterweights.
- Top rollers on turntable: Extra rollers provide security to keep bales in place when wrapping at high RPM's (25) or on uneven terrain.
- Unloading ramp on trailed models: The ramp allows bales to be unloaded gently. When a wrapped bale falls hard it can "burp". Once it "burps" the bale does not reseal. The ramp gives a smooth transition between the ground and turntable.
- Optional "High Rise" axle kit for soft ground conditions.
- Models available to fit every individual need, including machines to wrap big square bales. Tanco was first to build a large square bale wrapper, & continues to produce advancements in bale wrapping technology.

- Positive bale positioning: While being wrapped, bales are rotated the exact distance required to obtain optimum coverage.
- Durability: Tanco's subframe is one of the heaviest of any machines available in North America. The low profile design keeps silage bales closer to the ground with a low center of gravity for stability. Tanco's features are the result of years of experience and input from hundreds of individual, and commercial users.
- Price: From a basic 3 point Model AW250, to the trailed Model AW550 with automatic cut & start, bale and batch counter, and tractor seat controls, Tanco prices are very competitive. Pay less for more features and durability than any other bale wrapper on the market.

enters the TMR mixer. Costs for roughages are set on a yearly basis, and grain costs are figured each month according to the market price.

While the herd average is over 24,000m, Daniel is more interested in milk per person produced in a year. Last year's production of two million pounds is about where he thinks they should be, but he has his sights set on a little more production per person because they spend all their time with the cows.

Last winter they milked 3x, but the loss of hired help over summer has them back to 2x right now. Brenda likes to help with the physical labor of caring for the cows too. But their four small children take her time now. She still keeps the books and helps make the management decisions.

There are three cows classified Excellent and 25 Very Good in the herd. Individual records go up to 35,836m 1188f 1109p. Daniel breeds his cows to bulls with 90 percent reliability with proofs of plus 2,000m and plus 2 type points. Longevity is his greatest desire in breeding dairy cows. He is not a fan of index numbers which tend to weight preferences toward high producing two year-olds with little regard for the value of aged cows with good lifetime production.

"Our goal is to sell half of our heifer crop each year, so that means we need to keep the necessity for culling our cows at a low rate," Daniel said. "It costs $1,300 to $1,500 to raise a heifer to first freshening. If you can sell the heifer rather than replace a cull cow, you have a cash income increase rather than a replacement cost expense. I would rather keep the old cows even if it takes a little longer to get them bred."

Last year the cull rate in the herd was 13 percent. There are quite a few cows in the herd over 10 years-old. While part of the success for long-lasting cows comes from genetics, environment plays an important part too. Daniel credits his cow mattresses, tunnel ventilation, and extra box stalls, as reasons why the cows would rather be in the barn than out on pasture. When you walk into the barn, you can see and feel that these cows are comfortable.

BST is used according to body condition later in lactation after they are bred back. "We don't use BST when they say we should," Daniel said. "We use it only when body condition merits it. We have found that it helps production, and I have seen a profit increase from using it the way we do. I don't like it, but if you are going to compete, it's another management tool. It would have been better if we had never seen BST, but it's out there, so we use it."

"I haven't seen any herd health problems related to BST. In fact, our herd health has been better since we started to use it. Some cows are naturally thick, and you can give them BST and keep their body weight down. If you have a frail dairy kind of cow, you would not use BST on her. BST actually benefits a small herd more because you can manage it better. We do body scores each month, and if the cow is in good flesh and bred back, we use it."

"With BST we are not quite as worried about getting the cows bred back as fast as we once were, especially the two year-olds. Our calving intervals have been extended to between 13 and 14 months since we have increased the higher production levels in the lactation a little longer with BST."

Daniel believes there is a real future in the dairy business for those who "push the pencil" and specialize in what they are doing. Each farm is different, and it is never good to compare your farm with another situation. Each individual must assess his or her own situation. For example, the grazers have little investment so their situation may work on their farm. For the Rices, caring for the cows and having no field work works for them. But Daniel's main caution is to find a situation where you can manage your debt.

"In the future, I see that dairy farmers will need to be sharp pencil pushers," Daniel said. "We are gearing up to increase our size and become even more specialized. With our smaller investment, we always have the option to get out without much trouble. If we see it's just not working, and the dairy business goes sour, we can have a cow jockey in here tomorrow and be out of the business by Saturday.

"But to be successful, you need to gear up to be big enough to buy in bulk and specialize unless you want to have a lot of employees."

"I got out of college and went into a management development program for a large organization. But the guys who trained me never saw their families. They worked from five in the morning to eight at night six days a week. That's why I left the program. If I'm going to put in that kind of time, I might as well work for myself and see my family at the same time."

"I like business, dairy or otherwise, and I have looked at other opportunities. But always, if you are the manager or the owner, you put in a lot of time."

"It's a long hard road getting started in dairy farming," Daniel said. "And we are not out of that hard road yet, but with half decent milk prices and grain prices settling down a bit, I think the dairy business is going to be good for the next several years. Maybe after that it will tighten up a little again, but I'm looking forward to it."

maintaining the appearance of the farm as well," says Branda Beltram, Communications Director for ADADC. "Every time a consumer drives by a dairy farm and thinks of it as a beautiful, wholesome place, that's good publicity for milk."

Created in 1983, the Dairy of Distinction Program, is designed to highlight those farms that help to create a positive image for milk. Applicants for the Dairy of Distinction award are judged by committees who evaluate the farms' roadside appearance, as well as the cleanliness of the grounds and buildings.

Winning farms receive official 18x24 "Dairy of Distinction" signs which are mounted at the roadside for all to see. Award winning farms are also visited annually by the judging committee to ensure that they continue to meet the standards of excellence set by the program.

BIRCHFIELD FARMS

Donald and Jill Birchfield and Donald's parents Ronald and Marlene Birchfield farm 350 acres in Crawford County near Conneaut Lake. The land was purchased by the family in 1940. They milk 60 Holstein cows and average 65 pounds of milk per day in the tank. The cows are housed in a stall barn with pipeline milkers. They raise 120 acres of corn, along with oats and alfalfa to feed the cows. Donald believes you need to keep the cows milking at full capacity and you need to like the cows if you are going to do a good job with them. The next generation is on the farm. Adam just turned six years-old.

LAIDIG VIEW FARM

Laidig View Farm, this new Dairy of Distinction, located north of Harrisonville in Fulton County, has been in the family for 160 years. It was named a century farm last year. Curtis and Donna Brant represent the fourth generation on the farm, and they milk 55 head of Holsteins with a herd average over 19,000 pounds of milk. The cows are housed in freestalls and milked in a stantion barn. Curtis puts good family relationships along with good management and herd health at the top of the list of things needed for a good dairy operation. Curtis and Donna have three children, Carrie 15, Kelle 12, and Evan 5.

KROTZER FARMS

For Daryl and Susie Krotzer, Liberty, this is their second Dairy of Distinction. The first year, in 1987, when they received the award, they were in partnership. Now that they have taken over the operation on their own, they applied again, and, of course, were again given the honor under the new arrangement. Daryl is the fifth generation on the farm, and they milk 40 Holsteins in a stall barn with pipeline milkers. They have an additional 40 replacement stock. They believe family, church, and farm are important and try to keep a proper perspective on life. The Krotzer children are, Jacob, 9; Katie, 8, and Jesse 6.

DAWN—MAR FARM

Marlin and Dawn Leshner and family own this new Dairy of Distinction located west of Pitman in Northumberland County. The milk 68 registered Holsteins under the prefix of Dawn-Mar Holsteins. They also have about this many replacement heifers and feed out some steers. Crops on the 300 acres they farm include corn, alfalfa, barley, and oats. Individual records go up to 27,000 lbs. of milk, and they have quite a number of cows classified very good. Marlin and Dawn's children are Melodee 20, Joy 16, and Timothy 12.

*Because Milk Is Food The Kleintop Family
Keep Their Dairy Of Distinction Clean Inside And Outside.*

The Raymond and Doris Kleintop, Jr., family farm 1200 acres near Klecknersville in Northampton County. This new Dairy of Distinction was purchased by the Kleintop family in 1940. Today Raymond's and Doris' children and grandchildren are part of the farming operation. They milk 150 Holsteins and have a total of 400 head of dairy cattle on the farms. A freestall barn and milking parlor are used to handle the cows.

Because milk is a food, Raymond said the most important thing to practice around the dairy is cleanliness. "Because milk is a food, you need to keep it clean," Raymond said. Other words used by the family to describe important things about dairy farming are "patience, devotion, determination, faith, good management, and family togetherness."

The Kleintop family are not looking to get larger. While they own 200 acres, the additional large number of acres of rented ground are near development areas where you don't know if you will have the land to farm from one year to the next. At present they grow almost all of their feed on the farms to feed the cows and for cash crops. A TMR mix is used from the silos. They do not use BST. In the photo, the Kleintop family members include from left, Jason and Carl on the tractor; Chris and Larry, Doris and Raymond holding the Dairy of Distinction sign; Jeff, Derek; Rick holding Candace, Lisa, Cody, Connie, and Adam, Dennis and Nathan Bealer.

President Baker's Message

Since the Dairy of Distinction program began in Pennsylvania in 1987, hundreds of dairy farmers have applied to have their farms recognized as a "Dairy of Distinction."

Those attractive farms that were honored to receive the colorful farm sign are truly an advertisement for their industry, not only to their neighbors, but to those who pass their farms. This is the purpose of the program: to be a point of pride in promoting the source of the state beverage—milk.

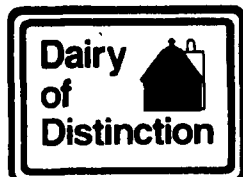

However the executive committee recognizes there are many more farms that would merit the designation if only they would submit an application to the program. Also, there are those farms that entered in the past that have truly improved the appearance of their farms and would now qualify. But no one else can enter for you. Mr., Mrs., or Ms. Dairy Farmer, this is a self nominating program. Only you can take the initiative to complete the application and send it in. We encourage you to participate in 1997.

It will make us all proud to see more farms strive to become a "Dairy of Distinction."

Thank you again to all our hard-working volunteers on the committees for making the program successful the past eight years.

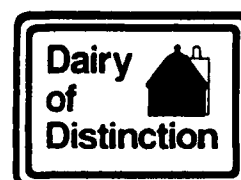

Dan Baker
President, Pennsylvania
Dairy of Distinction Program

Editor's Note: 1997 application forms for Dairy of Distinction will be available after January 1, 1997. Forms are distributed by the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc., Tower Business Building, 239 Schuylar Ave., Box 5, Kingston, PA 1874-3378.

KENYON JERSEY HILL FARM

Kenyon Jersey Hill Farm owned by Leonard and Dana Kenyon and managed by son Kent features Registered Jerseys. Kent is the 6th generation of the family on the farm. The 60 cows average just under 14,000 lbs of milk and they are housed in a stall barn and milked with pipeline. The farm is located six miles north of Coudersport in Potter County. The farm's 350 acres are used to grow oats, corn, and hay for the cows.

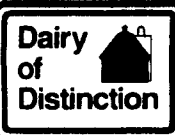

LEMMON FARM

David and Martha Jean Lemmon own this new Dairy of Distinction in Somerset County, located near Markleton. The farm came into the family in 1949, and today the Lemmons' two sons and their families do the farming. They milk 60 Holsteins with a 21,000 lbs. of milk average and have used an intensive grazing program for seven years. Each paddock has been supplied with water, and the cows are rotated in the pastures from late April to November. Cost savings have been great on this program. Son Larry and his wife Karen have two children, Michael 5, and Kelsey 2. Son Gregg and his wife Barbara have three children, Rane 11, Amber 5, and Bradley 2.

O'BRIEN FARMS

Edward and Earlene O'Brien and their children farm 625 acres southwest of Somerset that has been named a Dairy of Distinction. They have 150 Holsteins that average 21,600 lbs. of milk and are milked in a double six milking unit. While the parlor is 28 years-old, new computerized equipment has been installed to determine milk weights and feed requirements of each animal at the time of milking. Their calves are raised by another farmer and come back to the farm just before freshening as two year-olds. The farm came into the family in 1937. Son Todd and his wife Rosalie and daughter Tanya and her husband Kenneth are all involved in running the farm.

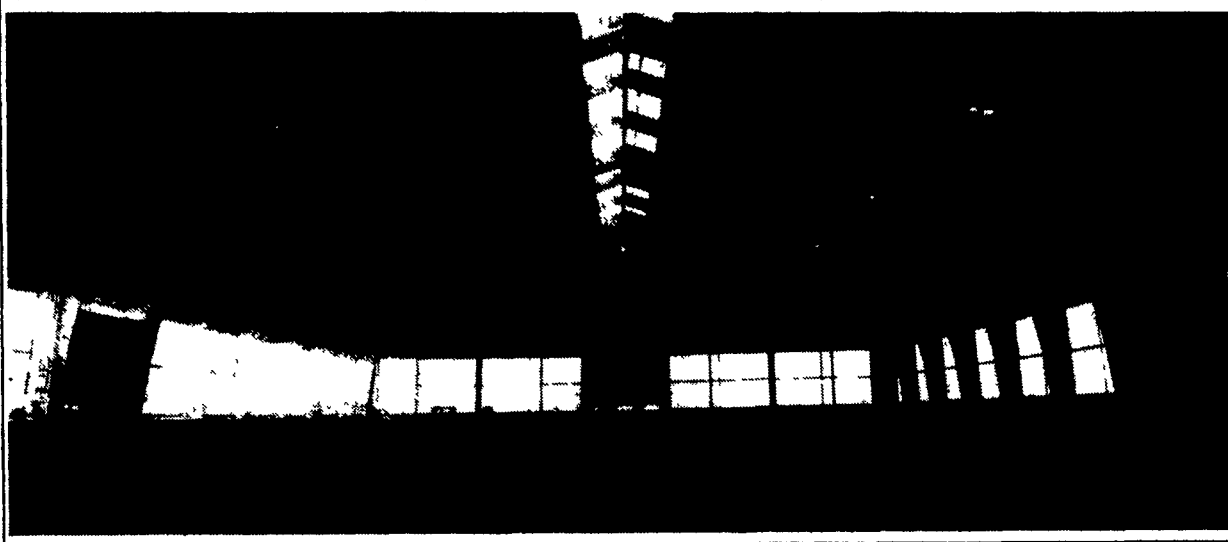

HILLCREST SAYLORS DAIRY FARM

Richard Saylor and his father Maynard have this new Dairy of Distinction in Somerset County, located near Rockwood. They farm 800 acres and milk 250 cows and have that many helpers and calves too. The farm was purchased in the early 1900's and Richard is the 3rd generation to live on the farm. Over the years, expansions have been made to keep up with the times. Recently a new freestall barn was built to house 200 head. A TMR is used and the cows are milked in a flat parlor. They raise corn and alfalfa to supply the roughage, and they have two full-time employees. Richard and his wife Patricia have three children, Shawn 23, Samuel 13, and Sarah 11.

FORKS Mt. HOLSTEINS

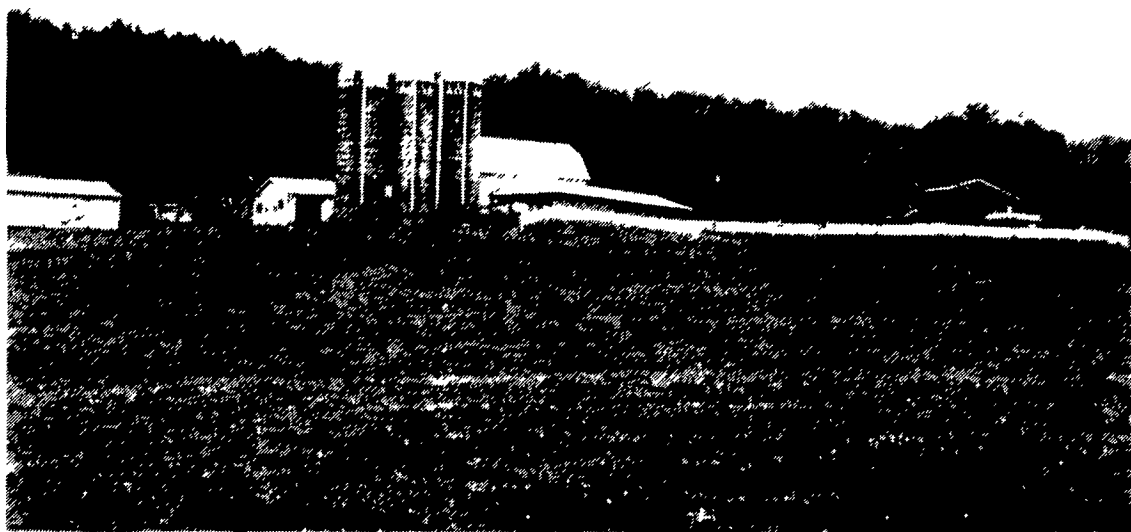

At Forks Mountain Holstein Farms, Michael and Nadine Molyneux, Forksville, in Sullivan County, milk 60 registered Holsteins that produce 21,600 pounds of milk. They have been farming this farm for only four years. From a start of 22 cows they have developed the herd that included a total of 125 head with young stock.

Michael grew up on a dairy farm and then sold the herd and was out of the dairy business for eight years. But he says the problems off the farm are the same as on the farm, and he prefers the farming way of life. They farm several hundred acres, mostly rented ground and raise alfalfa and corn to feed the cows. They have three children, Davina, 12; Serena, 5, and Dalton, 2.

SHAMROCK FARMS

At Shamrock Farms, Edward and Sandra Kelly, Montrose, milk 50 Holstein cows, but they raise no replacements. Instead, they buy short bred and open cows at auctions and private sales and bring them into the milking herd as replacements at lower cost. With this method they give no consideration to herd average, seeking only to get the most milk from the cows while they are in the milking line. The farm has been in the family since 1979. They farm 310 acres of corn and hay. A nephew, Doug Cosler, and another hired person help on the farm too. Edward and Sandra have one child, Joanna, 10.

EVERGREEN LANE FARM

While Evergreen Lane Farm has just been named a Dairy of Distinction, owners Mark and Cindy Tompkins try to keep the inside as clean as the outside. Proof positive is their perfect score from the milk inspector in the milk house. The Tompkins, along with Roy Johnson, who has worked for them 11 years, and Mark's parents Warren and Ida Tompkins, farm 250 acres in Susquehanna County three miles north of Montrose. The farm was purchased by the family in the early 60's, and they milk 65 Holsteins with a herd average of 21,400 lbs. of milk. Total dairy animals on the farm is 115 head. Cindy said they don't have a large operation but just the right size for them to take care of everything well. Mark and Cindy have one son Trevor who is 10 mos. old.

SWEET-PEAS HOLSTEINS

Lloyd and Denise Pease, Susquehanna, built the new barn two years ago on land that has been in the family for many years. They farm 200 acres in Susquehanna County and milk 60 registered Holsteins in a stall barn with pipeline. Their herd average is over 24,000 lbs. of milk. To reduce equipment costs, they grow only grass hay and buy their grain. Lowering costs and treating farming like a business are things you need to do if you are going to stay in the dairy business. In addition, Lloyd believes you need to take good care of the cows. Lloyd and Denise have two children, Matthew, 13, and Heather, 10.

Plan To Enter The Next Dairy Of Distinction Program

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) - The Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program, Inc., is prepared to receive applications for the 1997 awards. This program rewards clean, well-kept farms to help with consumer acceptance of dairy products in the store.

State President Dan Baker, dairyman from Covington, Tioga County, said the program has been well-received, and officers look forward to an excellent program again next year.

"There are plenty of good looking dairy farms out there that have not been judged," Baker said. "And even those who have entered the selection process in the past years without success should enter again."

The program provides rewards of recognition to producers who maintain attractive production sites. This recognition benefits the entire dairy industry, as well as individual dairy farmers. Not only does the favorable publicity generated by the program in the general press help bring modern farm practices to the attention of urban people, farmers use the distinction to promote their own operation or seek and hire farm labor.

Paul Nichols, the secretary for the Pennsylvania program, said applications may be sent to him any time after January 1, 1996. Deadline for applications is April 15. Judging is completed in May and is based on the roadside appearance of buildings, grounds, and surroundings. The states are divided into districts, and a local committee oversees the program in each district.

A team of judges designated by the local committee visits each farm and uses a score sheet to rate each farm. In Pennsylvania, in addition to this team of judges, the sanitarian for the farm's cooperative or dealer-handler is asked to be part of the judging process.

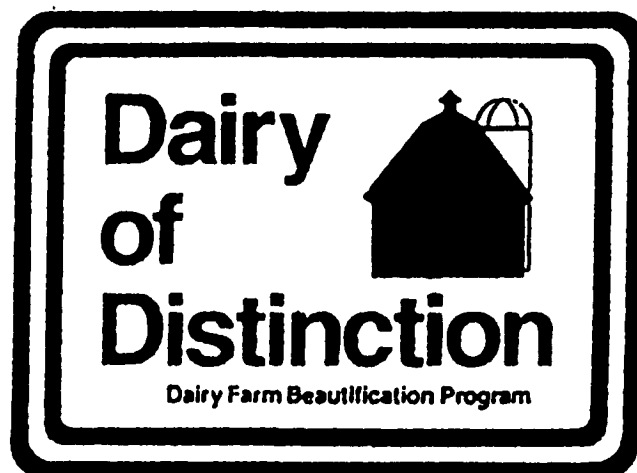

"One of the things I always tell people is that even though they may not now have the most fancy place, they can work toward the principles of the Dairy of Distinction program," Nichols said. "By doing this, they work toward a goal that encourages consumers to use more dairy products."

Winners receive a colorful, 18x24-inch Dairy of Distinction sign to be placed at the entrance to the farmstead. In addition, as in past years, an 11x14-inch color portrait of the farm will be given by Lancaster Farming to each winning farm in the Pennsylvania program.

This representative Dairy of Distinction Farm was named in 1996 and is owned by the partnership of Ted Latuch and nephews Roger and David Latuch near Rockwood in Somerset County. Farms that look attractive help to make a good impression on consumers who buy dairy products.

"As a dairy farmer, you work hard all year long, taking care of your farm," said Helen Fountain, program executive secretary. "In addition to managing your herd, there are lawns to mow, flowers to plant, and overall maintenance to keep farm buildings looking great. You deserve to be recognized for all the hard work, dedication and pride you put into your farmstead.

"It's time you and your farm received some recognition for your hard work. The coveted Dairy of Distinction award will give you that recognition. In addition, your attractive farm will enhance consumer confidence in the wholesomeness of milk, thereby stimulating milk sales and encourage public support for the dairy industry."

Active dairy farms in New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania are eligible to apply for the award. Criteria for Dairy of Distinction awards include clean and attractively finished buildings; neat landscaping, ditches, roads and lands; and well-maintained fences. Cleanliness of animals, barnyard, feed areas, as well as manure management, are also taken into consideration.

Applications are available from each state's program secretary or local cooperative extension. In New York, contact Carol Weddle, New York, Holstein Assn., 957 Mitchell St., Box 190, Ithaca, N.Y. 14851. In New Jersey, contact August Knispel, RD 1, Box 325, Pittstown, N.J. 08867.

In Pennsylvania, you may contact Paul Nichols, American Dairy Association/Dairy Council, Tower Business Building, 239 Schuyler Ave., Kingstown, PA 18704.

Pennsylvania Districts

Pennsylvania is divided into 10 districts. Up to 10 Dairy of Distinction awards will be made each year in each district. There is no cost to the applicant.

Pennsylvania area chairpersons are: District 11, George Wilcox; District 12, Brett Brumbaugh; District 13, Susan DuJour; District 14, Dave and Janet Hileman; District 15, Norman Coons; District 16, Bernice Gabel; District 17, Dan Baker; District 18, Allen Roszel; District 19, James Barnett; and District 20, Russell Rooks.

As a winner, you will receive a certificate and a nice sign to install at the end of your farm lane. In addition, Lancaster Farming will present a color farm portrait print to each of this year's winners in Pennsylvania. If your farm is a winner, be sure you or your district committee takes a color photograph of your farm and sends the negative and proof to Lancaster Farming in time for the awards ceremony.

A 1996 winner is Earl and Carol Hendershot's farm near Warfordsburg in Fulton County. To apply for your farm's designation use the above application.

INTRODUCING THE ONLY REFRIGERATION UNIT DESIGNED TO WORK UNDER THESE CONDITIONS.

To cool milk, you need a unit that's built for the task.

The new Energy Star™ is a true refrigeration unit—rather than the air-conditioning compressor you may currently be using. Energy Star has a Copeland® scroll compressor that is specifically designed to handle the large temperature changes required to cool milk. And since it's made for milk, Energy Star is the most energy-efficient unit available for the dairy industry.

The Mueller® Energy Star comes with a single variable-speed fan and sub-cooling coil for greater efficiency. If you would like to know more, call the dealer nearest you.

AMETHYST HOLSTEINS

At John Rishel's Dairy of Distinction located near Millinburg in Union County they do things differently. John owns the farm, takes care of the dairy, but rents out the ground. The cash rent lease is openended so that John can purchase the crops or not depending on what is the best. This gives the dairyman a lot of options. John purchased the farm two years ago from a non-farm background although he learned to love the farm from his grandparents. He has a degree in business. His 33 Holstein cows under the Amethyst prefix average 23,831 lbs. of milk and are milked in a tie stall barn with pipeline. For anyone who likes cows, John would recommend the dairy farm life to anyone.

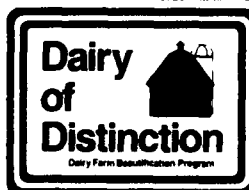

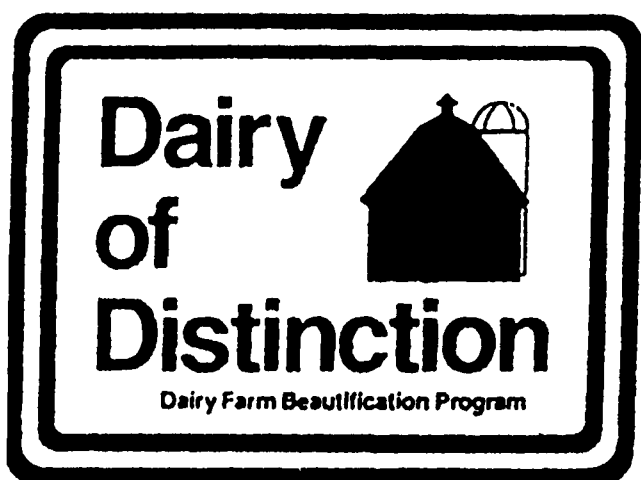

WITMAN FARM

Randy Witman, owner of this new Dairy of Distinction in Venango County near Cochran, didn't grow up on a farm. But he worked on farms when he was in high school and this gave him the interest. After assembling one herd of cows and selling them to a Pittsburgh businessman, Randy came to this farm four years ago and now milks 100 registered Holsteins and the corresponding replacement heifers. He has a freestall barn, milks in a parlor and feeds TMR. At present Randy and his dad do the work on 150 acres. The DHIA records are unpublished.

Governor's Office

PROCLAMATION

DAIRY OF DISTINCTION WEEK August 11 - 17, 1996

WHEREAS, Last year, the 645,000 dairy cows on our Commonwealth's farms produced 10.6 billion pounds of milk, which maintained Pennsylvania's status as the fourth largest milk producing state in the country. Pennsylvania also ranks second nationally in the annual production of ice cream, with 66 million gallons per year, and sixth in the production of cheese, with 348 million pounds per year; and

WHEREAS, the dairy industry is the leading segment of our Commonwealth's number one industry, agriculture. More than 38 percent of the agricultural income of Pennsylvania is generated by milk sales which represent a $1.46 billion contribution to the Commonwealth's economy. In addition to our 11,800 commercial dairy farmers, thousands of Pennsylvanians are employed in the manufacturing and processing of dairy products. As these statistics reveal, the Pennsylvania dairy industry continues to be sensitive to and meet the changing demands of consumers; and

WHEREAS, the Dairy of Distinction program was developed to recognize the most attractive dairy farms in Pennsylvania. Rating them for neatness, maintenance and roadside appearance, a team of skilled judges carefully select those dairy farms exhibiting the highest standards of excellence. Since the inception of the program in 1987, six hundred and thirty-three Commonwealth farms have been honored, including thirty-five farms receiving Dairy of Distinction awards in 1996.

THEREFORE, In special recognition of the strength and vitality that our dairy farmers and their families bring to our rural communities, I, Tom Ridge, Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, do hereby proclaim August 11 - 17, 1996, as DAIRY OF DISTINCTION WEEK in Pennsylvania. I encourage all Pennsylvanians to recognize the invaluable contributions made by the dairy industry to our economy and our quality of life.

GIVEN under my hand and the Seal of the Governor, at the City of Harrisburg, this eleventh day of July in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and ninety-six and of the Commonwealth the two hundred and twenty-first.

Butter Is Dairy Industry's Cinderella

GEORGE F.W. HAENLEIN
Extension Dairy Specialist
University of Delaware

NEWARK, Del. — Just as Cinderella has been much maligned, butter hasn't fared much better the last three decades.

There was margarine, promoted by plant oil processors and other big-money interests. And margarine was cheaper, so who could resist?

Then there was the medical research news on heart-disease risks. Who wanted to ignore that?

Only the gourmets and great chefs resisted the trend toward margarine, as well as a few dyed-in-the-wool traditionalists who remembered the wonderful fragrance and finer tastes butter lent to their mothers' home cooking.

No butter-substitute could ever match the taste of foods cooked and baked with the real thing, or the satisfying flavor of bread spread with butter.

The worldwide dairy industry was so seriously affected by this direction away from butter that the popular Guernseys, Jerseys and Milking Shorthorns, with their high butterfat contents in milk, were supplanted to near extinction.

The replacement cows were mostly Holstein-Friesians, whose milk has low butterfat contents.

In stores, whole milk (with at least 3.5 percent fat contents) fell from grace, giving way to skim milk, 1 percent — now the biggest seller — and 2 percent. The result was a butter surplus, which in Europe they termed "the butter mountain."

Politicians tried desperately to devise new ways of getting rid of this suddenly unwanted member of the dairy family. Then nobody called butter Cinderella. Instead, butter was termed a liability, forcing many dairy farmers to lose ground financially and eventually quit.

I remember a story about a Holstein farmer and a Jersey farmer in the days before the butter-mountain disaster.

The Holstein advocate teased the Jersey proponent: "When you milk Jersey milk into a can containing a quarter at the bottom, your milk barely covers it!"

To which the Jersey farmer replied: "Yeah, but when I milk your Holstein milk into that can, I still can see the quarter, even when the can is full. And that's why on my Jersey farm I always keep one Holstein cow. I milk her last so that my milking pipeline is rinsed out!"

When Holsteins took over the American dairy industry market and the butter mountain grew bigger, that story became bittersweet.

But like with so many unjustly maligned things, the truth will surface eventually, and the liabilities will turn into assets.

A few years ago I stumbled onto some little-known medical research that dealt with a part of butterfat that no one had paid much attention to.

All the health-risk-type news on butter was concerned with the saturated long-chain fatty acids, ignoring the fact that butter is made up of many other types of fatty acids and in varying proportions, which can change greatly as a result of different types of feed fed to cows, goats, sheep and other milking animals.

Specifically, ruminant milk contains at least one-quarter to one-half of other fatty acids than the saturated long-chain type, which is the one that receives bad press.

Most of these other fatty acids are of the short- and medium-chain type, which in human nutrition and metabolism behave quite differently from the long-chain type. They do not add to fat deposits in the belly and hips; instead, they are used as readily available energy.

In addition, these short- and medium-chain fatty acids have the remarkable ability not only to lower blood serum cholesterol, but to inhibit cholesterol deposition.

According to published medical research literature, the short- and medium-chain fatty acids also have been successful as medical treatments for patients (especially infants and young children) suffering from various digestive malabsorption disorders.

Thus, butter should actually be called one of the good guys and not lumped together in the news with the bad-guy fats — the saturated long-chain types.

Furthermore, you can bank on the ability of dairy animals to produce butter with more or less of those good guys, depending on how you feed them.

And, finally, other people are beginning to notice this information, too. According to Dr. R. Bishop, the new head of the Dairy Research Center at Madison, Wis., milk is becoming very valuable, not just as a traditional drink and precursor of yogurt and cheeses, but as a resource of other interesting components.

Some proteins isolated from milk were sold recently to a Japanese cosmetic industry for $3,000 per pound!

But the big news comes from the components of milk making up the much-slandered butter.

Some butter fractions are replacing cocoa fat in chocolate, giving it better aging qualities and appearance. This use gives butter a 50 percent profit margin!

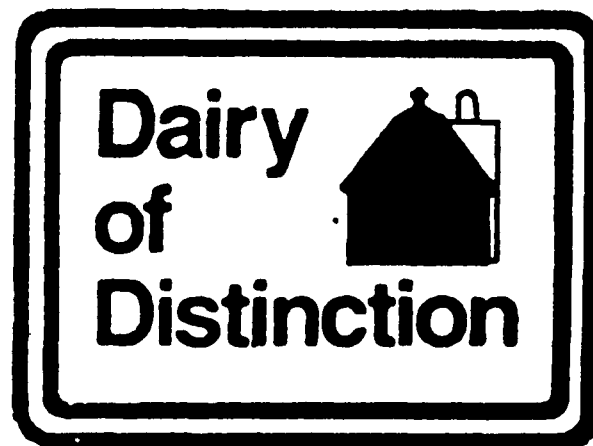

New Zealand apparently is way ahead of the United States in marketing soft butter, the demand for which in England is exceeding supplies. This kind of butter contains greater amounts of the short- and medium-chain fatty acids.

The medical applications of this advance are far-reaching.

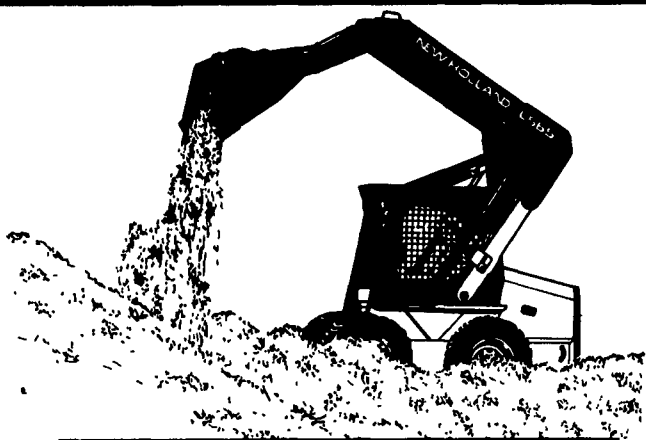

The Dairy Research Center in Madison, with the support of the National Dairy Board, is spearheading work on fractionation of milk components, especially butter, to develop new commercial products, thanks to the new technology of fractionation of milk. In fact, he considers fractionation the "greatest invention since butter and cheese."

The burnishing of butter's brighter image could be the dairy industry's Cinderella story of the '90s. And dairy farmers, who have always worked long, hard hours with their milking animals, may benefit from butter's recovering prospects. Then they, too, can look forward to a happy ending of their own — a change for the better financially.

Congratulations to all Dairy of Distinction Winners

BLAD And Milk Production

Larry W. Spect
Dairy Science Extension
Penn State

Bovine Leukocyte Adhesion Deficiency [BLAD] is a genetic defect that surfaced in the past ten to fifteen years in the Holstein breed. The mode of inheritance is similar to that of the "red factor" in Holsteins. Animals are either normal [do not have the recessive gene that is responsible for the defect], or are "carriers" [have one defective gene but appear normal] or have two copies of the recessive which permits the defect to be expressed. Carrier animals transmit the gene to their offspring one-half the time. Mating two carrier animals will, on average, produce one normal [non-carrier] calf, two "carriers" and one calf afflicted with the problem. In the latter case, such calves usually die shortly after birth because their immune system is compromised. Those that survive are weak and small.

Controlling the spread of this defect in the breed is fairly simple. Just do not breed carrier animals to each other. A more extreme step is to not use BLAD carriers as parents of the next generation. The major AI units have taken two steps to control its spread. First, by testing and culling nearly all of the bulls that are carriers. Less than 10% of the bulls in active AI service are carriers. Secondly, all young bulls slated for progeny testing are checked and the carriers are culled. These steps have reduced the incidence of BLAD carriers in regular service. Such action, initiated five-six years ago has markedly reduced the incidence of carriers to almost nothing and has the potential to eliminate it from the male side of the pedigree in AI bred cattle.

A number of well respected bulls have been carriers of BLAD. Carlin-M Ivanhoe Bell, well known as a sire of high production, and a number of his sons are carriers. According to Michael Cowen of Genetic Visions, 23% of the young Holstein bulls sampled in AI in 1989 were carriers. The figure is near zero today.

Because a number of bulls that carried BLAD were near or at the top of the list of potential mating sires, some people wondered if BLAD was linked to yield and if the removal of such bulls would slow genetic gain. Genetic Visions and the USDA Animal Improvement Programs Lab have cooperated in studying the question. Sons of four Holstein bulls that were carriers were divided into two groups, carrier and non-carrier. The comparison showed no difference between the two groups for yield traits. The conclusion was that removal of BLAD carriers from breeding programs would not slow genetic progress for milk production.

Some Tips On Remodeling For Calves, Heifers

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Old buildings can be used to raise dairy replacements successfully or they can be a continuous drain on resources and result in health and growth problems.

Whether a brand new pole barn or a remodeled 1825 barn, the requirements for raising healthy dairy replacements are the same.

The barn must provide adequate grouping, excellent year-round ventilation, continuously available frost proof water, good observation of all animals, easy mechanical cleaning for all groups without excessive moving of animals, and convenient access to appropriate feeds.

Determining the true value of an existing building is difficult. Even professionals have trouble identifying all the hidden costs in renovation. When the farmer tries to do this there are additional considerations.

"That's the first barn grandpa built when he came here" or "But I put a new roof on the barn 12 years ago." These can be valid reasons for keeping a building. They can also cloud a realistic evaluation of the building's value.

Why is the building available in the first place? Was it unsuitable for everything else so now we'll try it for heifers? Are the ceilings too low to get power equipment in?

The most important consideration when evaluating an existing building for remodeling is location. Remember the first three rules in real estate for determining value are location, location, and location.

The same is true for a barn. No amount of money short of moving the structure can truly make up for a barn that is in the wrong place.

• Location. Is access to the existing structure adequate for cleanout and delivery of feed and bedding? For animal traffic to and from pastures? For needed utilities? For proper animal care and regular observation? Does this location fit into a logical long-range plan for replacement housing? Is this location on the farm better suited for other uses, such as shop, storage, garage, open space?

If the building stands the location test, it's time to do a closer analysis. Items to consider include ventilation, floor plan restrictions, and structural condition.

• Ventilation. Can the building be opened up to provide adequate year-round natural ventilation, or is a more costly mechanical ventilation system required? If you cannot realistically provide a good healthful environment year-round, don't renovate.

• Layout. The same rules for good layout for animal traffic and chore patterns should be applied to existing buildings as to new ones. Can a good floor plan be established around existing poles and walls? Can frostproof water be installed? What's the cost to

Here's How To Plan Dairy Freestall Barns

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — A freestall dairy barn is a housing unit that provides for the resting, eating, exercising and drinking needs of a producing dairy cow, dry cow, or heifer.

There are many questions that must be answered when designing, building, or operating a freestall dairy barn.

What's a good freestall?

A good freestall or cubicle provides comfort, promotes cleanliness, and prevents injuries to dairy cattle. It should provide enough room for the largest cow in the herd to enter freely, lie down, rest comfortably, and rise easily. A good freestall base will be dry, soft, and conforming. A properly designed and managed freestall will pass the three knee tests.

• First, can you drop hard to one knee without major discomfort? Since a cow free-falls the last 12 inches or so as she reclines, imagine how her knees must feel if the base is too hard.

• Second, how long can you comfortably support your weight on one knee? Do the base and bedding materials conform to support your entire knee cap, spreading out the weight, or is the surface hard and nonconforming?

• Third, when you get up after these tests, is your knee clean and dry or wet and stained? For new freestalls a length of eight feet and a width of four feet will provide adequate space for the cow to recline and rise comfortably. Shorter stalls require special provisions to give the cow room to lunge forward as she rises or reclines.

What's the best freestall barn layout, two row or three row?

A good freestall barn layout provides convenient cow movement and access to the feed area, water, freestalls, milking center, and, if available, exercise lot or pasture. Coordinate freestalls, feed space, and watering locations to provide adequate room and reasonable travel distances for cows. Barn layout also affects manure removal patterns, feed distribution, and ventilation.

The best layouts place either two rows or three rows of freestalls and a feed line along two parallel travel alleys. If two rows of stalls are placed along a feed line there will be two feet of feed space along the bunk for each freestall. If three rows are used, only about 16 inches of feeding space will be available for each stall. A good layout also provides at least two watering locations in each group and two travel paths between feeding and resting areas.

For complete answers on freestalls, refer to Guidelines for Planning Dairy Cattle Freestalls. Information is also available from the Dairy Practices Council and the Northeast Regional Agricultural Engineering Service.

National Milk Production Figures

California held onto its number one ranking as the top milk producing state in 1995 even though milk production increased only 0.3% from 1994. Adverse weather conditions and high feed costs kept production well below the 10.1% growth experienced in 1994. Wisconsin, which lost its title to California in 1993, has remained in second place. New York finished third, although each year number four Pennsylvania moves in closer.

Total US milk production for 1995 rose 1.3% (nearly 2.0 billion lbs). Milk production in the top ten milk producing states, as a whole, grew 1.8% (about 1.9 billion lbs). The table shows the top ten states' milk production changes from 1993 - 1995.

Treating Special Cows Special

Robert Graves

Dairy farms with high-producing herds learn to accommodate the individual needs of each cow.

The period of time before calving, at calving, and following calving are very important for a successful lactation. Modern dairies develop facilities that allow them to meet the demands of these cows with special needs.

For best performance, the feed ration of the cow may be altered several times during the dry period, and just before and immediately after calving. Observing individual cow feed intake and behavior also may be important.

For maximum cow comfort, care and productivity all dairy farms need to have a plan and facilities for meeting the individual needs of each cow. How do you care for special cows on your farm?

Characteristics of the close-up/maternity/post-fresh pen barn:

- Individual cow pens have water, a stanchion and feeding facilities
- Gates between pens open for access during difficult calvings
- Provides drive through TMR wagon feeding
- Gates between pens can be left open to allow for larger group pens
- Individual pen can be cleaned by hand or with a small skid-steer loader
- Tractor access allows for cleaning from end of barn
- Animal handling lane along back of pens allows one person to move cows

• Gates are located and hinged to direct cows in and out of pens and into stanchions

- Allows for individual cow observation and feeding
- Labor is required to keep pen clean and to add bedding during long-term stays.

Management

A close-up cow is placed in an individual pen before calving. While in the pen, each cow is fed individually, making it easy to identify eating habits.

During calving, gates can be opened to expand the area available for assisted calvings. The fresh cow is kept in the pen and closely observed for as long as desired. The access alley allows individual cows to be taken easily to the milking parlor. When the cow no longer needs special attention, she is moved to the milking herd.

Characteristics of the close-up/maternity/post-fresh freestall barn:

- Separate bedded pack area for small group of close up cows

- Cows cared for as group
- TMR wagon feeding
- Tractor manure removal
- More space per cow than in dry cow area.
- Maternity pens at the rear of the close up cow area
- Cows moved to pens immediately before calving
- Normally occupied for a short period of time
- Access from back for caretaking and cow and calf removal.
- Pen maintenance by hand or tractor through close up cow area.
- Minimum number of maternity pens for short term stay during calving
- No facilities for long-term feeding of cows in maternity pen.
- Requires regular observation of cows in close up area
- A small two-row section of freestalls allows post fresh cows to be kept separate from herd for feeding and observation.
- Restraint and treatment facilities.
- Separate convalescence area with TMR wagon feeding and tractor manure removal.

Management

Shortly before calving, cows are moved to the prefresh cow bedded area. The small number of animals and more area per cow allows better individual observation and care. If an inadvertent calving occurs in this area, problems are less likely because of the small number of animals and regular addition of clean bedding. With frequent observation, cows can be moved to the adjacent maternity pens when calving begins.

Shortly after calving, fresh cows are moved to the post fresh freestall area for special feeding and observation until they are ready to join the main herd. The freestall area should have convenient access to milking facilities. The convalescence area has easy access to feed and water, can be subdivided, and is close to the treatment and restraint facilities.

Some Tips On Remodeling

get the building to a "shell" that will accept the new floor plan? Things to consider include concrete, post, partition, and pen removal. How long will it take to renovate the building and who will do it? Can I do it on rainy days or is special equipment and outside labor required?

- Structural. Will posts have to be moved? How much structural repair is necessary? The cost of preparing the building for its new use (removal of existing equipment, moving posts, repairs etc.) should be no more than 60-80 percent of the cost of a new shell. What are the projected long-term repair and maintenance cost of an existing building compared to a new building?

AUTOFLOW MILKING STALLS

With Non-Stop Cow Traffic

Using less stalls at maximum efficiency lowers the total cost of your automation and improves labor efficiency. Comparison shows it takes as much as 50% fewer AutoFlow stalls to achieve the same throughput as with similarly automated herringbone and parallel systems.

As milking equipment becomes more sophisticated and more expensive, the investment per stall becomes an important factor. The Surge AutoFlow parlor maximizes efficiencies per stall without sacrificing cow throughput.

EXPECT MORE.
